NEW PLANS — This 10-story office building, which some county officials claim will dwarf the new Veterans Memorial Building, has been proposed for the graded hillside north of the Marin Civic Center complex. The huge project was proposed by San Rafael contractor Arthur R. Nicolaisen, as an alternative to his previously approved plans for a motel on the site.

N. Viet Jets Hit 7th Fleet Vessels

MIG Attack First Ever; Four Wounded

SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnamese MIG fighter planes and "high speed surface craft" today attacked U.S. 7th Fleet warships stationed in the Gulf of Tonkin, the U.S. command announced.

It was the first attack of the war by the Soviet-built MIGs against anything but U.S. warplanes, spokesmen said.

Four U.S. sailors were wounded when one of the warships was hit by missiles from the MIGs or the North Vietnamese gunboats.

Earlier, Communist troops captured a district capital on South Vietnam's central coast and launched new attacks against three government positions within 40 miles of Saigon. In Cambodia, Communist forces continued their push along vital Highway 1 near the border, almost occupying one city and cutting off a provincial capital.

The air attacks against the U.S. warships took place between 20 and 30 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) separating the two Vietnams as the American ships were pounding North Vietnamese shore batteries.

"Preliminary reports indicate one MIG destroyed and two enemy surface craft were sunk by fire from the (UFS) Sterett," a Navy destroyer, the spokesmen said.

The command stressed in a statement to newsmen they had only "preliminary reports" on the incident, "subject to modification.

On Sunday, U.S. planes accidentally hit the frigate Worden. The Worden was thought at first to have been hit by eneny PT boats. However, on Monday the U.S. destroyer Buchanan was hit by shore batteries.

In other action today, Hanoi Radio said U.S. fighter bombers hit inside North Vietnam for the 14th consecutive day, raiding targets just north of the 20th Parallel. Saigon military sources did not confirm the report but said U.S. B52 bombers flew their heaviest strikes in South Vietnam since 1969. Communist forces, meanwhile, launched heavy attacks against the district capital of Dau Tieng at the edge of the old Michelin rubber plantation, 40 miles northwest of Saigon, and overwhelmed defenders at Hoai An, another district capital in the Central Highlands.

Military officials said "the situation at Dau Tieng looks very bad," adding the city likely would have to be abandoned in the face of any heavy North Vietnamese attacks because of the lack of manpower in the region.

At beleaguered An Loc, 60 miles northwest of Saigon, which the Viet Cong reportedly have staked out as their new capital, Communist troops attacked a government paratroop position on a hill overlooking the town. After five hours of combat and seven waves of bombing strikes, fighting still raged, military sources said.

Fighting also flared today in an area stretching 15 miles between the only major South Vietnamese base at Lai Khe and Highway 15, where government troops are fighting to relieve beseiged An Loc.

Communist troops circled around and attacked behind the stalled government relief drive and within 27 miles of Saigon.

Closer to the capital, a small-scale skirmish broke out 13 miles south of the city. Militiamen reported killing 13 Viet Cong in that battle. Military officers continued to say there was no threat to Saigon itself.

Four Americans were killed in three helicopter crashes Wednesday bringing to eight the number killed in crashes in South Vietnam in two days and to 23 the number of GIs killed in fighting in North and South Vietnam since the March 30 invasion.

Communist troops laying siege to Dau Tieng shot down a U.S. AH1 Cobra gunship, killing both crewmen aboard. Two more choppers were downed by Communist gunfire in the Central Highlands, killing two other GIs. Four were killed when their UH1 "Huey" helicopter crashed for unknown reasons Tuesday in Phu Ben province.

Massive Building Proposed Near Marin Civic Center

A massive 10-story office building, which some county officials say will dwarf the new Veterans Memorial Building, has been proposed for the graded hillside north of the Marin Civic Center complex.

Plans for the project also call for construction of two smaller commercial buildings, underground parking, a service station and large restaurant.

According to the San Rafael Planning Department, which first received the plans yesterday, a public hearing by the planning commission has been tentatively set for May 9.

The multimillion-dollar project was proposed by San Rafael contractor Arhtur R. Nicolaisen as an alternative to his previously approved "Northgate One East" master plan. That plan calls for construction of a motel on the site at 4040 Civic Center Drive.

Under the new proposal, however, the motel would become an office building towering about 154 feet and containing about 110,000 square feet.

About 560 parking spaces would be provided, of which about 330 would be underground. The 11,400-square-foot restaurant would include a convention room and other facilities.

One county planner, viewing the plans drafted by the Menlo Park firm of International Environmental Dynamics, simply shook his head.

The county has been asked by San Rafael to comment on the proposal but will have no other voice in whether it is approved.

Gain For Seniors Housing

By ERIK M. INGRAM

The controversial Dominican Priory housing project for senior citizens cleared its last major hurdle yesterday when Marin supervisors rejected a move by some Kentfield residents to block the project. (Other Marin supervisors stories, page 14.)

With Supervisor John F. McInnis dissenting, the board voted to uphold planning commission approval of the project which is being sponsored by the Catholic Social Service.

McInnis, in casting the lone vote against the project, said he agreed with residents that the development violated the spirit of single-family residential zoning in the area.

The project calls for about 100 apartment units on the five-acre priory site at Laurel Grove Avenue and Hanken Drive.

The federally-financed project was first considered by supervisors about six months ago and was approved on a 3-to-2 vote, with Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni joining McInnis in voting against.

However, embittered residents took the supervisors' action to court and were upheld in their appeal based on a loophole in the county ordinance prohibiting such a development in a single-family neighborhood.

Supervisors, earlier this year, closed the loophole and the project was reintroduced into the bureaucratic papermill.

Opponents of the proposal, headed by attorney Louis F. Hawkins of 4 Hanken Drive, argued yesterday that the development would create traffic, noise and reduce property values.

However, other residents such as John W. Bissinger of 324 Palm Lane urged its approval since citizens would prove quieter neighbors than 22 families who legally could build on the site.

Arrigoni, in switching his vote, said he had no choice but to approve it because of the growing need for moderate-cost housing for the elderly.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar, also supporting the project, said the residents' complaints were another example of "putting it elsewhere."

"The argument that 'We're all for the project but not in our area'" is getting old, he said. Supervisors Michael Wornum and Arnold M. Baptiste agreed.

Councils Select Nine Mayors In Marin, South Sonoma

Nine mayors, six of them new, were chosen last night by city councils in Marin and Southern Sonoma in the wake of last Tuesday's municipal elections.

Three other city councils failed to select mayors because of recounts or because the top vote-getter, often the mayoral pick, was absent.

The mayoral rundown:

Albert E. Gately was chosen in Fairfax, although it took a split vote to do it. (See story, page 6.)

Frederick S. Allen was named in Ross to a fifth term. (See story, page 26.)

Warren R. Perry was selected by his colleagues on the San Anselmo City Council. (See story, page 10.)

F. Wayne Sartain was the Novato City Council choice. (See story, page 6.)

Thomas S. Price was named to another term in Belvedere. (See story, page 17.)

Arthur N. Roberts was elected mayor in Rohnert Park. (See story, page 11.)

No mahor was selected in either Mill Valley or Tiburon since the old councils decided to remain in office until recounts are completed. (See stories, pages 26 and 17.)

The Cotati City Council, now with a youth majority, also adjourned without picking a mayor because last Tuesday's top vote-getter, 24-year-old Annette Lombardi, was absent. The council agreed, however, she would be the choice. (See story, page 26.)

Meanwhile, two new defeated council hopefuls officially asked for recounts yestarday — inbumbent James F. Reed in San Anselmo and challenger Herber C. Leney in Corte Madera. The requests brought to four the total number of recounts that will be undertaken.

Reed was an apparent third-place loser by 18 votes to Dr. Martin G. Blinder, while Leney seems to have missed a council seat by four votes.

County Elections Officer Peter C. Mayer, whose office will conduct all of the recounts except Tiburon's, said only a check of San Anselmo's tally had been set definitely — for next Wednesday. Tiburon, which will perform its recount locally, has set the vote check for Monday.

Aside from Reed and Leney, Tiburon incumbent Anne L. Ellinwood and Mill Valley Councilman Jerome C. Hauke have asked for recounts. Ellinwood apparently lost a reelection bid by two votes and Hauke by six votes.

Apollo 16 Ready For Moon Landing Time

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) —The Apollo 16 astronauts accelerated toward a springboard lunar orbit Wednesday, ready for the last leg of their journey to the lofty central highlands of the moon and new pieces to the puzzle of its creation.

Along the way, they uncapped $17 million worth of mapping instruments on the sides of the command ship Casper's service module which Thomas K. "Ken" Mattingly II will use in orbit while his companions, John W. Young and Charles M. Duke Jr., are roaming the lunar surface.

A 6-minute, 15-second firing of their main rocket engine behind the moon was aimed at braking the astronauts into an orbit of 67 to 197 miles above the moon. A second firing later in the evening would put them even closer, to within 12 miles of the lunar surface.

Young and Duke are to land at 3:41 p.m. EST Thursday to begin a record 21 hours of exploration in three days outside their fourlegged landing module, Orion, in America's fifth and next-to-last scheduled manned visit to the moon.

On a remote plateau north of the giant Descartes crater, just south of the lunar equator, they plan to set up another scientific station, examine nearby volcanic craters and mountain slopes, take the first ultraviolet "photographs" of distant stars and galaxies, and gather 195 pounds

Agnew Plans Trip

TOKYO (UPI) — U.S. Vice president Spiro Agnew will visit Japan for five days, April 12-16, to attend the Okinawa reversion ceremonies on May 15, it was announced Wednesday.

Yugoslavia Travel Restriction Lifted

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government has lifted restrictions that had been in effect since March 27 on travelers entering the country from Yugoslavia, where there had been a smallpox outbreak.

Nixon Near Viet Decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon will go on nationwide radio and television some time next week to discuss further Vietnam troop withdrawals and the recent escalation of the war, it was learned today.

Sources close to the President said the speech would come after he studies a report by Brig. Gen. Alexander N. Haig, deputy to presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, who returns in a few days from a fact-finding trip to Vietnam.

Nixon said last Jan. 13 that the U.S. troop ceiling would fall to 69,000 by May 1. Despite the recent North Vietnamese offensive and a vast stepup in American bombing activity in both North and South Vietnam, officials have stressed that the 69,000-man goal would be reached and that the pullout program would not be halted.

However, Nixon apparently has not made a decision on the next phase of withdrawals and will not until he gets an analysis from Haig.

The presidentially ordered bombing last weekend of both Haiphong and Hanoi stirred the most vigorous debate in months in Congress about the war, and Secretary of State William P. Rogers made his second trip to Capitol Hill in three days today.

Rogers told reporters that there had been no evidence so far that bombing would "adversely affect" Nixon's plans to visit Moscow next month.

Rogers denied that the administration had been particularly emphasizing the substantial Soviet support in the form of heavy weapons to the Communist offensive.

On the Senate floor, Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., his voice cracking with emotion, said he hoped American bombs hit all the Soviet ships that were in Haiphong harbor last weekend because "they've got no business being there."

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., argued that the bombing amounted to "raw retaliation." He added: "The President's policy has been threatened and there is nothing more vengeful than the 'wounded pride of a king.'"

Of the Haiphong port bombing —in which Moscow claims four Soviet ships were damaged —Goldwater declared: "I say if we hit a Russian ship in Haiphong, that's too damned bad. I hope we hit them all. They've got no business being there."

Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., said the majority of Americans supports Nixon's "current course." They disagree, he said, with "those who would urge us to use the occasion of a naked invasion of South Vietnam as a suitable time to turn our backs on our allies and to expose our withdrawing troops to danger."

Rogers met privately with House members of both parties. He testified Monday on the Senate side, and Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird appeared Tuesday, both stressing that Nixon would use whatever military power he deemed necessary to try to stop the North Vietnamese offensive in South

Summit Seen Planned As Scheduled

LONDON (UPI — The Moscow summit meeting between Kremlin leaders and President Nixon will take place next month as scheduled, despite the heightening Vietnam conflict, Communist diplomats said Wednesday.

Only a major, unforeseen crisis could block it on present indications, they said.

But the stepped up Vietnam fighting is certain to cloud the Moscow meetiing, scheduled for May 22-30, and make the going tougher all round, the diplomats said.

There still is a month go to before the summit and much could happen between now and May 22. However, as of now the Communist view is that there is much at stake for the superpowers and the world as a whole that needs talking over on the highest level.

(In Washington, Secretary of State William P. Rogers told newsmen there was no evidence so far that the bombing raids on North Vietnam would "adversely affect" Nixon's plans to visit Moscow next month).

The Vietnam problem is only one of many crucial issues slated for discussion, Communist diplomats said.

Among other matters is the important question of nuclear arms curbs. An agreement—at least a partial one—probably will be signed by Nixon and the Kremlin leaders.

Sierra Club Loses Court Test To Halt Mineral King Project

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In a setback for environmentalists, the Supreme Court by a narrow 4-1 vote barred the Sierra Club today from suing to stop a $35 million development in California's mineral King Valley by the Walt Disney organization.

The majority opinion, written by Justice Potter Stewart, means the conservationist organization may not proceed in federal district court in San Francisco, under the Administrative Procedure Act, to litigate claims that the secretaries of Agriculture and Interior violated federal law and regulations in allowing the vast commercial venture in the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

The Disney firm proposed to take over 80 acres in the isolated game refuge for an "Alpine village" with hotels, restaurants, a theater, swimming pools and accommodations for 14,000 skiers at one time.

The Sierra Club has said that about 1,000 acres would actually be affected. The club sued both secretaries because national forests are under the jurisdiction of the Agriculture Department, while national parks come under the Interior Department.

The Administrative Procedure Act accords judicial review to a "person suffering legal wrong because of agency action or (who is) adversely affected or aggrieved by agency action within the meaning of a relevant statute."

Sierra Club members are said to be seeuing other means to challenge the project, which cannot proceed until a contract is awarded for an access road.

Stewart said a person can seek judicial review under the Administrative Procedure Act only if he can show that he himself has suffered or will suffer injury, economic or otherwise. He said the Sierra Club asserted no individualized harm to itself or its members.

Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Harry A. Blackmun issued dissenting opinions.

Blackmun said, "I fear, and sadly so ... that the $35.3 million complex, over 10 times greater than the Forest Service's suggested minimum, will now hastily proceed to completion; that serious opposition to it will recede in discouragement; and that Mineral King, the 'area of great natural beauty nestled in the Sierra Nevada Mountains' ... will become dfaced, at least in part, and, like so many other areas, will cease to be 'uncluttered by the products of civilization.'"

Douglas, an outdoorsman from boyhood, said the critical question of standing would be simplified "if we fashioned a federal rule that allowed environmental issues to be litigated before federal agencies of federal courts in the name of the inanimate object about to be despoiled, defaced or invaded by roads and bulldozers and where injury is the subject of public outrage."

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Meredith Back On Campus

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI) — James Meredith, whose first appearance 10 years ago at the University of Mississippi touched off a bloody riot, returned to the campus yesterday to lecture to a history class.

Meredith

"I think this is what's happening in Mississippi," he told his students for a day.

Meredith, 39, and graying in his Afro hair style, told the class of 70 students, including four blacks, that "I can't explain how significant this is. It has been quite a jump to come here as a student under the conditions I did and then to return to teach."

Meredith now is a Republican candidate for the seat of veteran Democratic Sen. James Eastland, with little hope of success.

Acceptance Asked

ATLANTA (UPI) — The United Methodist Church has been called upon to "declare our acceptance of homosexuals as persons of sacred worth and that we welcome them into the fellowship of the church."

The request came in a lengthy statement yesterday on social principals presented to the 1,000 delegates, representing the denomination's 11 million members, meeting in general conference.

LBJ's Doctor Stays

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — An "early warning" signal that former President Lyndon B. Johnson might have more heart troubles as he recuperates from an attack April 7 has caused his personal dgctor to stay in Texas several more days.

Dr. J. Willis Hurst, who flew to Johnson's side Mondgy night after the 36th President suffered a flurry of irregular heartbeats, said Johnson, 63, recovered from the burst yesterday and was in good spirits and resting well.

IRA Threatens

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — The Irish Republican Army threatened today to escalate its fight against British rule following the funeral of an IRA leader killed by a British patrol.

"The death of Joseph McCann has not been in vain, for it has strengthened the determination of republicans to continue and escalate their political activities until all their demands are met," an IRA spokesman said.

New violence followed the funeral of McCann yesterday.

An IRA car bomb exploded in Belfast, injuring a policeman and a pedestrian, a British army spokesman said.

ITT Attacked

SANTIAGO (UPI) — President Salvador Allende attacked America's International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. yesterday as "the perfect example of imperialism" and said he will ask congress to expropriate the company's Chilean holdings.

Allende made the announcement to thousands of cheering supporters in a speech in which he also accused the opposition of attempting to start a civil war. He said the army and the public were solidly behind his government.

Allende hinted the expropriation legislation would contain a "negative indemnization" clause, under which ITT's "excessive profits" would be deducted from the book value of the company's Chilean property.

Unconstitutional

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The U.S. District Court declared Connecticut's 112-year-old restrictive abortion law unconstitutional Tuesday.

Deputy Atty. General C. Perrie Philips said his office would review the decision for possible appeal and Republican Gov. Thomas J. Meskill, a Roman Catholic, said he may ask the legislature to enact a new abortion law.

The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Hartford asked the state to fight the ruling to "defend the absolute right of the child over a mother's false absolute freedom to take her own child's life away."

Israel Celebrates

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israel's 24th anniversary celebrations reached their climax today with a naval review and a parachute drop into the Mediterranean watched by nearly 350,000 spectators.

The main focus of the independence celebrations was along the Tel Aviv beachfront. Police said 350,000 persons jammed the five-mile long stretch of the Mediterranean shoreline to watch a naval review and a massed paratroop drop.

Thirteen gunboats built to Israeli specifications in French shipyards and armed with locally-built and designed Gabriel sea-to-sea missiles, churned through a flotilla of small naval craft and a submarine.

Mill Valley Peace Group Will March

The Mill Valley peace action committee will sponsor a motorcade to Saturday's peace march in San Francisco.

Cars will leave from the parking lot of Sabella's Restaurant at 9 a.m. and will arrive at Baker and Fell streets in San Francisco in time for the march to Kezar stadium, according to Gloria Jones, committee member.

Can't Meet Deadline, Ford Claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Ford Motor Co. testified today it could not meet the government's exhaust cleanup deadline and said refusal to postpone it could force a shutdown that would put 800,000 people out of work.

Even with a one-year postponement—all that the law allows—Ford said it had "no technical basis whatsoever" for believing it could meet the standards. The company urged William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), to review the standards and "present his recommendations to Congress," taking into consideration the high cost of emission controls.

Ford did not say so but the implication was that Ruckelshaus should ask Congress to dilute or delay the antipollution standards, which were written into the 1970 Clean Air Act for 1975 model cars.

Ford's position was stated in a document formally requesting that the standards be delayed one year. Other auto makers have made the same request. EPA officials subpoenaed Herbert L. Misch, Ford vice president, to answer questions today about the proposed delay.

Echoing statements by General Motors and other manufacturers, Ford said tests indicated its exhaust controls would wear out much too quickly. The law requires a 90 per cent reduction in emissions of carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons, and stipulates that the controls still work after 50,000 miles of driving.

Even with this "disappointing performance," Ford said, the control devices would boost the cost of a 1975 model by $430. The firm said it was now testing another device that would cost $290.

But the company said no such device would be ready for 1975 models, and predicted drastic economic results if the government sticks to the 1975 deadline and forces Ford to stop auto production for the 1975 model year.

Ford said such a shutdown would slow growth of the gross national product by $17 billion, cut national economic growth from a rate of 4 per cent to 2.7 per cent, increase unemployment by 800,000, or nine-tenths of 1 per cent, force more than 3,300 Ford dealers out of business and cut tax receipts about $5 billion.

"Ford—should it survive—would be in a drastically weakened financial condition for many years," the company said.

Ford said the 800,000 unemployment estimate included 180,000 of its own employes, 115,000 at Ford dealerships, plus reduced employment among the firm's suppliers and even in "industries totally unrelated to automotive production."

To Host Nixons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary and Mrs. John B. Connally will host President and Mrs. Nixon at a supper at their Floresville, Tex., ranch on April 30.

Meany Speaks Against Strikes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—AFL-CIO President George Meany said Tuesday he no longer believes strikes are good tools for organized labor and has appointed a committee to find an alternative weapon to the strike.

"I don't believe in strikes," he said. "I don't believe they mean what they did years ago."

Meany made the comments during an appearance before a Senate labor subcommittee which is considering a proposal from President Nixon to outlaw strikes in the transportation industry. Meany said he still opposes the administration's plan, favoring instead one that would allow strikes that would tie up only up to 40 per cent of a given transportation industry.

But Meany said his general views on strikes have changed over the years, from the time when a striking union could afford to pay its workers only 60 cents an hour in strike benefits. Now, he said, even though the benefits may be a little better, they are not sufficient for working people who have children in college, mortgage payments and other responsibilities.

GEORGE MEANY
Seek strike alternative

He said the day when a union was willing to call a strike over the interpretation of a contract clause has almost vanished because such disputes are now settled by arbitration.

Chrysler Votes Down UAW Contract Plans

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. directors weathered a stinging attack by the United Auto Workers Tuesday to defeat overwhelmingly three consumer-oriented proposals and push through three proposals of their own.

The three management sponsored proposals —bonuses for executives even in low profit years, improved pensions for salaried employes and more liberal stock option plan for the company's top echelon -won easily despite accusations by UAW Vice President Douglas Fraser that the executives were displaying "disgusting greed."

One irate stockholder stood up during the meeting and burned an $8 dividend check to protest the adoption of the executives' bonus plan, which Fraser said would allow a handful of corporations executives to share millions of dollars in bonuses.

Two of the defeated proposals were put forth by the Ralph Nader-inspired Project on Corporate Responsibility (PCR) making its first appearance at a Chrysler shareholders' meeting.

A PCR proposal to broaden the board of directors to include a woman and representatives of employe organizations, consumers and minority groups received only 5 per cent of the 37 million shares voted.

A proposal to require an annual report to stockholders on progress in pollution control and safety and a third proposal aimed at forcing the company to design cars with pedestrian safety in mind received even fewer votes.

Defeat of the proposals was expected. Similar proposals were to be up for stockholder consideration at the annual meetings of Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp. next month.

Fraser, who voted the UAW's four shares of Chrysler stock, said if the board-backed bonus plan had been in effect in 1969, 52 executives would have shared $3.4 million, while last year, 48 executives would have split $7.8 million.

Market Loses Stacking Suit

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Saying that stacking supermarket products out of the reach of the shopper was creating "an unwarranted risk," a Superior Court Tuesday awarded $11,497.45 to a woman who was struck by a jar of falling olives.

The court found in favor of Mary Dougherty who filed a suit against the A&P supermarket chain.

During the trial, the assistant manager of the supermarket testified that even though he was 5-foot-11, he would have to stretch to reach the olives on the top shelf. The woman was about five feet tall, the court said.

Riot Order Described By Sergeant

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI)—A Santa Barbara sheriff's sergeant testified Tuesday that deputies were ordered to "beat the living hell" out of bystanders during a riot near the University of California at Santa Barbara in 1970.

Sgt. Edward Piceno testified that fired sheriff's Capt. Joel B. Honey had ordered deputies "to go out there and beat the living hell out of anybody that was away from the crowd, get in our cars and leave."

His testimony came when Honey's attorney asked Piceno to describe the circumstances surrounding an incident for which Piceno and his partner were suspended for 10 days by Sheriff James Webster.

Piceno said he and Sgt. Fred Higgins were suspended for leaving their patrol car and smashing the camera and destroying the film of Richard Cutting. He said he felt the actions fell under the general orders issued by Honey.

Soviet Encyclopedia Will Be Published

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Plans have been announced to publish an English version of the Great Soviet Encyclopedia—a 30-volume set consisting of 25 million to 30 million words that will take until 1979 to be translated.

Announcement of the project was made by Crowell-Collier and Macmillan Inc., which said it expected to market the set to universities, libraries and other institutions at a price ranging from $500 to $1,000.

Bellflower Bombers Sought By Deputies

BELLFLOWER (UPI)—Sheriff's deputies early today sent out an alarm for two longhaired youths riding in a black car which was seen speeding away from a commercial street here shortly before a bomb exploded.

The blast late Tuesday night destroyed a building housing three businesses, heavily damaged another and shattered windows in some 40 buildings, some as far as four blocks away.

Two witnesses told deputies they saw the youths drive through the area in what was believed to be a 1957 Chevrolet, pausing to throw a "package or sack" next to a planter box in front of Castlehead Escrow, Inc.

Minutes later the blast occurred at about 11:40 p.m., destroying the escrow firm, Lana's Kopy Kat print shop and New Britainy Realty office, all in the same two-story building on Bellflower Boulevard.

The witnesses, Steve R. Solimeno, 21, and Randell Roubal, 20, were hospitalized briefly for observation but were found unharmed except for earaches. There were no other injuries.

An anonymous male with a youthful voice telephoned UPI within 10 minutes of the blast to take credit for an explosion but just where was unclear.

The caller mentioned "Jesus freaks" and discrimination against Jews but spoke so rapidly his mention of the location of his alleged bombing was incomprehensible. Before hanging up, he shouted "Never again" —the slogan of the Jewish Defense League.

A sheriff's department spokesman said several hours after the blast investigators were unable to locate any building in the area that might have been a logical political or religious target for a bombing. Because of the timing of the call, however, investigators said it remained an active lead.

The explosion heavily damaged the Tress of Hair beauty shop next door to the office building. The car in which the two witnesses were riding also was damaged.

"I thought we were having an earthquake," said one resident several blocks away who, like many others, was startled out of bed.

Fire department officials placed total damage at about $250,000.

Bomb experts said the explosion had an equivalent force of six sticks of dynamite but were uncertain just what type of explosive was used.

Deputies blocked off one block of Bellflower Boulevard for several hours until the owners of the damaged offices arrived.

The explosion was the second major bombing in the Los Angeles area in two weeks.

ACLU Plans To Test Bank Record Rule

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A court test of new government regulations requiring banks to keep microfilm records of all checks deposited is being prepared by the American Civil Liberties Union, an ACLU lawyer said today.

Henry Ramsey Jr., professor of law at the University of California, said his organization plans to challenge the regulations on grounds they violate infringement of Constitutional rights to privacy.

Harold Arthur, Wells Fargo Bank vice president, said his bank agreed with the purpose of the Treasury Department regulations but said the rules violated the "long-standing bank policy that customers' transactions are their own business and are to be treated in confidence."

(Wells Fargo's San Anselmo branch was recently discovered to have been for some time disclosing to the Federal Bureau of Investigation the financial transactions of a depositor.

(The secret surveillance of the checks of Richard Stark of Corta Madera, a supporter of radical causes, came to light when a copy of a bank memo ordering the surveillance was sent to him among his canceled checks.

(The bank subsequently ordered the practice halted.)

Arthur said the regulations are intended "to stop the illegal flow of funds overseas by maintaining records and reporting foreign currency transactions" but that they encompass much more.

He also said that implementations of the regulation which take effect July 1 would be a heavy fi ancial burden on banks.

Can't Fire Teacher, Court Rules

A Marin Superior Court judge yesterday ruled the Novato High School District does not have grounds to fire math teacher Wyman W. Kunzler.

Judge Thomas F. Keating said the district had not shown Kunzler, a tenured teacher, was unfit for his job.

Keating was the second Marin judge to rebuff the school district in its 2-year-old effort to fire the Hill Junior High School teacher. Judge E. Warren McGuire ruled in September of 1970 that an incompetence charge was not specific enough.

The more specific charges ruled out by Keating yesterday included teaching over the heads of his students.

The district accused Kunzler of burdening his pupils with his personal problems and giving them unrealistic assignments.

He was accused of teaching the binomial theorem to beginning algebra students and giving 20-digit multiplication problems.

Kunzler, who denied the charges, has been with the district four years when the firing effort was initiated in May of 1970.

Since he was tenured, the firing had to be done through superior court.

Hearing Set For Four In Kidnap Case

A preliminary hearing has been set for May 23 in Marin Municipal Court for four men accused of kidnapping a San Francisco woman who attracted help Sunday by throwing a beer can from a car.

James Tsopanakis and Eugenio Garza, both 20 and from San Francisco, Eric Carlisle, 21, of Menlo Park, and Gerry Estrada, 20, San Jose pleaded innocent to the kidnaping charge Monday.

All were arrested by the California Highway Patrol at about 3 a.m. A patrolmen saw the beer can tossed out and stopped the car. The woman then began yelling she was kidnaped, according to the patrolman.

She reportedly said she had been abducted in San Francisco after attending a dance and was taken to Marin. The car was finally stopped near the Corte Madera offramp of Highway 101.

Fairfax Man To Design Fair

Robert J. Mahoney of Fairfax will design the Marin County Fair for the second consecutive year, according to fair manager Marcelle McCoy.

Mahoney, president of the Marin Museum Association and display director of Gump's in San Francisco, has earned several designing awards for his efforts at Gumps.

He will develop new designs for outdoor fair displays and will design the exhibition hall, where expanded art and photography shows will be displayed and 2,000 square feet of gardens will be shown, Mrs. McCoy said.

The fair will be hald Aug. 31 through Sept. 4 at the Civic Center fairgrounds.

Two Reports On College Agenda

The Marin Community College District board will receive reports on public transportation and no-show students at its regular meeting at 8 p.m. today.

Greg Fearon, student body president, has submitted the survey of public transportation available to College of Marin students, which includes suggestions for improvement of the transportation system.

The second report attempts to explain why some students registered for classes during the spring term, but have not attended.

Ross Valley Flood Panel Sets Budget

The Ross Valley Flood Control Zone Advisory board has approved a 1972-73 budget of $68,900, about $15,000 lower than this year's $84,000.

It will be financed out of district reserves and, like last year, will require no tax levy, according to Charles E. Murphy, county flood control engineer.

Next year's figures compared to this year's (in parentheses) are: reserves $61,675 ($54,700); salaries $5,225 ($2,000); office supplies, equipment and miscellaneous expenses $2,000 ($2,000).

Also included in this year's budget were two items concerning the Corte Madera Creek Project, which has been stalled for about a year, and is not included in the new budget: $18,100 for land enhancement, along the edge of the creek and $2,000 in state lands charge of one cent per cubic yard of bay mud taken from the creek during dredging.

The budget passed, 3-1, with Ross representative Frederick S. Allen opposed. Allen said he wanted to see money in the budget to meet obligations of the flood control zone to solve local flooding problems in Ross, and the funds weren't there, according to Murphy.

The board also voted unanimously to send a letter to the board of supervisors requesting a postponement of 60 to 90 days in the dissolution of Flood Control Subzone 9A. Murphy said it requested this because investigations are now taking place for Zone 9 to do all maintenance and ordinance enforcement work throughout the zone.

APOLLO

of rocks and soil to return to scientists back on earth.

Shortly after Apollo 16's attempted lunar orbit the burned-out third stage of the Saturn 5 launching rocket was to be crashed into the moon with an explosive force of 11 tons of TNT to see if the shock waves, picked up by seismometers left by the Apollo 12, 14 and 15 missions, would yield new, more precise information about the deep interior of the moon.

Four and one-half hours before lunar orbit, the astronauts triggered a series of explosives that ejected a 5-by-9 1-2 foot aluminum panel covering two mapping cameras, a laser altimeter and three radiation sensors in Casper's service module.

"There it goes," said Young. "That was a pretty good bang. We can watch it spinning around out the window, and it's quite a sight. Every time it comes around it really flashes." The cover floated away 13,000 miles above the moon.

The astronauts awoke without prompting at about 7 a.m. Wednesday, about an hour early, and enjoyed a breakfast of mixed fruit, ham steak, cornflakes, bread and jelly, orange juice and cocoa to music from an on-board tape machine.

ABAG Receives $390,000 Grant For Planning

I-J Special Report

BERKELEY — The federal government has approved a $390,000 planning grant to the Association of Bay Area Governments toward its 1972-73 program.

The association has a $1.2 million budget for next fiscal year. Of this, $340,000 will come from dues paid from taxes by member cities and counties and the rest from other federal and state sources.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development approved the planning grant for programs in housing, water resources, parks and open space, environmental data study, regional information study, urban growth policy, regional economic policy and federal grant review.

Pair's Case To Superior Court

Two men charged with robbing, kidnaping and raping a Mill Valley woman have been bound over to Marin Superior Court to face the charges Monday.

Charles Moultry, 23, and Charles Lee, 22, both of San Francisco, were arrested March 29 after a chase across the Golden Gate Bridge.

The 28-year-old victim told police the two men robbed her in her driveway, then forced her to ride through Southern Marin with them. She said they alternated holding a gun on her and raping her.

Released two blocks from home, she called for help and sheriff's deputies caught up with the car after chasing it from near Marin City.

Lynwood Election Announced

Palmer O. Wilkins of 1291 Leafwood Drive was elected president of the Lynwood Park Improvement Association last night.

Gloria Burnett was elected vice president, Harry B. Shields, treasurer, and Kathleen B. Loeffler, corresponding secretary.

The association will urge the city to purchase the land near the Lynwood tank site, which is designated in the Scottsdale-Crossroads general plan as a park site, Mrs. Burnett reported. The owner of the land reportedly is preparing to sell it, she said.

Members also are going to request the city of Novato to construct a turnaround at the east end of Sunset Parkway, rather than extend the parkway, Mrs. Burnett said.

The association also sent a letter to the principal of Lynwood School protesting litter and seeking support of the school in a cleanup.

Members also protested residential use of a second building on a lot in Lynwood Park, which is zoned for single-family use.

Arraigned On Pot Charge

Jessie P. Wagonet, 24, of San Anselmo was arraigned yesterday on a charge of possessing marijuana earlier in the day.

She was to plead either today or on Tuesday depending on whether she would post $500 bail.

She was arrested by the California Highway Patrol on Highway 101 near Paradise Drive after an officer saw her car traveling erratically.

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday by referring to her as a man.

Woman Denies Burglary Charge

Caroline Jean McIlroy, 30, of Larkspur pleaded innocent today in Marin Superior Court to charges of attempted burglary and concealing stolen property.

A jury trial was set for June 12.

She was arrested by sheriff's deputies March 12 following an alleged theft from the Little Daisy Dress Shop in the Town and Country Shopping Center at Strawberry.

Auto Is Looted Of Possessions

Possessions valued at $388 were stolen from his car parked at Paul Drive and Mitchell Boulevard between noon and 2 p.m. yesterday, Kent L. Beardley, 42, of 34 Terrace Court, Tiburon, reported to San Rafael police.

The locked car apparently was ented by prying open a window, causing $60 damage to the vehicle, police said today.

DEBATE

Vietnam.

The White House has referred up to now to Rogers and Laird's statements when asked about Nixon's reasons for the heavy U.S. bombing and presidential views of the escalated war.

When Nixon does give his personal report, sources said today, he wants to do it directly to the people on a live broadcast. "He wants to explain Vietnam in his own way," the In the Senate, where a fivehour period was set aside for debate on the war, antiwar forces seeking to cut off war funds picked up a surprise supporter today in the assistant Democratic leader, Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia.

Byrd consistently supported most White House Vietnam policy in both the Johnson and Nixon administrations, but announced his backing of a proposal calling for a halt in Vietnam financing as of the end of this year.

Byrd told reporters that under Nixon's troop withdrawal timetable, there might not be any need for further funds anyway.

Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, in an interview broadcast today but filmed two weeks ago — early in the North Vietnamese offensive and prior to the escalated U.S. bombing —said an end to "U.S. aggression" in Indochina was essential to improved U.S.-Chinese relations.

"The most outstanding issue in the Far East is U.S. aggression in Vietnam and Indochina," Chou said in an interview with a British journalist, Felix Greene.

The interview was carried on the NBC-TV Today Show.

Chou said that "in my opinion, if the United States does not withdraw its forces and cease supporting the puppet regime (of President Nguyen Van Thieu in Saigon), the war in Indochina cannot stop, and thus it would be impossible to reduce tensions in the Far East."

"Only the end of the war can contribute to relaxation of (U.S.-Chinese) tensions," Chou said. "This is the test."

Offices In Building Ransacked

Burglars, entering through an outside rear window, ransacked several offices in the Cheda Building at 1029 Fourth Street sometime Monday night, San Rafael police reported today.

The burglars entered five offices —those of attorneys David B. Fyfe and Sol. A. Abrams; the Cheda Estate Co.; bondsman Ralph Finley; Figa Productions Inc., and attorney Lawrence E. Weiss —taking only some photographs and a cigarette-rolling machine in the Figa office, police said.

After scrambling through the window, the burglars apparently pried Cheda Estate Co.'s office door, removing keys to other offices in the building, police theorized.

Goods were strewn about all the offices in the burglary which occurred sometime between 6:40 p.m. Monday and 8:40 a.m. Tuesday, police said.

Boyd Park Fence Broken In Accident

A car in which the brakes failed Monday plowed into a wrought-iron fence surrounding Louise A. Boyd Memorial Park, knocking down a 12-foot stretch of the old fence, San Rafael police reported today.

The car, driven by Patrick M. Daniels, 26, of 22½ Buena Vista, San Anselmo, came to rest atop the concrete-based fence at B Street and Mission Avenue, in front of the Marin County Historical Society headquarters building.

Daniels was driving southbound on sloped Laurel Place at 4:45 p.m. when the car's brakes failed, police reported. The car continued into the B and Mission intersection where, spying traffic coming in two directions, Daniels steered it into the fence.

Daniels was not injured in the mishap.

Innocent Plea To Boat Charge

Vincent Joseph Salas, 23, of Sausalito, who was arrested during the weekend on suspicion of burglarizing a boat in the Sausalito Yacht Harbor, pleaded innocent to the charge in Marin Municipal Court yesterday.

Salas was then released without bail to return for a preliminary hearing May 2.

He was arrested by Sausalito police Friday on suspicion of breaking into the Tropolino owned by Jedd McClutchy.

Police used teargas to disperse several hundred youths at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., Tuesday when a peaceful three-hour demonstration against the Vietnam War turned into a rampage with windows, furniture and typewriters smashed. Demonstrations against the war, most of them peaceful, took place across the country for the second day yesterday.

School Site Annexation Is Sought

The Novato Unified School District board last night agreed to ask the City of Novato to annex a 10-acre school site at Mill Road and Trumbull Avenue.

Supt. James G. Bunker said the site could serve as a neighborhood play area and annexation would provide city police protection.

The board also acceptej the resignation of Edith Pewitt, administrative assistant, who is in charge of implementing the district's educational goals.

Mrs. Pewitt, a consultant when the goals were established in the 1970-71 school year, resigned as of June 30 because she is moving to Texas.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

Richmond Bus Plan Hits Snag At Hearing

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A 27-year-old school janitor, seeking to run a new bus service between San Rafael and Richmond, won no support yesterday in a hearing before a state Public Utilities Commission examiner.

The aspiring bus operator, Stephen D. Hooper of San Rafael, assured examiner Martin J. Porter he would make "whatever effort it takes" to insure the service's success, but said he had no data on the expenses or demand for the proposed run across the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge.

Hooper's plans were indirectly opposed by the staff of the Metropolitan Transportation Commission, Golden Gate Bridge District and the Alameda-Contra Costa Transit District, while Cecil J. Allen, 75-year-old former operator of a Marin-Richmond run, said he was flatly against Hooper "trying to take my line away from me."

Allen, who still holds a PUC certificate to operate the run, told the Independent-Journal he dropped the service because he wasn't making a profit.

H. Donald White, transit manager for the bridge district, said the agency was not taking a stand for or against Hooper, but noted that the Metropolitan Transportation Commission has suggested the service be provided under a joint powers agreement between the bridge district and the Alameda-Contra Costa district.

Under this proposal, the line would link Marin to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District station at Richmond, where rail service to San Francisco would be available.

Meanwhile, Marin Transit Systems, through a Berkeley subsidiary, disclosed it was withdrawing its application to provide the cross-bay service. Theophus Barron Jr., company president, told the Independent-Journal his firm's plans might interfere with long-range goals of the bridge district.

PUC examiner Porter took the application of Hooper, who works for the San Anselmo school system, under advisement.

Ballot Too Big For Voting Machine

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An unprecedented problem faced the registrar of voters Monday —San Francisco's June ballot is too big for the voting machines.

Registrar Emmery Mihaly said there is still five more days for candidates to apply but there is no more room on the ballot. He said that one possible solution was to cut the normal 1,200 voting places to about half the number and provide two machines at each precinct.

Reinecke Testifies In ITT Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Lt. Governor Ed Reinecke of California testified today the idea of holding the Republican national convention in San Diego was "hatched" last spring one day after he met with ITT lobbyist Dita D. Beard and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell.

But Reinecke said he had not discussed the convention with either person.

Reinecke told the Senate Judiciary Committee he met with Mitchell in the morning on April 26, 1971, and with Mrs. Beard, the Washington lobbyist for the International Telephone & Telegraph (ITT), on the afternoon of the same day.

The next day, April 27, a group of San Diego representatives got together at a social reception at Republican National Headquarters here and "that was where the idea really hatched" for the San Diego convention, he said.

Reinecke denied that he discussed the convention with either Mrs. Beard or Mitchell at the April 26 meetings. He said he "obviously did not ... because the idea did not seed until the following day."

Earlier in what was expected to be one of the final sessions of the Senate hearings on the ITT controversy, it was disclosed that Peter M. Flanigan, a top presidential assistant, had agreed to answer committee questions Thursday on what he knows about the selection of San Diego as the convention site.

Nursery Open House

Parents who wish to learn about the program of the San Anselmo Cooperative Nursery School may attend the school's annual open house from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. next Wednesday, according to the president, Kathy Jones. The school, at 24 Myrtle Lane, is open to children between the ages of 33 months and 4 years.

Inflation Reduces Economy Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The U. S. economy expanded by $30.3 billion in the first three months of 1972, the Commerce Department said today, but more than half the increase was caused by inflation.

The government estimated that gross national product (GNP) in the first quarter grew 11.8 per cent, up sharply from the growth of 7.6 per cent in the last three months of 1971.

When adjusted for price increases, however, the economy's output advanced only 5.3 per cent, less rapid than the 5.8 per cent growth rate of the fourth quarter.

The difference was inflation. As measured by the "GNP deflator," prices rose 6.2 per cent between January and March, comparedto only 1.7 per cent in the October-December period.

The report, which will be revised later as more statistics become available, was bound to raise questions about the effectiveness of the administration's price control policy.

In a separate report, the department said personal income grew $3.5 billion in March. And it drastically revised the February figures, saying huge retroactive salary increases approved by the Pay Board meant that personal income rose $9 billion in February, not $5 billion as originally reported.

The $30.3 billion increase in first quarter GNP —the dollar value of all private and governmental output of goods and services —grew at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1,103.2 billion ($1.1 trillion). The figures will be revised later as more statistics are available.

The report showed a $32.2 billion annual rate of increase in final sales while inventory increased $1.8 billion.

The pace of consumer spending also rose by $13 billion, compared with $8.4 billion in the fourth quarter. The administration has been hoping that consumers would spend more and give the economy a push.

Fixed investment rose $10.1, billion, double the fourth quarter rise and government spending increased $5 billion, compared to a $2.7 billion fourth quarter increase.

At the White House, Commerce Secretary Peter G. Peterson said he believed the administration's goal of a $100 billion increase in the GNP in 1972 "is in sight."

Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien said the report "that inflation consumed more than half the reported economic growth for the first quarter of 1972 dramatizes the need for much stronger controls on profits and interest rates."

District To Study Year 'Round School

Plans to change the traditional school calendar to a year 'round plan will be considered at the Old Adobe School District board meeting at 7:45 p.m. tomorrow at La Tercera School, Petaluma.

The board will receive a recommendation that schools be changed to the 45-15 plan which would put students in school for 45 days, or nine weeks, followed by 15 days of vacation. With school enrollments staggered, buildings would be in operation for a full 12 months.

Jail Time Given For Burglary

Bertha Marie West, 18, of Oakland, was sentenced today to 60 days in the county jail for burglary by Marin Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner.

He also placed her on two years probation.

Meanwhile, in municipal court, a codefendant, Tinicia Brown, 22, of Richmond was bound over to superior court to face the same charges.

Miss West, who had pleaded guilty in a negotiated settlement, and Miss Brown were arrested July 3 after a guard at The Emporium at Northgate told police they had taken $39 worth of children's clothing from the store.

Police said they found between $300 and $500 in clothing in the trunk of their car. The clothing still bore tags from Santa Rosa stores.

Students Looking

NEW YORK (UPI)—"College students today are looking for more than a classroom education—they want an education experience embracing real-world applications," says Dean Abraham L. Gitlow of New York University's College of Business and Public Administration.

Youth Admits Check Charge

Kurt Martin Schuster, 18, of Santa Rosa, who pleaded guilty to a bad check charge when two other counts against him were dismissed, has been sentenced to the California Youth Authority by Judge Samuel W. Gardiner.

In a negotiated settlement Friday, the Marin Superior Court judge then dismissed a second bad check count and a charge of possessing marijuana.

Schuster was arrested Feb. 1 after he cashed a $250 check on his father's account and then returned later in the day to try to cash a $500 check.

A suspicious teller called police, who arrested the youth. Schuster allegedly had a small quantity of marijuana with him.

Fairfax Councilmen Split Picking Mayor, Pro Tem

By DAVID DIETZ

Despite the appeals of two outgoing members for unity, Fairfax's new city council promptly split twice last night in picking a mayor and mayor pro tempore.

Albert E. Gately, one of two new councilmen elected at last Tuesday's municipal election, was chosen mayor by a vote of 3-1, with one abstention. The other new member, E. Ross Parkerson, was named mayor pro tempore by a 3-2 vote.

Councilmen Lee Nelder and Robert R. Souza were in the minority on both votes. Nelder twice voted "no" and Souza abstained on the mayoral choice.

Ments earlier, outgoing Councilman Francis J. O'Connell, one of two members who did not seek reelection, pleaded against disvisiveness in his departure speech. The council has been racked with squabbling for years.

"Don't get locked into a 3-2 vote," he urged the newcomers. "The only people going to suffer are the people of Fairfax ... you won't walk away from here with any pride of accomplishment."

But O'Connell — who also presented the newcomers with green ties he smilingly said he bought as a measure of good will — didn't get his wish.

Neither did former Mayor Cornelis van Vliet, the other councilman who chose not to run. He, too, called for resolving of differences as he stepped down with a gavel set given by his colleagues.

Parkerson, last Tuesday's top council vote-getter and former city planning commission chairman, began by nominating

ALBERT E. GATELY
Split vote choice

Gately, also a former planning commissioner, for mayor. Councilman Frank J. Egger, expected to join with Parkerson and Nelder to form a new majority bloc, seconded.

Souza, explaining his abstention, said he wasn't against Gately but he felt it was Nelder's turn to take the mayor's seat.

When it came time to nominate for mayor pro tempore, Souza chose Nelder but his motion wasn't seconded. Then Egger nominated Parkerson, with Gately seconding, and the 3-2 vote was cast.

Later, Parkerson, who campaigned largely on the issue of the environment, said: "I think the people tried to say they wanted a new direction in this town ... I'm sorry we can't come together in this first decision-making moment.

"I hope this isn't the direction we're going to follow in the next two years ... No matter what happens tonight, it's a new day in this town and we're going to make it a better Fairfax."

With citizen participation and "candidness among council members," Gately said, "we can solve the problems in this town."

The council set a "workshop session" for 8 p.m. May 2 at Parkerson's request to discuss issues before the community. The new councilman said the firing of Police Chief James R. Orr, currently subject to a long hearing before the city board of review, would not be among them.

(In an action upheld on a split council vote, Orr was dismissed from the force last year by City Administrator Robert E. Crowe on a variety of charges. The complaints include failing to establish departmental regulations, engaging in improper social relations with a police clerk and drunkenness.)

Also sworn in last night were City Clerk Eileen Foster, who ran unopposed, and Treasurer Priscilla C. Gray, who ousted incumbent Harold H. Taft. Mrs. Gray was a leader of last Tuesday's successful ballot measure rezoning the Town and Country Club property to thwart residential development.

In another matter, the council said it would meet in closed session at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday to discuss litigation dealing with property damage along Fairfax Creek.

The council also announced the spring debris pickup would be May 1-5, with debris boxes stationed at the community ballfield on May 6.

Pleads Guilty To Possessing Pot

Pamela Lee Kidwell, 27, of San Rafael who had been charged with two felony drug counts, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court only to a misdemeanor count of marijuana possession.

Judge Peter Allen Smith accepted the bargain worked out with her attorney and after she pleaded to the misdemeanor count, he dismissed a felony charge of possessing cocaine and a misdemeanor charge of drunken driving.

She was arrested March 9 by California Highway Patrol officers who said they found drugs in her purse.

Builder Hits Novato Planners On 'Moratorium'; Council Upset

The Novato City Council bristled last night at a report the city planning commission was in effect placing a "moratorium" on some matters by delaying action.

Builder Eugene D. McGillicuddy said the commission's policy is to delay all master plan, planned unit development and rezoning requests until the general plan is revised.

The city council recently defeated a moritorium on building and "it now appears the planning commission has in fact established a moratium" by delaying such items, McGuillicuddy said.

Commissioners were delaying by scheduling these items at the end of their agenda, McGillicuddy said. (The commission rarely completes its agenda despite long sessions.)

Councilman Wayne Womack said the commission never got instruction from the council to consider any item as a "moratorium item," and if it is, it "isn't carrying out the policy of the council.

The council directed commissioners to consider agenda items as they are submitted and if they don't get to a particular item at one meeting to place it at the start of the agenda at the next meeting.

The council also directed the planning commission to devote 50 per cent of its efforts to current planning and 50 per cent to advance planning.

McGillicuddy said the policy being followed by the planning commission was "morally and ethically wrong and will have a detrimental effect on the city."

Mill Valley Man Held For Court

Eric Ansley Van Horn, 21, of Mill Valley, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a felony charge of drunk driving. He is also accused of a misdemeanor count of killing a passenger through negligent driving.

He is to be arraigned April 26.

Van Horn was the driver of a pickup truck that went over an embankment March 25 near Muir Woods, according to the highway patrol.

A passenger, Eric Bryant Satterlie, 19, also of Mill Valley, was dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Sartain, A Two-Year Member, Is Mayor

F. Wayne Sartain, a member of the Novato City Council for two years, was elected mayor last night by the newly organized council.

Sartain succeeds Joseph D. Gargiulo, who retired from the council to run for Marin County superintendent of schools in 1974.

J. Wayne Womack, the city's first mayor and councilman for 10 of the city's 12-year history, who didn't seek reelection left his council seat with the comment: "I have been rewarded by the opportunity to serve Novato." He was given a standing ovation by an overflow audience.

Sworn into office were Fred R. Ruegg and Dorothy Pj Young and returning councilman David Price Jones, who served as an appointee during the past year.

Gargiulo said the council "has been spending too much time on administration and not enough on policy."

Gargiulo was given a plaque

F. WAYNE SARTAIN
Novato mayor

with a mounted gavel and Womack, a pipe smoker, a plaque with a pipe attached.

When the new council was seated, Jones nominated Sartain for mayor and he was elected unanimously.

Ruegg was unanimously elected mayor pro tempore after nomination by Mrs. Young.

The council adjourned until 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House for a special joint meeting with the City Environmental Quality Committee.

San Rafael Drug Arrest Trial Set June 7

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A jury trial has been set for June 7 in U.S. District Court for five persons arrested in a San Rafael parking lot March 21 in connection with a large quantity of amphetamine.

Pleading innocent Monday were Charles H. W. and Sandra Cannon, both of College Park, Md., and Duane Kenny, of no known address, who are charged with possessing amphetamines with intent to sell them.

Elliot and Joan Valderrama, who live in Oakland, pleaded innocent to charges of aiding and abetting the possession of the drug.

The arrest took place after five pounds of speed was handed over to undercover agents in a Northgate parking lot.

3 Petalumans Face Pot Charge

Three Petalumans were arrested yesterday on suspicion of possession of Marijuana.

Booked into Petaluma City Jail were Joseph Michael Aquila, 19; Evelyn Mary Salisbury, 23, both of 32 Lakeville Street; and John Allen Citrowske, 19, of 415 Cleveland Avenue.

Police said the three were arrested after Marijuana plants were seen growing in the window of the home on Lakeville Street. They were scheduled for arraignment today in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Sausalito Council Installs Before Harmony Disappears

By JAY GOODWIN

Sally Stanford, Evert H. Heynneman and Robin Sweeny took their seats on last night as television cameras whirred, flash bulbs flashed, and the overflow crowd received them with a wild ovation.

After all three signed the oath of office — Mrs. Sweeny for her second four-year term — the council unanimously elected Mrs. Sweeny mayor and Earl R. Dunphy mayor pro tem.

Resolutions of appreciaton were presented by the new mayor to out-going mayor Alexander R. Imlay and out-going councilman Wyman Hicks.

Harmony didn't last long between the council and the audience.

Mrs. Sweeny moved to appoint Heynneman a "committee of one" to review and evaluate the city's organizational structure, with particular emphasis on the city's planning apparatus. Heynneman had stressed the need for such a study during his recent campaign for office.

As soon as the appointment was announced, Edward R. Fitzsimmons, who described himself as "the largest property owner in Sausalito" leaped to his feet and branded the appointment "an inteilectually incestuous idea."

Fitzsimmons told the council that it was a closed body that had studied its own procedures more than enough.

"You have a conspiracy between your department heads," said Fitzsimmons. "If you really want to do a job with respect to zoning and planning, empanel a group of people that would represent all of Sausalito."

Fitzsimmons has been seeking city approval of a development on 162 acres on Wolfback Ridge for the past two years.

Despite the attack by Fitzsimmons and others on the proposed Heynneman study, Mrs. Sweeny informally authorized the new councilman to begin his evaluation.

Moments later, the temperature in the council chambers rose a few more degrees when the time schedule for the city's open space survey was considered.

Planning Director H. Eric Borgwardt suggested that survey teams composed, primarily, of city officials and staff, and one "citizen-at-large" should be established to catalog all of Sausalito's, remaining open space.

Once again, Fitzsimmons rose to his feet.

He told the council that there should be more citizens on the survey teams — including himself.

"In Sausalito, I am open space. I own 90 per cent of the open space in this city and I should be on the committee," said Fitzsimmons.

Mrs. Sweeny disagreed, citing Fitzsimmons's keen interest in his 162-acre tract as his disqualification.

A motion was finally made by Councilman Stephen A. Fraser and passed unanimously that would enlarge the representation of public citizens on the survey teams; alter the time sequence of the surveying procedure, and give top priority to surveying the open space aspects of the Fitzsimmons property.

The Sausalito City Council also:

PAINTING BIDS — Rejected all four bids for painting the exterior of city hall because of the wide discrepancy between the lowest bid — which was technically disqualified — and the other three.

PEDESTRIAN WALK — Held over to next meeting a recommendation from the planning commission to construct a pedestrian path between Harbor Drive and a proposed extension of Coloma Street.

NOISE ORDINANCE — Postponed until next meeting action on a proposed noise control ordinance, in order to allow Heynneman and Mrs. Stanford time to review the measure.

USE PERMIT — Granted a request from the Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District to extend for 60 days, until June 16, its conditional use permit for ferryboat operations.

TOPICS FUNDS — Passed a resoltuion of intent to spend $5,628 in federally provided street maintenance funds.

HOUSEBOAT ORDINANCE — Sent back to planning commission a working draft of an ordinance to regulate houseboats.

ADJOURNED — The council adjourned to a special study session Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Rafael Meadows Flood Zone Residents, Board To Meet

The Rafael Meadows flood control zone advisory board will meet next Wednesday with many dissatisfied residents expected to be on hand in an attempt to dissolve the zone.

The controversy was forwarded last month by the zone board to the county board of supervisors but Supervisor John F. McInnis had requested the matter be delayed so he can meet with the residents. He will be at Wednesday's meeting, according to Charles E. Murphy, county flood control engineer.

Disapproval of the zone and its effort to end flooding problems in the 250-home community located between Highway 101 and Los Ranchitos Road surfaced at the March 23 zone board meeting when a 156-signature petition was presented by residents in favor of killing the zone. A poll of the community found similary discontent, Murphy said.

Total flood control protection in the community, which often has been plagued by rain runoff, is estimated to cost $875,000. The zone's share of the expense, $700,000, would mean the owner of a $30,000 house would pay $1,950 over a 15-year period, Murphy said.

A partial solution that would cost the zone $400,000 would cost the same homeowner $1,100 over the same period, he said.

The zone master plan also will be discussed at Wednesday's meeting at 8 p.m. in room 322 at the Civic Center, Murphy said.

Reagan 'To Stay Involved' — Wife

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —Mrs. Ronald Reagan believes her husband will "remain involved" in politics and help chart the future of the national Republican party when his gubernatorial term expires in 1974.

"He is very concerned as to the direction the Republican party takes, not only in California, but in the country, and he certainly wants a voice in that determination," Mrs. Reagan said in her weekly Sunday column in the Sacramento Union.

"Now whether this means actually holding office again, I don't know —nor does he," she added.

Rare Fever In Corte Madera

A disease that's rare in California and even rarer in Marin County has been contracted by a Corte Madera resident, according to the Marin County Health Department.

In a weekly report of communicable diseases in the county, Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, health officer, said one case of "Q fever" had turned up in Corte Madera.

The disease, sometimes called "tick fever" and carried by animals, is unplesant but not fatal, according to health officers. Symptoms include chills fevers, headaches and general malaise.

Other communicable diseases reported in Marin last week were 16 cases of gonorrhea; 8 of streptoccocus infections, six of syphillis, one of tuberculosis, six of infectious hepatitis and one of shigella.

Larkspur's new mayor firmly rang curfew on the Little King Mountain grading controversy shortly before last midnight.

Mayor William G. Fleckles continued the hearing to 8 p.m. May 1 after a two-and-three-quarter-hour session last night in the St. Patrick's Parish meeting hall across the street from Larkspur City Hall. The hearing attracted 200 persons.

The city council was hearing the Adolph A. Tiscornia estate's appeal against the city planning commission's denial of a grading permit in a marathon hearing Feb. 15. Alice B. Copeland Vincilione, executrix of the estate, and her husband Paul, want to escavate up to 360,000 yards from the crown of Little King, which the estate owns. They plan to put most of the fill on the Tiscornia-owned marshlands on the north side of Magnolia Avenue.

Several audience members complained last night that they would rather extend the meeting to permit opponents to speak. But Fleckles announced when he convened the hearing at 9 p.m. that he'd adjourn the session by 11:30, and he almost met his deadline.

"I for one have worked 15 hours today and I don't intend to work 17 hours," he said at 11:30 p.m. "I do not intend to have a 2 or 3 o'clock decision."

The council got to hear only the applicants' spokesmen — planning consultant Dan Coleman and attorney Wallace S. Myers — and city staff members plus two Larkspur citizens favoring the permit, before the curfew.

Fleckles then polled the opposition. After writing down names of 13 would-be speakers, he estimated that the hearing would take at least two more hours before the councilmen could even begin deliberations.

So far, the council's hearing on Little King has been an almost word-for-word repeat of the presentation before the planning commission.

Attorney Myers, last night laid even heavier stress on claims that the "city's own experts" were not opposed to the permit, and that the city was "required" to issue the permit because the Vinciliones could meet all the requirements of the city ordinances.

Councilman Neil Brixon recalled that the planning commission had stressed inclusion of the crown of Little King in the North Ridge open space proposal. He asked Myers how much the Vinciliones wanted for the property, which lies both in and outside Larkspur city limits. Brixon also wanted to know how much time open space campaigners would be allowed to negotiate for the property.

"I can't make a price, but it is for sale," Myers replied. "If any public agency wants it, let them step forward and make an offer."

"My buying habits are to ask the price first," Brixon countered. He asked that the Vinciliones make ther terms known to the council at or before the next session on the grading issue.

Residents James Niven of 31 Niven Way and Dexter Oakley of 400 Murray Avenue were the only pro-permit speakers in the audience. Both praised Coleman's plans for hiding the Little King grading behind existing trees, and Niven said "if it weren't for previous fills, where would a lot of us be in Larkspur today?"

The May 1 continuation of the hearing will begin in the city hall, then move either back to the parish hall or another site if the audience overcrowds the council chambers, City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst announced.

Member Resigns Planning Board

Stanley W. Little, a long-time member of the Fairfax Park and Recreation Commission, has been forced to step down because he is moving across the street.

Little, who lives in Olema Drive, told the city council in a letter he was leaving office effective Monday because he is moving his family a short distance to a new home in Oak Manor, outside the city limits.

Little has been a member of the commission for more than seven years.

Larkspur Has Change Of Command

Larkspur City Council change-of-command ceremonies last night gave the city its first woman council member in its 64-year history, Joan Sestak.

New councilman Robert H. Lee also took office, and councilman William G. Fleckles was sworn in for his second term and then elected mayor. Alfred J. Malvino was elected vice mayor.

Outgoing Mayor Earl J. O'Grady and Councilman Benton A. Sifford Jr. were bade farewell. O'Grady was given the honorary plaque and gavel by Fleckles. The Larkspur Volunteer Firemen's Association gave the new mayor a gavel.

Councilman Neil Brixon gave Mrs. Sestak a bouquet of roses, and said she also would undoubtedly become Larkspur's first woman mayor during her four years in office.

Fleckles then announced a special meeting would be held at 7:30 p.m. April 27 to interview candidates for Lee's former seat on the city planning commission. He said that Mrs. Sestak's seat on the Larkspur Library board also would have to be filled, at some later date.

The council voted unanimously to approve hiring a consultant firm, Larry Smith and Co., for a $4,300 feasibility study on formation of a redevelopment agency to speed creation of a regional shopping center either from the existing smaller Bon Air Shopping Center or in the quarry area east of Highway 101, to compete with Corte Madera's planned new center east of 101.

Mrs. Sestak questioned why the matter could not wait to be put on the agenda for the council's next regular meeting in two weeks. City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst explained that the city was in a race to attract major tenents to the proposed centers, and councilman Alfred J. Malvino declared, "we need the sales tax revenue very badly."

Changes On Sunday In Bus Routes

Several changes in transbay bus schedules will take effect on Sunday, Golden Gate Bridge District officials announced today.

The new sihedules, the third version to be printed since service began in January, are available aboard district buses and at its ticket outlets. The changes are aimed at speeding service and making the best use of the fleet, district officals said.

The major changes are on the following routes:

Route 2 — Half-hourly service between San Francisco and Sausalito will be added on weekends and holidays between 9:43 a.m. and 7:37 p.m., replacing the present Route 27 service which until now has been routed through Sausalito instead of over the Waldo Grade between San Francisco and San Anselmo.

Routes 4 and 5 — Weekend and holiday service will be replaced and consolidated into a new Route 10, which will run between Tiburon and San Francisco via Mill Valley early mornings and late evenings when Route 2 is not operating. Route 4 is between Mill Valley and San Francisco, and Route 5 is between Sausalito and Tiburon via Mill Valley.

Route 28 — This will be replaced by the new Toure 2.

Route 54 — Daily hourly service will be extended to San Marin. The route now is between Novato and San Francisco via a stop in San Rafael.

San Anselmo Has Perry As Mayor

In a polite ceremony in San Anselmo last night, Warren R. Perry, a councilman for two years, was elected mayor of the city without opposition.

The four winners in the April election were also sworn in and each was applauded by the audience of about 50.

Smiles predominated except on the face of James F. Reed, who was ousted ic a close race for another term and was replaced last night.

Reed filed yesterday for a recount of the final tally which showed he fell 12 votes short of reelection.

The two top votegetters, incumbent Kenneth L. Anderson with 1,090 votes and Dr. Martin G. Blinder with 1,078, were sworn in along with city clerk Helen J. Ragan and treasurer William P. Franchini.

Perry, a 41-year-old attorney, was selected by his fellow councilmen without opposition, and Lewis W. Stewart was elected vice mayor.

WARREN R. PERRY

Perry served on the planning commission for seven years before his election to the council in 1970. He succeeds Anderson as mayor.

The Associated Students is sponsoring the program in conjunction with the community services office on campus.

Tower Illegal, Opponents Say

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Opponents of the Mt. Sutro television tower charged Monday that the 981-foot structure was illegal.

Joseph T. Henke, an assistant professor of law at the University of San Francisco, said in Superior Court that the building permit for the tower expired before construction began in February 1971.

A taxpayers' suit filed by Henke said a conditional use permit issued May 17, 1966, expired three years later. The city Planning Commission gave final approval of the design on Sept. 10, 1970.

A.H. Constant, president of Sutro Tower, Inc., said the tower would improve the city's TV reception which he described as "the worst in America."

San Anselmo Act Stalled By Blinder

Dr. Martin G. Blinder, who joined the San Anselmo City Council last night, made his first official stand in favor of the birds and bees and maybe even an elm beetle or two.

City Engineer Charles R. Leitzell wanted the council to award a $983 bid to Sohner Tree Service to spray the city's elm trees against the ravages of the elm beetle.

Blinder, however, convinced the council to study alternatives with a speech on the evils of sevin, an insecticide Sohner would spray on the trees. The council put the issue over to May 9.

"We have no Dutch Elm disease in California and I wonder if in this case we are not using a weapon more lethal than the insect we are trying to control," the psychiatrist said.

He said sevin is lethal to bees and can kill birds too, but Leitzell quoted two University of California experts who said the insecticide is one of the least deadly. He admitted it kills bees, but added bees wouldn't be in the trees when they are sprayed because the trees won't be in bloom.

However, Blinder continued to insist that another chemical, probably rotenone, should be used. It wouldn't kill all the beetles, he said, but that would be acceptable because the bug in California does not carry the Dutch Elm disease so widespread on the east coast.

"What the beetle does here is defoliate the trees and leave a mess under the trees," Lietzell said.

"We have a choice between getting hit by falling beetles or falling bees," Blinder offered.

While important to Blinder, the fate of the beetles apparently wasn't so crucial to City Atty. John J. Buresh. Asked for a legal opinion, he admitted, "I really wasn't listening."

Hub Commission's Meeting Canceled

Tonight's scheduled meeting of the San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Commission has been canceled for lack of a quorum, according to Gary Howell, city parks and recreation director. The next meeting will be held at 8 p.m. May 3 in the city hall.

The commission is looking for applicants for a replacement for its teen-age member, Dan Danner, who has resigned, Howell said.

Santa Rosa Man Hurt In Accident

David C. Ledbetter, 30, of Santa Rosa, was traated at Hillcrest Hospital for a back injury suffered when his car overturned at 6:40 p.m. yesterday on Petaluma Boulevard North near Gossage Avenue, Petaluma.

According to the California Highway Patrol, he said he swerved his car to avoid hitting a dog in the road and overturned in a ditch.

Planners Overturned

The San Anselmo City Council last night overturned the city's planning commission on one variance, then immediately afterward upheld the commission on a somewhat similar appeal.

Ira Shinebarger, an elderly man due to retire soon, wanted side and rear yard variances to add a bedroom to his home at 37 Yolanda Drive.

The planning commission turned him down April 13 on a split vote saying he had shown no hardship as required by the city code. The majority said he had a large level lot with plenty of room to expand within allowable setbacks.

But only two co ncilmer agreed. Kenneth L. Anderson, said "We have a government of laws and not of men. I don't see where the variance meets the criteria as called for by the ordinance," and Warren R. Perry echoed the opinion.

"I feel it is a bad precedent to grant a variance where there seems to be a failure to comply with the ordinance," Perry said.

But Councilmen Lewis W. Stewart, Dr. Martin G. Blinder and Woodrow V. Capurro voted in favor of Shinebarger without much comment.

Only Capurro voted in favor of the second appeal. Joe V. Whiteley, an elderly retired man, wanted to build a garage on an existing concrete pad to store his boat, but he needed a sideyard setback variance to do it.

The planning commission, again by a split vote, ruled Feb. 28 Whiteley showed no hardship or special circumstance to warrant a variance for his property at 11 Terrace Avenue.

Councilmen said the property is too crowded with cars, trucks, the boat and a trailer in the nront yard.

Stewart said, "I can't see that constructing this additional storage area is adding anything to the lot."

But Capurro argued, "Sometimes you have to go beyond what is written down. Sometimes you have to read between the lines something that isn't there."

Reports Dog Stolen

Charles Morain of Sebastopol told Petaluma police yesterday that his dog valued at $155 was stolen from his pickup truck while parked at 214 Prospect Street. The dog was described as a four-month-old pug, light tan with a dark stripe down its back and a black face.

Three Injured In San Rafael

A San Rafael woman and two children, injured when the car in which they were riding rolled over on Highway 101 near the San Rafael Avenue overpass yesterday, were treated at Marin General Hospital for cuts and bruises, according to a hospital spokesman.

Daisy C. Gonzales, 24, of 22 Knoll Way, San Rafael, received scrapes on the left side of her face. Daisy Dedina, 13, of the same address, received a cut lower lip and Robin Dedina, 11, same address, received a scrape on the left cheek.

California Highway Patrol officers said the southbound car rolled over about 7:30 p.m. yesterday.

Six-Year Member To Direct Corte Madera

Holmes S. (Pete) Norville, 46, a member of the Corte Madera Town Council since 1966, was unanimously reelected mayor last night by his fellow councilmen.

Holmes had served in the same capacity for the past year. It is not customary in Corte Madera to rotate the mayorship annually, according to town clerk Betty Behel.

Also unanimously reelected last night was the vice mayor, Harold B. Wagstaff.

The council also last night authorized a recount of votes from last week's election for Herber C. Leney, who lost a seat on the council by four votes.

The mayor named new Councilman Robert J. Flahive, leading vote getter in the election, to the police and fire committee along with Wagstaff.

Edward W. Colthurst and Robert P. Simmons, who kept his seat by the narrow margin over Leney, were appointed to the finance committee and Simmons and the mayor to the public works committee.

Reelected mayor

The Corte Madera Town Council Also:

COMMITTEES — Named Colthurst and Simmons to the finance committee, Wagstaff and Flahive to the police and fire committee and Simmons and Norville to the public works committee.

BUSINESSES — Introduced an ordinance to allow a business in a home when neighbors are not bothered, back for adoption May 1.

FEES — Returned a fee schedule proposed for design review applications to city staff for clarification.

CASA MADERA — Concurred 4-1 with town planning commission rejection of Johnny Ribeiro Inc.'s plans for 114 units at 66 Tamal Vista Boulevard. Colthurst objected, claiming the rejection was negative, and should have been constructive criticism. The county public hearing on the Casa Madera project will be April 24 at the Civic Center.

MARINA — Concurred 4-0-1 with planning commission rejection of Frank Burke's plans for a 355-boat marina on a 93-acre marsh. Norville abstained.

TENNIS — Heard that the city expects estimates May 15 on the construction of tennis courts in East Corte Madera; adopted enabling legislation allowing the town to make rules governing "various town facilities," aimed at tennis courts, and adopted a resolution setting 15 rules for town tennis court use.

HOURS — Adopted an ordinance setting town hall hours from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. It previously opened at 8:30 a.m.

VACATION —Amended the municipal code relating to employees vacations.

HOUSING — Set a public hearing on the proposed housing element of the general plan for 7:30 p.m. May 15.

SIGNS — Set a public hearing on a proposed amendment to the city's sign ordinance for 7:30 p.m. June 5.

STOP SIGNS — Rejected a request from the Joseph C. Wagners of 33 Birch Avenue, asking for stop signs on Birch at its intersection with Lakeside Drive.

LOT LINES — Approved redrawing lot lines around two existing houses on what had been six lots on Redwood Avenue near the Marin Municipal Water District tank.

CARNIVALS — Learned that no more carnivals will be held at the Corte Madera Center.

MEETINGS — Authorized Arthur N. Morrison, director of public works, to attend the American Public Works Association Western Regional Conference May 7-10 in San Diego at an estimated cost of $180.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. May 1.

Freshman Councilman Loses Round

Freshman Corte Madera Town Councilman Robert J. Flahive lost his opening round 4 to 1 against the status quo last night when he failed to get the council to guarantee it would make no binding agreements on the Madera del Presidio development until after the referendum issue is settled.

The request reached the council in a letter from L. P. Weingarth, president of the Marin Estates Homeonwers' Association. Although the group, itself, has declined to take a stand on the referendum, three of its members are behind the petition.

Weingarth urged the council "to delay entering into any agreements with the developers until such time as the citizenry has had the chance to sign or refuse signing the (referendum) . . . petition and cast their vote regarding this rezoning, should an election on the matter eventuate."

The petition seeks a rezoning of the land from present R-2, planned unit development zone, to R-1 or single family dwelling zone.

Flahive drew applause from interested residents when he said "I think we should take positive action tonight."

During discussion on the matter, which culminated with the letter being filed, councilmen made three basic arguments against such a policy:

Mayor Holmes S. (Pete) Norville said it would violate the principle of government by law and not by emotion. He said at one point there was no way he could see how the council could avoid entering into an agreement with the developer, given existing laws.

Councilman Robert P. Simmons said the group may not know what it would get with the R-1 zoning, should its campaign be successful, suggesting that it might entail greater density and more cut and fill than Madera del Presidio does now.

Norville also said the council will not commit itself without a concrete reason. The residents, he said, could not know to what they were objecting, since no plans to which they could sensibly object have been approved by the planning commission.

Councilman Edward W. Colthurst agreed with Norville, as did councilman Harold B. Wagstaff, who said he had never seen a Development proposal scrutinized as closely as Madera del Presidio since 1958 when he entered town government.

Pharmast Will Serve As Mayor

Pharmacist Arthur N. Roberts was elected mayor last night by the Rohnert Park City Council.

Roberts, 41, served as vice mayor last year and had served as mayor in 1968. He has been on the council since 1966 and owns and operates the Rohnert Park Pharmacy.

Armando Flores, a teacher at Martin Luther King School in Sausalito, was elected vice mayor.

Holdover councilmen Warren K. Hopkins and Vernon P. Smith were given the oath of office along with newly elected Louis G. Beary. Both Beary and Hopkins are recent graduates of Sonoma State College.

Brown Sets Campaign Fund Guides

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Declaring that the political campaign disclosure law has been "openly evaded" for decades, Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. yesterday announced guidelines designed to end "secret political fundraising."

Brown, a Democrat, said that although $26 million was reported spent in the 1970 elections, many reports of campaign contributions and expenditures showed "substantial deviation" from state law.

Asked about the report filed by Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan, Brown replied that it did not comply in some respects but declined to go into detail.

Brown, the son of former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, said the new regulations would go into effect for the June primary.

If candidates do not comply, Brown — the state's chief election officer —said he could refuse to put them on the November ballot in cases where they win the primary, ask district attorneys to prosecute or seek a court injunction to force disclosure.

In a statement released to a news conference, Brown declared, "I believe it is essential for taxpayers to know who is bankrolling political campaigns, to know the names of fat-cat contributors who pay into political war chests."

He added, "Much of this money is delivered and spent behind a cloak of secrecy ...

"For decades our contribution disclosure laws have been openly evaded. Money has been funneled through dummy committees. Code words and mysterious abbreviations have been used in campaign contribution reports."

The new rules apply to virtually all campaigns except those for minor local office.

Brown listed some of the 1970 descriptions of sources of campaign contributions which would be unacceptable under the new regulations. They included a "Dutch friend," "A-6 memberships" and a "reception."

Under the new guidelines, candidates will be required to give the full name of each contributor and his locality, but not his address.

Brown distributed a 68-page booklet, resembling the Internal Revenue Service's tax pamphlet, which detailed instructions for reporting and provided forms.

The regulations require political committees to file detailed reports explaining where they receive their money and how they spend it. The committees will have to list an officer of the committee and how he can be reached, Brown said.

The guidelines also will require lobbyists who contribute to election campaigns to list the clients who provided the funds and the amount.

Major Joint Effort Set On Sewage Plans

MARTINEZ (UPI) —Two federal agencies have signed an agreement with the state Water Resources Control Board to develop a sewage management plan for the San Francisco Bay and Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta region.

The Army Corps of Engineers and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency will join with the state agency in the vast planning project. The agreement was announced Monday night at the outset of a hearing conducted by the three agencies.

It was described as the first such agreement to be signed between the federal government's two top environmental agencies and a state government.

The Army Engineers will prepare the master plan, which envisages reclamation of sewage water for irrigation, industry and home use.

"The proposed coordination program avoids potential duplication of efforts and insures the maximum use of available data and professional expertise available to all these agencies," the announcement said.

The master plan will cover the counties of Contra Costa, San Mateo, San Francisco, Alameda, Santa Clara, Napa, Solano, Yolo, Sacramento and San Joaquin, a region with a population of 5.5 million.

'Shaking Table' Will Simulate Earthquake

BERKELEY (UPI)—Sixty-six years after San Francisco was leveled by a massive earthquake, engineers today unveiled for the first time a machine able to produce even greater shocks.

Full-scale structures used in skyscrapers, freeway overpasses and dams can be toppled by the machine, the largest earthquake simulator in the U.S. constructed at the University of California in Berkeley.

The purpose of the 20-foot square "shaking table," built at a cost of $800,000 by the Earthquake Engineering Research Center, is not to destroy.

It is to measure the touchness of building materials, their capacity to absorb energy without collapsing and the strength of structural designs —as earthquake-proof as possible.

Prof. Joseph Penzien, the center's director, said that although are large simulators operating in other countries none are as sophisticated as the Berkeley model in producing effects the same as earthquakes.

Rare Albino Bear At Helsinki Zoo

HELSINKI (UPI)—A rare albino bear has been born to a couple of brown bears at the Helsinki Zoo, a spokesman said today.

"I bet he is going to be the pet of everybody," Ilkka Koivisto, superintendent of the zoo, said. "He is cute even though his snout looks more like that of a pig."

The albino bear was born Jan. 1 to a pair of brown bears. His twin brother is normal.

Isle Plan Changes Approved

The Larkspur Architectural Review board has approved modifications of a landscape plan for Larkspur Isle and the design of several apartment developments.

Board member John W. Appleton said seven representatives of Shareholders Capital Programs, developer of Larkspur Isle, suppested changes in the originally approved landscape plan around the development's 186 finished units.

After some modifications, the board recommended the plans to the city planning commission at its meeting next Tuesday night.

The board also approved, and sent to the planning commission, plans for a six-unit apartment house on Corte Madera Creek at 855 South Eliseo drive, submitted by John and Estelle Moran; a 22-unit multi-family housing project by Plantech Corp. at 45 Corte Real and a five-unit apartment project at 805 South Eliseo Drive, also by Plantech.

A Frenchwoman's Personal Look At Nixon Adviser

PARIS (UPI)—A French paperback published this week gives a portrait of Henry Kissinger by a French woman journalist who fell in love with him while on assignment in Washington.

"Dear Henry" tells of the unrequited love of 49-year-old Danielle Hunebelle, journalist, author and film producer, for President Nixon's national security adviser.

Miss Hunebelle said she wrote the book because she "could not forgive" Kissinger for betraying "the sacred character of friendship."

She referred to an incident when Kissinger passed through Paris last July on his way back, as it was later disclosed, from Peking. She said the "betrayal" was Kissinger's dining out with Margaret Osmer, an associate producer for Columbia Broadcasting System (CBS) television, during his short stopover in Paris.

House In Bay Permit Pending

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A permit application to build a two-family house on pilings in the bay in Tiburon will be heard by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission tomorrow.

The commission will meet at 2 p.m. in Room 1194 of the Stae Building, 455 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco.

Also on the agenda will be a staff report on a new dredging policy and a report by the commission's engineering criteria review board on problems of settling and earthquake safety on bay fill.

The Tiburon permit is a reapplication by Raymond G. Handley for a project at 2308 Mar East Street rejected by the commission last October, when it got only eight of the 13 necessary votes. The vote was a rare rejection of a staff recommendation.

Bad Altimeter May Have Caused Crash

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Faulty altimeter readings appear to be the most likely reason a jetliner crashed short of the Huntington, W.Va., airport in 1970, killing members of the Marshall University football team, a government report said today.

Seventy-five persons, including the football players, coaches and fans, died when the Southern Airways DC-9 charter crashed into trees near the airport, which is located on a hilltop.

Marin Supervisors Endorse Behr Bill

State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, won endorsement of his revised "wild rivers" bill by a split, 3-2 vote of the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday.

Behr appeared personally to explain his proposal to bar new dams for 25 years from the Eel, Trinity, Klamath, Smith and American rivers. He failed to win the votes of Supervisors John F. McInnis and Louis H. Barr. The dissenters cited the destructive floods of past years, and criticism by Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District.

The supervisors last week requested that Behr or a representative speak to them before they acted on the lawmaker's request they endorse SB 107.

Because "I still have a picture I saw of the desolation" in the last decade's floods there," McInnis said.

"A law is open for amendment in the Legislature every year," Behr said.

"But once the 25-year law gets in, it will be hard to get out," Baar argued. "If the bill gets in, northerners won't get it out, because they won't have the clout. But Southern California will, if they want the water."

Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

COURTHOUSE — Referred to the board's committee studying the sale of the old courthouse site in San Rafael a question of whether 40 per cent of the land should be kept as open space or available for public use. County attorneys have urged the land be kept open for public use.

ROAD — Approved unanimously changing the name of Quarry Road at McNear's Beach to Cantera Way — which means "quarry" in Spanish. The renaming was approved to avoid conflicts with other Quarry roads in Marin.

HOUSEBOAT — Warned owners of Richardson Bay houseboat marinas that the county will activate a lawsuit if the marinas are not brought up to health and safety standards within approved time limits. Also, the county will ask the Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board to impose fines if improvement delays continue.

WATER PLANT — Approved unanimously plans for expansion of water treatment plant facilities at the Marin Municipal Water District's San Geronimo Valley plant.

SCHIZOPHRENIC — Referred to the Mental Health Advisory Board a proposed program for treating schizophrenic young adults in Marin once the state phases out such treatment.

CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS — Continued to Tuesday consideration of the county's proposed $37.5 million capital improvement program for the next six years. Tennis players voiced support for a tennis and swim center before the matter was continued.

WELFARE — Authorized paying up to $1,527 per month for a new assistant welfare director to replace Elizabeth Coyle who will retire June 30.

APPOINTMENTS — Approved appointing Genie Gabel of 19 Ridge Avenue, San Rafael, to the Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee. Accepted the resignation of Herbert M. Hanson Jr. from the Marin County Aviation Commission. Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni called for applicants to fill the seat, for a term expiring July 1, 1973.

PARKING — Adopted ordinances limiting parking to two hours on the westerly side of Reed Boulevard in the Strawberry area, and banning parking on the easterly side of Toussin Avenue between Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Geary Avenue in Kentfield.

UNDERGROUND — Approved creation of an assessment district to install underground utilities for 150 homes in Oceana Marin Unit 5, at a cost of $286 per lot. Ordered payment of $6,355 for engineering services to the assessment district.

CONSULTANT — Approved retaining Dr. Frederick W. Coe as substitute medical consultant to the Department of Public Social Services whenever the regular consultant, Dr. Leo Wagner, is absent. Coe will be paid $25 per hour up to a maximum of 26 hours per month.

HOMEMAKERS — Approved creation of new job classifications of homemaker I and II, and modified the county's wage contract to provide for the new positions. Workers will assist in household management for homes receiving services from the Department of Public Social Services.

CLEAN-UP — Voted only 3-2 (four votes were needed) in favor of Mrs. Jean Berensmeier's request that the county donate $270 towards the annual San Geronimo Valley "Cleanup and Recycle Country Style" slated for Saturday and Sunday. Supervisors John F. McInnis and Peter R. Arrigoni blocked the funds on grounds it could not be done for all communities.

FLOODING — Refused to spend county funds to alleviate flooding on private land at Atherton and Palm avenues, following a third hearing on the issue since late 1970. Attorney John G. Buresh argued unsuccessfully for owners of the trailer court and neighbors that county drainage changes had caused the problem.

POVERTY WAR — Approved interim reduction of the 36-member board of the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council to 24 members, eliminating representatives of the board of supervisors and housing authority, Novato, Larkspur, Marin Council for Civic Affairs, Senior Citizens Coordinating Council and others. Eventual goal is to trim the board to 15 members, the supervisors were told.

FAIR EMPLOYMENT — Referred to the county personnel commission for review, a survey of the county's hiring and wage practices relating to women and minorities, along with county Personnel Director Maren W. Rinne's comments on the report.

BOY SCOUTS — Instructed Thomas F. Campanella, assistant county administrator, to hold to the rules on rental deposits and insurance coverage for a "commercial" Boy Scout fund-raising event at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building and fairgrounds.

PRELIMINARY PLAN — Set 8 p.m. May 16 for a board workshop discussion of the Marin Countywide Preliminary Plan.

STREET — Approved contract with developer V. Turski and Associates for construction of Seminary Drive between Ricardo Road and the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary and accepted two deeds for right of way.

BLACK POINT — Accepted deed from Thomas R. and Elizabeth Anne Griffin for property needed to expand the parking area at the public boat launching ramp beneath the Petaluma River Bridge.

CORTE MADERA CREEK — Accepted without comment a report from Ray W. Foreaker Jr., public works director, that the stalled Corte Madera Creek flood control project would give no additional protection if it were continued to the Lagunitas Road Bridge. Flooding will remain likely until Phase Four is completed, the Army Corps of Engineers advised Foreaker. Supervisors approved a recommendation by Joseph A. Forest, deputy County Council, that his affice be allowed to defend Flood Control Zone 9 against litigation by the Town of Ross over the drainage controversy.

REGIONAL PARK — Approved Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste's request that the parks and recreation staff begin work on drafting a regional park proposal for the November ballot.

LUCAS VALLEY — Unanimously approved Supervisor John F. McInnis's proposal for a resolution commending the Lucas Valley Homeowners Association for its unique success in passing a $315,000 bond election to preserve open space.

FERRYBOATS — Voted unanimously to endorse the Golden Gate Bridge District's application for an $18 million federal grant for ferry board transit and bus acquisition. Baptiste said he objected to district timetables for implementation, but not to the grant itself.

DOOMED — The Olema Hotel, a noteworthy hostel when built 80 years ago and for many years more recently a derelict structure, shows the scars of time and abuse. The old building has been condemned by the Marin County Board of Supervisors and faces destruction.

80-Year-Old Olema Hotel Is Facing Demolition Once Again

The 80-year-old Olema Hotel was ordered demolished yesterday.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors declared the aging structure a fire hazard to the entire community.

The board, on a 4-to-1 vote with Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste dissenting, gave owner Ruth M. Ruoff 60 days to abate the old landmark before county wrecking crews move in.

Yesterday's fiat was not the first time the old building has been threatened with destruction. In 1965 and 1966, county officials ordered the two-story inn razed bacause the long-vacant building was being used by transients.

Each time Mrs. Ruoff won a stay of the order by boarding up the building. However, then and in the years following, the boards were repeatedly removed by trespassing lodgers.

"If that building goes, the whole town goes," warned county fire chief Richard D. Pedroli. "There's just not enough water to fight a fire there."

San Rafael attorney Eugene B. Ceccotti, representing Mrs. Ruoff, urged the board to delay abatement proceeding because his client is working on a deal to sell the property.

He said Mrs. Ruoff, who resides in San Rafael, can not finance demolition of the building which includes valuable redwood timbers.

The board, however, following the lead of Supervisor Louis H. Baar, ruled that the threat posed by the deteriorating hotel was too great to delay abatement more than 60 days.

Reagan Says His Taxes Are Paid

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan, who was criticized for paying no state income tax last year, said Sunday he has paid both state and federal taxes this year."

Reagan, who earned $49,100 as governor in 1971, declined in a television interview to disclose his state tax for the past year. He said he "hand delivered" his state return last week.

Democrats charged Reagan with hypocrisy when it was learned he paid no state income tax on his 1970 earnings.

A Farm Bureau Rift On Rezoning Policy

A rift among members of the Marin County Farm Bureau surfaced yesterday over the controversial rezoning of the county's sprawling agricultural preserve.

Appearing before the Marin County Board of Supervisors, Rancher Robert Clark said the bureau's land use committee was in support of the rezoning as a means of protecting the agricultural industry. (Another board of supervisors story, page 1.)

No sooner had Clark finished his statement, however, than he was challenged by dairyman Waldo Giacomini of Point Reyes Station. "Was that approved by the (bureau's) board of directors?" asked Giacomini, himself a director. "It's my understanding that it wasn't."

Clark replied that he thought it was, but wasn't sure. He said, however, his committee supported it.

The farm bureau board has gone on record as opposing the rezoning which would limit development within the 210,000-acre preserve to one home per 60 acres.

Giacomini and others — including some nonagricultural land owners — have criticized the proposal as unfairly reducing the market value of their land.

They have argued that the rezoning will block future sale of their land which is becoming less and less economical to ranch.

However, Clark said yesterday that a survey by his committee showed agriculture is still a viable industry in which most surveyed intend to stay.

"In regard to the question of who are in most need of protective measure (rezoning), we concur with the areas as described in Mr. (Bert W.) Broemmel's report," Clark said.

As reported in Monday's Independent-Journal, County Assessor Broemmel has recommended only the northern half of the preserve be rezoned.

The county planning department and various conservation groups have recommended the entire preserve he rezoned to forestall the pressures of urban growth on the agricultural industry.

Supervisors yesterday reviewed Broemmel's report and referred it along with two others from the farm advisor and agricultural commissioner to the county planning commission for study.

ANGELA'S GUNS — Four weapons registered to Angela Davis, found in the bullet-ridden van in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three others died, are now in evidence in her trial in San Jose. A state ballistics expert testified that a shell from the strange looking shotgun (center) which had both the handle and barrel sawed off, killed the judge. All the guns have plastic guards over the triggers at the orders of Judge Richard E. Arnason.

Trustees View Plan For School

A plan for Central School class reorganization was heard by the Fairfax School District board at last night's meeting, according to district secretary Gwyneth R. McGee.

Central principal Jack Usilton presented the plan which he said will provide more individualized instruction at all grade levels.

The board was impressed by the plan and will decide its adoption at the next meeting, Miss McGee said. Meanwhile, a copy of the plan is being sent to parents.

The plan lumps together kindergarten and first-grade students, second and third-grade, third and fourth, fourth and fifth, and fifth and sixth. Two additional classes for second through sixth grades also are included, and materials would be geared to all ages, Miss McGee said.

The reorganization, if approved, would take place with the start of next school year.

The Fairfax School District board also:

SALARY — Heard salary committee requests of 5.5 per cent pay raises for certificated and classified personnel, to be effective next school year. The board will discuss the matter during its May 2 budget session.

FESTIVAL — Set this year's fine arts festival for 1 p.m. May 7 at White Hill School. Children will exhibit their handiwork.

CALENDAR — Adopted next year's school calendar which calls for school to start Sept. 11 and end June 15, 1973, to include 177 days of instruction.

GIFT — Accepted a $250 gift in behalf of Deer Park School to buy science equipment at the school. The money was presented by the Deer Park Parent-Teacher Association.

MEETING — Adjourned to its next meeting, May 2 at 7:45 p.m. at White Hill School, when a budget session will be held.

Board To Consider Marin County Order

The Muir Beach Community Services District board tonight will consider a county order that it take "corrective action" to eliminate a conflict of interest between a staff officer and board member.

According to county officials, the board illegally hired the husband of one director last November to serve as general manager.

A letter was sent earlier this month advising that either director Mary Mosteller resign her post or her husband, Gordon, quit his $500-per month job.

Last week, the Muir Beach Inprovement Association asked county officials to "find some way" to keep both Mr. and Mrs. Mosteller at their posts since the loss of either "will markedly impair the effectiveness of the district . . ."

County auditor-controller Michael Mitchell said today there are no laws sanctioning conflicts of interest and doubted the state legislature would consider enacting one for Muir Beach.

Tonight's meeting is slated for 8 o'clock at the Edward C. Clark residence, 50 Starbreck Drive, Muir Beach.

Burglary Case To Higher Court

Two San Francisco men accused of burglary and having stolen property have been bound over to Marin Superior Court after a preliminary hearing in municipal court.

Walter James Brock, 30, and Vernon James Robinson, 23, who had claimed to be Melvin Carl Allen, are to appear for arraignment in the higher court Monday.

They were arrested April 4 by Sausalito police who said they found them burglarizing the home of Helme W. Schweikert at 5 Cloudview Trail.

San Rafael Youth Accused Of Entry

Christopher J. Wooton, 18, of San Rafael was arraigned today in Marin Superior Court on charges of burglary and possessing stolen property. He is to plead tomorrow.

Wooton was arrested with three others Feb. 27 outside Zahia Vista School in San Rafael after the door to the school had been forced open, setting off a silent alarm.

Petalumans Oppose Shop Center Plan

Plans for a neighborhood shopping center brought howls of protest last night before the Petaluma Planning Commission.

Norman Rollins had sought rezoning for a small shopping center on South McDowell Boulevard at Caulfield Lane Extension, but the proposal was tabled under a barrage of complaints.

Plans include a service station, convenience market, drug store and other small shops. Neighbors submitted a petition of opposition with 142 signatures and predicted traffic problems would be caused by the development.

Neighbors also complained that convenience shops would also cause noise problems, disturbingly bright lights, litter and a police problem.

The commission told Rollins it would take another look at the plan when traffic problems are studied more thoroughly and when he can present plans for devleopment of the remainder of the property.

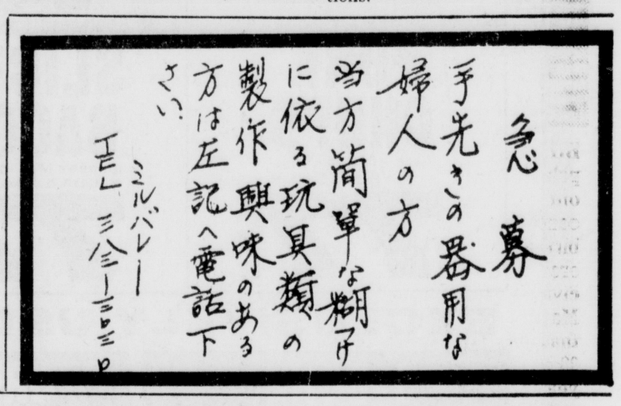
The Petaluma Planning Commission also:

MOTEL — Approved plans by James Codding for a motel adjacent to Sonoma Joe's Restaurant. Commissioner Robert E. Daly cast the lone dissenting vote, saying it did not conform to the recently approved environmental design plan.

RESTAURANT — Approved plans by Carlo A. Patocchi to rezone land at 219 Lakeville Street for the future Tivoli Restaurant-Bar.

SUBDIVISION — Approved the request of Valley Green Co. to rezone land off South McDowell Boulevard for the future 101-unit Cambridge Square subdivision.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. to consider three requests for service stations.



Angela's Attorneys Seek To Bar Letters

SAN JOSE (UPI)—Angela Davis' attorneys today asked Judge Richard E. Aranason to bar from evidence four love letters between the black militant and slain convict George Jackson on grounds they were illegally taken from Miss Davis' Los Angeles apartment.

The FBI entered the apartment Aug. 17 and 18, 1970, on a "fishing expedition," the defense motion said, when it had authority only to try to determine whether Miss Davis had fled the state.

Miss Davis' three unmailed letters became public last November during an earlier defense attempt to keep them out of the case.

In them Miss Davis expressed both love for Jackson and shared revolutionary thoughts. In one she wrote that she had dreamed of him after seeing him in court and in the dream, "we were together fighting pigs," she wrote.

The letters were taken 10 days after the Aug. 7, 1970, Marin County shootout at San Rafael, when Miss Davis was the object of a nationwide search.

She is on trial on charges of murder, kidnaping and conspiracy and accused of helping plot the kidnaping of five hostages from a Marin County courthouse which resulted in four deaths.

Defense attorney Doris Brin Walker said the letters, which have become part of the prosecution's case in the murder-kidnap trial, had nothing to do with federal charges of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Miss Davis was believed to be in Los Angeles at tha time, Miss Walker said, and consequently "clearly ... she had not crossed a state line."

The purpose of the federal warrant, she said, was "to discover instrumentalities and evidence of an unlawful flight" and FBI agent Jim McCord should have confined himself to that in searching Miss Davis' apartment.

"The letters contain nothing that could have led anyone to find Miss Davis. It was obvious that he was on a fishing expedition. He rummaged at will through her personal papers and took anything" he could find, Miss Walker said.

McCord testified Tuesday he was looking for "anything that could lead us to persons or places, which in turn, might lead to Miss Davis."

Arnason called a brief recess to consider the defense motion, and then dismissed the jury for the rest of the day in anticipation of lengthy arguments by both sides on the legal points.

"It's unlikely we will get to you today, so go on about your business," he told the jurors.

Reception Set On April 28 For Democrats

Democratic candidates for Congress and state Assembly will appear at a reception at 8 p.m. on April 28 at the Shelter Bay Club House, Shelter Bay apartments, Mill Valley.

The reception, labeled as "Primarily a Political Party," will be sponsored by the Marin Democratic Forum.

Scheduled to appear are congressional condidates Roger Boas and Alan French of San Francisco and Assembly candidates Joe Franaszek of Tiburon and Harry J. Moore of Novato.

Entertainment will be by folk singer Naomi Charnas.

Candidates for county supervisor, a nonpartisan position, also will be present, according to forum president Robert W. Greenman Jr. of Mill Valley.

Education Board Resignation

The Marin County Board of Education last night accepted the resignation of James A. Swenson, effective June 1.

A paint salesman in San Francisco, he cited increasing business pressure as his reason for resigning.

Swenson was first appointed to the board in January, 1969, and won election in April of that year from the Novato area.

Asst. Supt. Robert E. Spain said the board last night established procedures for replacing Swenson. Applications will be received immediately through May 15 at 5 p.m.

May 15 a county board screening committee will interview all those who applied, and May 23 the board will interview candidates the committee forwards. Spain said the board may announce the new appointment that evening.

June 5 will be the new appointee's first board meeting.

The appointee will serve until Nov. 7, elections, when a successor will be chosen to fill the unexpired term running to June 30, 1975.

Spain said the board also examined the preliminary budget of its special education programs. He said the figures call for a tax rate of 19.21 cents per $100 of assessed valuation to raise $1,325,000 to support that part of next year's budget, compared to a 20-cent tax rate last year, raising $1,347,288. Total tax rate for the county board has not been determined.

Spain said the board indicated cuts will be made in the budget requests.

Marin Groups Receive Grants

Three Marin groups are among 25 in the Bay Area to receive grants from the San Francisco Foundation, according to distribution committee chairman William H. Orrick Jr. of Stinson Beach.

The Marin County Police Community Relations Department received $29,500; Youth in Arts of Marin County, $10,000, and Catholic Social Service of Marin, San Rafael, $5,191, according to Orrick.

In all, $700,073 in grants were approved for the 25 groups during the first quarter of 1972, Orrick said.

Warrant Issued For Greenbrae Man

A bench warrant was issued today in Marin Superior Court for the arrest of Herbert Cosme, 22, of Greenbrae, who has failed to make court appearances on a charge of welfare fraud.

He is charged with receiving $747 in welfare overpayment last year when both he and his wife worked, but did not report their earnings.

BIRTHDAY — Maestro Leopold Stokowski, the world's oldest regular symphony conductor, cuts his 90th birthday cake. He was honored last night at a gala civic dinner in New York. Many in the audience knew that the maestro is actually 93 or 94 but he shaved a few years off his age several years ago.

Price Reelected Mayor As Belvedere Swears In

Newly elected Belvedere City Councilman David E. Bordon and reelected Councilmen Thomas S. Price and Merritt K. Ruddock were sworn into office last night and Price was unanimously elected to serve another year as mayor.

Allan Steinau was again named vice mayor, according to City Mgr. William L. Cavalli's office.

The Belvedere City Council also:

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to a special meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in Cavalli's office to hear a report from John McFarlane, retiring superintendent-manager of the Tiburon Sanitary District that maintains Belvedere's sewer system. The council wanted to hear McFarlane's views on proposed merger of Southern Marin sanitary districts and other matters.

BIDS — Authorized calling bids for May 1 on reconstruction of Woodland Lane between Bay View and Bella Vista avenues, to be reported on at the council's May 1 meeting.

PLANNING STUDY — Continued reviewing and adopting in principal the planning commission recommendations on the city's planning study subject to later hearings.

SUBDIVISION — Continued hearing on the Vose subdivision to the May 1 meeting.

Class Rescheduled By Boyd Museum

The Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science in San Rafael has rescheduled its canoeing class for May 5, rather than April 21 as previously announced, according to museum spokesman Gayle Rojas.

She also said a nature workshop for children aged 3 to 5 has been set for Tuesday afternoons. The next workshop of four 90-minute sessions begins May 2 at 10 a.m. Enrollments are being taken now, she said.

Tiburon Council Awaits Election Vote Recount

Tiburon's new city council will not be seated until Monday night, pending the outcome of a vote recount requested by Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood who lost her council seat by two votes in the April 11 election.

City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer said the recount will be performed Monday beginning at 9 a.m. in Tiburon council chambers under his supervision as city clerk. It will be done by four Tiburon voters, Vivienne Winblad, Harry Matthews, Gertrude Schliger and Dorothy Levitan.

The old council will convene at 7:30 p.m. to hand over its duties to the new one, he said.

At last night's meeting, he said the council accepted the canvass of the votes in the election, but did not declare anyone elected. Miss Ellinwood, according to county election figues, received 898 votes, compared with 900 for Allan N. Littman and 955 for Albert Aramburu.

No other business was conducted at the meeting, Balmer said.

Sewer Hook-Up Fees Are Raised

Directors of the Richardson Bay Sanitary District last night approved raising sewer connection fees by 25 per cent, according to District Secretary Eber D. Russell.

Russell said the vote was 3-2, with himself and Henry C. Whitescarver casting negative votes. Formal adoption of the ordinance will come at a later meeting, he said.

Usual house connection fee is about $400 tg $450, he said, and apartment connection fees vary too much to give an average figure.

Jobs Discussion On KTIM Program

The importance of finding jobs for veterans returning home from Vietnam will be discussed tomorrow at 9 a.m. on the KTIM "Sounding Board" by Robert C. Beebe, veterans employment representative with the state; James Burdick, Marin veterans service officer; Robert Souza, senior veterans representative for Northern California, and Harold B. Walde, president of Harver Industries of San Rafael.

Questions may be phoned during tomorrow's broadcast. The program will be repeated by tape-recording Sunday at 10:05 a.m.

Attack By The Zodiac Is Doubted

The mad killer who calls himself the Zodiac is a suspect in an unprovoked knife attack on a woman in Tamalpais Valley April 7.

That is the conclusion of Ken Narlow, a Napa sheriff's captain who has been hunting the killer since September 1969 when a coed was murdered at Lake Berryessa. "There is a better than 50-50 chance it is him," Narlow said.

The Marin County Sheriff's Department doesn't agree. Lt. Richard Gaddinni of the Marin City substation said he has several leads for his investigation, but the Zodiac isn't one.

Another lieutenant who has followed Zodiac's bizarre career said there were some similarities to Zodiac's other known attacks, but enough dissimilarities to make him doubt the killer of at least five persons in the Bay Area was involved.

The attack that sparked the speculation occurred on dark tree-lined Pine Hill Road shortly before 9 p.m. when a car swerved in front of Isobel Watson as she walked toward her home.

The driver got out and offered twice to drive her home. Twice she politely refused. The man then began pummeling her about the head and shoulders with his fists, according to Gaddinni.

Only after the man had fled when her screams attracted friends did she realize she had been stabbed in the upper back and neck, he said.

The 33-year-old legal secretary was taken to Marin General Hospital by friends for treatment.

She said her attacker was about 40 years old and a stocky five feet, eight inches in height with black hair. She described his car as a late model Ford or Chevrolet sedan.

The Napa captain who conferred with Marin authorities after the attack, said he has no concrete evidence, but "you get a certain feeling about things. I got a feeling about this one."

Narlow said the attack occurred on a weekend which is when the Zodiac killer has struck in the past.

The elusive murderer who writes to newspapers chronicling his exploits, claims at least 17 slayings. However, police have positively linked him to only five.

The most recent was the shooting of San Francisco cab driver Paul Stine in October 1969. A piece of the victim's shirt was later mailed to police.

San Rafael Youths Face Misdemeanors

Only misdemeanor charges have been filed against two San Rafael youths who were arrested Sunday on suspicion of marijuana and liquor violations by the California Highway Patrol.

Billy R. Dennis, 18, and Douglas W. Puskar, 19, were arrested when a car driven by Puskar was stopped near the Corte Madera off ramp of Highway 101 because it was traveling erratically, according to the highway patrol.

Youth Council In Novato Urged; Guidelines Given

The Novato Youth Advisory Committee recommended last night that the city establish a youth commission.

Michael Ascuitto, a committee member from Novato High School, told the Novato City Council, "This is what we felt had to be done to have youth get more responsive and to get more action."

The committee said a commission could:

"Present ideas to the city council that indicate what the younger people think about youth and what should be done by the community in serving the youth.

"Provide a means for allowing the youth to tell themselves what needs to be done.

"Give youth representation within the community that can develop alternatives for solving or filling the needs of youth.

"Give the youth meaningful responsibility through service on this body (commission) or other public advisory bodies.

"Give youth of all ages an interest and opportunity to be heard and to participate in decision making.

"Start Novato moving on a course to solve youth problems at an early stage in Novato's growth before it is too late."

Among the potential projects for the commission would be the development of a youth drop-in center, encouragement or improvement of recreation programs and development of job opportunities or youth business the committee reported.

As proposed the commission wouldn't have a set membership, but any individual willing to "become involved" would be a commission member.

The committee also said the council could consider hiring a coordinator to guide the commission and work with public agencies and the community.

Among the proposed tasks for the commission would be identifying the needs of youth which aren't being satisfied, formulate proposals to meet these needs, and seek community support for necessary youth programs.

The council agreed to put the youth proposal on the agenda of its next regular meeting, at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Novato Community House.

100th Birthday For Sausalito Man

More than 1,000 birthday cards from throughout California arrived last weekend at the home of Francis Baptiste, retired Sausalito builder who was 100 years old on Saturday.

Nearly 100 persons came to the family home to wish him well, and he wants to thank everyone, according to his daughter, Elphe Brogdon.

Concept For Open Space Is Endorsed

The Novato Parks and Recreation Commission has endorsed the concept of forming a special district to acquire open space but not a method under which the agency would be run, according to Recreation Director Edward W. Adams.

Commissioners Monday night heard a proposal from Patrick H. Heffernan, representing People for Parks and Open Space, for a regional district with a separate governing board.

At a previous meeting, commissioners heard Marin County's proposal for a county-wide district governed by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Commissioners didn't take any action on either proposal, pending further study, Adams said.

The Novato Parks and Recreation Commission also:

PARKS — Heard from Adams that the Little League field and play area at Olive School will be ready for use April 30, that work has started on the parking lot at Novato Creek Park and play equipment is being installed at Pioneer Memorial Park.

DOWNTOWN PLAN — Agreed to take a field trip to the park site designated in the city's downtown plan, mostly along Novato Creek, with a view toward setting priorities, but the trip date wasn't set.

MOUNT BURDELL — Received an inquiry from Ester Equities Co. of San Francisco, owner of 200 acres on Mount Burdell, about the city's plans for the mountain, which has been labeled a choice area for preservation as open space.

WOK COOKING of Chinese foods is becoming more popular than ever since high food prices have led Americans toward the less expensive vegetable and meat dishes of the Chinese. This one is beef with snow peas.

TWO TASTY ENTREES

Join The Fun, Try Out A Chinese Dish For A Party

By LUCILE B. FLITTON
The Christian Science Monitor News Sarvice

When Mrs. Nixon admired the way Chinese chefs turned out the traditional Peking duck, she was told that it took many years to learn its preparation.

But this isn't so when it comes to making many Chinese vegetable dishes, now popular in the United States where prices of meat are so high.

Here are two recipes that use vegetables in combinations with meat. Both could be made with less meat than listed if you feel qualified to change the recipe around, perhaps after one or two experiences in cooking Chinese style.

The Oriental beef is made from thinly sliced beefsteak, either fillet or rump marinated then cooked by the stir-fry method with vegetables.

If you want to be fully authentic you will cook these dishes in an Oriental wok which is the shallow pan with a rounded bottom.

An electric frying pan can also be used at the table or a heavy skillet will work equally well on your kitchen range. Woks are generally available in large department stores and gourmet shops as well as in many of the mail order catalogs. You can also enjoy them for stir-frying bits of fish, shrimp, and vegetables as well as for special Chinese dishes.

ORIENTAL BEEF WITH SNOW PEAS

- 1½ pounds beefsteak, either fillet or rump 1¼ inches thick
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon ginger
- 1 clove garlic, finely minced
- 3 tablespoon cooking oil
- 1 package (7ounces) frozen snow peas (Chinese sugar peas)
- 1 cup sliced celery or 2 cups Chinese cabbage
- 1 cup fresh mushrooms, sliced
- 1 cup 1-inch green onion slices
- 1 can (6-½ ounce) water chestnuts, drained and sliced
- 2 beef bouillon cubes, crumbled
- 1 cup water
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1½ teaspoons salt

Partially freeze meat, to make thin slicing easier. Cut meat diagonally into very thin slices. Combine lemon juice, soy sauce, sugar, ginger, and garlic to make marinade; pour over meat. Refrigerate one hour.

Heat oil in Chinese wok or heavy fry pan over high heat. Drain marinade from meat, stir and fry meat slices over high heat one minute until meat is gray in color. Add snow peas and marinade; stir and cook over high heat one minute.

Add celery or celery cabbage, mushrooms, green onions, and water chestnuts; stir and cook over high heat two minutes. Combine remaining ingredients; add and cook until sauce is clear and thickened. Serve immediately with hot fluffy rice, if desired. Kumquats and watermelon picles make a perfect accompaniment. Serves six.

Attractive as it is tasty, sweet and sour pork is perfect for a buffet dinner. Pork cubes glisten in sweet-sour sauce and are bright with dashes of red, yellow, and green from tomato, pineapple and green pepper.

Rice is a natural accompaniment and a pretty one, too, shaped in a favorite mold. Simply pack the hot cooked rice firmly into a well-buttered mold. Let it stand for about five minutes in a pan of warm water. Then invert it on a serving dish and carefully lift off the mold. Surround the rice with mandarin oranges and sprinkle with almonds for extra color and flavor.

SWEET AND SOUR PORK

- 1 can (1 pound 4½ ounce) pineapple chunks
- ½ cup water
- ⅓ cup vinegar
- ⅓ cup (packed) brown sugar
- 4 teaspoons soy sauce
- ⅓ cup flour
- 1½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon garlic salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 2 pounds boneless pork shoulder cut into 1 inch cubes.
- 2 tablespoons butter or margaine
- 1 medium green pepper, cut in thick strips
- 1 medium tomato, cut in thin wedges
- 6 servings hot fluffy rice

Drain pineapple; save syrup and pineapple chunks. Combine syrup, water, vinegar, sugar, and soy sauce. Combine flour, salt, and pepper; mix. Dredge meat in flour mixture. Melt butter or margarine in heavy fry pan. Add meat; brown on all sides, turning as needed. Add one cup of the reserved liquid. Cover; simmer gently until meat is tender, about one hour. Uncover; add remaining liquid and continue heating. Add pineapple chunks, green pepper and tomato; mix carefully and cook just until vegetables are heated, three-five minutes. Serve with rice. Serves six.

GOURMET DELIGHTS

International Menu For Event

An international menu featuring Israeli, Greek and French dishes will be served by Episcopal Churchwomen of the Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley at the 20th annual Marin County Antiques Show and Sale April 27 to 29 at the IDESSI Hall in Sausalito. Dinners will be available between 5 and 8:30 p.m.

Mrs. Forest Goss and Mrs. Charles McCormick, kitchen chairmen, have planned an unusual and exotic but inexpensive dinner for each of the three days.

Some of the recipes they will serve are Israeli Chicken, Dolmadakia (stuffed grape leaves) and Kreatipittes (a meat-filled pastry.)

ISRAELI CHICKEN

- 2 young fryers (or equivalent in chicken breasts)
- 1 cup flour
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1 tablespoon paprika
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- ½ cup butter
- 1 7-oz. jar pitted ripe olives, drained
- 1 cup orange juice
- 1 Tbsp. brown sugar
- 1 tsp. salt
- ½ teaspoon thyme
- 1 medium onion, sliced in rings
- 1 tsp. paprika

Combine salt, pepper, paprika and flour, coat chicken and brown in one-quarter cup butter. Place browned chicken in large flat casserole. To make sauce combine one-quarter cup butter, orange juice, brown sugar and thyme in saucepan. Sprinkle with paprika and bake one hour at 350 degrees. Add drained olives, baste and bake for another 20 minutes. Serve with rice.

DOLMADAKIA
(Stuffed Grape Leaves)

- 1 lb. ground lamb
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 2½ cups finely chopped onions
- ½ cup raw rice
- ¼ cup currants
- ¼ cup toasted pine nuts (optional)
- 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon allspice
- ¼ teaspoon crushed mint leaves
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 jar grape leaves

Saute lamb until well browned. Drain excess fat and remove to bowl. Add one tablespoon olive oil to pan juices and saute onions until golden. Mix lamb, onions, rice, currants, tomato sauce, parsley, mint and spices. Pat grape leaves dry — unroll and flatten. Place one tablespoon lamb filling in center of each leaf. Fold bottom of leaf over filling and tuck under. Fold sides over center and complete rolling (not too tightly). Place in oiled casserole in neat rows. Add water to almost cover. Bake in 350 degrees oven for 40 minutes. Serve hot with sour cream and slice of lemon. (May also be served cold).

KREATOPITTES

- ½ lb. ground beef
- ½ lb. ground veal
- 2 onions, finely chopped
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup Bechamel sauce
- ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 pkg. filo (or phyllo), a very fine, thin Greek pastry

Saute ground beef and onions together. Mix with other ingredients. Place one spoonful of mixture on a sheet of filo, fold like an envelope. Brush with butter and cook in a 375 degree oven about 20 minutes or until browned.

BECHAMEL SAUCE
(2 cups)

- 4 tablespoons butter
- 5 -6 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1 egg yolk
- salt and pepper

Make like any white sauce. Makes two cups.

Meat Statistics

Total meat production in the United States during 1971 was a record 37.8 billion pounds, an increase of 1.6 billion pounds over 1970.

Beef topped the various categories with 22 billion pounds, up nearly 316 million pounds. Pork production was 14.7 billion pounds, up 1.3 billion; veal, 520 million pounds, down 68 million; lamb and mutton, 560 million pounds, up slightly.

A Tasty Dip

Why not introduce your family to a new accompaniment for cold cuts or ham? They'll enjoy the zip of the horseradish and crunch of the crisp apple in this: apple-sour cream sauce — Chop one cored unpeeled apple and fold into one cup dairy sour cream. Blend in one fourth cup prepared horseradish, three fourth teaspoon salt, and a dash of white pepper. Chill before serving. Makes about one and three fourth cups.

MRS. FORREST GOSS (left) prepares another chicken as Mrs. Charles McCormick feeds a spoonful of Israeli Chicken to her year-old daughter Mary Goss at the McCormick home in Mill Valley. The orange-flavored chicken is one of the international recipes the women have devised for the dinners to be served next week at the Annual County Antiques Show, sponsored by the Episcopal Churchwomen of the Mill Valley Church of Our Saviour.

NATIONAL MARCH of Dimes poster boy, Marty MimMack (right) practices for the March of Dimes Bike-A-Thon with his parents, William and Gloria MimMack, and his older brother Matthew, near their home in San Jose. The bicycle riding fund raising events will start at Tamalpais High School Lon May 6.

AT TAMALPAIS HIGH

Bike-A-Thon Is Launched

The community needs more education concerning handicapped children than it does any other group, according to Mrs. William MimMack, mother of March of Dimes national poster child, Marty MimMack of San Jose.

Marty and Mrs. MimMack were at a rally at Tamalpais High School Monday to help kickoff registration for the May 6 March of Dimes Bike-A-Thon. Theme for bicycle riding fund raising event will be "Miles for Marty," honoring the 10-year-old poster boy, who will be one of the entrants.

After Marty was born without arms and with one lel three inches shorter than the other, in May of :61, the MimMacks became concerned about the education of other people to the needs of a handicapped child.

"We found that four other children in our neighborhood in San Jose had been born without limbs about the same time as Marty," said Gloria MimMack. "We started a parents group, called ourselves Parents of Congenital and Traumatic Amputees and had brochures printed. We felt that by sharing what our families had been through and what we had learned, we could be of help to other parents who had children born without limbs.

"OUR PAMPHLET is very simple," she explained. "It says that we are parents who have experienced the same thing you have. If you would like to talk with us we are available night or day and will try to match you with a child whose handicap is closest to that of your child's disability.

"When Marty was born," she continued, "we were told there was absolutely not another child around who was born like him. We were told there were no facilities for children like Marty and no educational facilities. This information turned out to be wrong, but we learned that the communication between doctors and organizations — at least in Santa Clara County — is practically nil.

"We've learned a lot we'd like to share with others — things like how to make a sandwich holder out of a clothespin and tongue depressors for a child who wears an artificial arm."

We'd like to meet parents of children with missing limbs who are older than ours. We can learn so much from those parents because they've solved problems we're just coming into, she said.

"We've taught Marty that there are many different ways in which people express sympathy. Even though he does not want nor need sympathy we've tried to teach him to consider the other person's feelings and accept their expressions graciously," Mrs. MimMack said.

In Marin, a child like Marty would probably be eligible for the Atypical Infant Development program in Kentfield, which provides continuing education and therapy for children whose development is delayed for any reason from birth until the age of 3 when they enter Marin County Schools programs.

NO SUCH program existed in Marty's home community of Santa Clara, so his parents took him to the University of California clinic in San Francisco, where his treatment and therapy were directed by Dr. Edwin Schottstaedt of Mill Valley. Under the guidance of Dr. Schottstaedt, Marty's physical abilities improved to the point where he was able to enter the Chandler-Tripp Nursery School for the Handicapped when he was 3 years old.

Now Marty attends the Fremont-Older School just two miles from his San Jose home. According to Gloria MimMack, the school is one of two in California with an orthopedic wing.

"Marty goes to regular school," she explained," gets out at 2:15 p.m. and goes to the orthopedic wing for therapy four times a week. In this school, orthopedically handicapped children don't have to go to school in one place and run to another for therapy. The special needs of handicapped children are integrated right into their regular studies."

In Marty's combined fourth grade class there are two children in wheelchairs, one on crutches — and Marty.

"The cooperation of the children is fantastic," according to Gloria MimMack. "One child is assigned to Marty to open the doors for him; others are assigned on a weekly basis as pushers to take the children in wheelchairs out to the playground and back. The normal children benefit as much as the handicapped do from this type of integration.

"This type of integrated school is wonderful for children like Marty, whose birth defect only affects his bone structure," she explained. "In other areas such children must attend a handicapped school — and their education suffers. This way the handicapped child learns to function in a normal world. What good does it for him to be isolated all through his school years and then suddenly be thrown into the work force and told to compete?"

GLORIA MIMMACK has been a Mothers' Marcher for the March of Dimes since polio days. When Marty was born the chairman of the Santa Clara County March of Dimes Chapter asked if they could take some pictures of Marty to help publicize the work of the voluntary health organization.

"I didn't realize then that it was very difficult for them to find children and families who were willing to allow their child to be photographed," she said. "Our first concern was the education of other people and we felt that by having Marty photographed we would immediately expose his handicap to the community which needed the education more than anyone."

Marty has been National March of Dimes poster child for two years. He says he enjoys being a celebrity and has had many adventures in his national role, including a visit to the White House and making a film with Arnold Palmer. He loves to fly and to eat in restaurants. Marty's father, William, an engineer at Lockheed, has been given time off to travel with his son on behalf of the March of Dimes. Marty refers to this time away from his five older brothers, as, "Just Dad, and me, and room service."

The MimMack family vacations are usually spent camping in Alaska, Canada or Mexico. They've also been active in the mission program of the Catholic Church through their parish of Queen of the Apostles.

When Marty was about 2 years old his father took a leave of absence and the family journeyed to a little pocket valley in New Mexico. In the little town of Aragon, they helped the Father build a school.

"The people of the valley were all Spanish of Castilian descent," she said, "and had never been exposed to a handicapped child before. I remember setting Marty on the little counter of a tiny grocery store. I picked up a few things and when I came back Marty's toes were full of quarters — the only way they knew how to express their sympathy."

Traditional White Uniform On Way Out

The traditional "woman in white" may show up on the job in pink, blue, aqua or lime uniforms. Uniform manufacturers report that while white is still the leading favorite for hospital, office and beauty salon personnel, the other shades are gaining favor.

Sidney Dessr, vice president of National Uniform Shops, told Women's Wear Daily, "Pediatricians especially encourage the wearing of colors, as many children are frightened by stark white."

Some Facts On Common Cold

The full impact of the common cold on American business and society can't be calculated, but various authorities have provided these interesting guess-timates:

Colds account for 40 to 50 per cent of all industrial absenteeism; every worker loses nearly four days a year due to colds. Cost of this lost time could be as high as $5 billion annually.

Each American child stays home with the sniffles about six days a year. Nationally, this means 50 million days lost from school.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Use Pull-Power On Mower Before Husband Gets Home

DEAR HELEN:

My husband loves fertilizing our lawn, hates mowing it. Therefore we have the greenest grass in town and the longest.

He won't let me mow it because he doesn't want the neighbors to think he is lazy, but truthfully, he IS — or at least he can always think of a dozen "more important" things to do.

I'm dying to get out there with our power mower, but I can't start the darn thing without his help, it being the rope-pull kind. Meanwhile, I call our back yard Sherwood Forest.

I know this isn't a world-shaking problem, but how do you convince a husband that his wife really enjoys mowing the lawn? — OVERGROWN HOUSEWIFE

DEAR OVER:

Why don't you practice up on pulling that rope (it isn't so difficult — even I can start our power mower — usually) and get the job done while your husband is away at work?

This would prove you truly enjoy mowing the lawn. Honest, now — do you? — H.

P.S. Might also inspire him to home repairs, etc. on the weekends, right?

DEAR HELEN:

Here's another inequity that women's lib should work on. My husband and I are employed by the same company, but in different parts of town (we can't be in the same office). If he were transferred to a new location, the company would move us, help sell our house, pay living expenses until we were settled in the new town, and generally make everything very easy.

But if I were up for a promotion elsewhere, they'd probably advise me to stay put. Definitely they wouldn't pay moving expenses, etc. for our family.

We're both at the executive level, but my husband is encouraged to move ahead. I'm a small embarrassment to them, each time I let them know I'm ambitious too.

Will this situation ever change? — WOMAN EXECUTIVE

DEAR W.E.:

Slowly — very slowly. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm 25, and a new bride. It seems that every married woman I've met (who has been married over two years) feels she is a prisoner. Evidently they can't wait for the blissful moment when they receive a new name and a ring on their finger, but how fast they change! "Glorious married life" becomes a trap.

At club meetings, etc. they run their husbands down, yearn for all they "gave up" — a hot-blooded lover, a romantic job, beautiful clothes, no runny-nosed kids underfoot. And they keep telling me I'll be just like them when I take off the rose-colored glasses.

The husbands I've met, too, seem pretty well bent on making conquests outside their own bedrooms. I've lost count of the propositions they've made.

Helen, if marriage is only boredom and longing for someone or something else, and regret, why is it so popular? Even couples I'm pretty sure care a lot for each other, still act as if they don't. It seems the thing to do — seeing how low you can bring each other down, or how dull you can make marriage seem.

I'll never be like that! Or will I? — IN LOVE THOUGH MARRIED

DEAR IN LOVE:

No, you'll never be like that — if you and your husband remember three rules: Take each other for better or for worse — but never for granted! Turn criticism to honest praise wherever possible. And say "I love you" at least three times a day.

Stay happy! — H.

New Boat Rules Effective Monday

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — New federal regulations governing the safe use of boats became effective Monday.

For the most part, they merely extend rules previously applying to motorboats to other types of private pleasure craft now under Coast Guard jurisdiction as a result of the Federal Boat Safety Act of 1971.

Like the previous rules, the new ones cover the use of boats on bodies of water crossing state borders or contained in federally owned property such as national parks. Most states have similar regulations governing boating within state borders.

The main purpose of the new regulations is to require the presence of lifesaving equipment on sailboats, canoes, rowboats and other craft not already subject to such regulations under Coast Guard jurisdiction.

IN GENERAL the new rules mean that there should be one officially approved life preserver for each person aboard. Other devices, such as buoyant vests and cushions, are permissible if they have Coast Guard approval for effectiveness.

Persons using a kayak or canoe with an enclosed deck are not required to have a preserver but must wear a buoyant vest conforming to Coast Guard regulations for either adult or child use.

Persons using racing shells or rowing sculls do not have to carry preservers or vests if such equipment is available aboard accompanying craft.

Such equipment must always be easily accessible and in good serviceable condition.

When purchasing safety items for boating use, look for the official Coast Guard label indicating that it meets federal standards. For a free list of equipment approved by the Coast Guard, write to Equipment list, U.S. Coast Guard (MMT/82), 400 7th Street, SW., Washington, D.C., 20590.

The new law also authorizes the Coast Guard to set minimumstandards in the construction and manufacture of pleasure boats. In cases where these standards are not followed, boats can be ordered returned to manufacturers.

IN THIS RESPECT, the law is stronger than the ones governing automobile safety. Under the motor vehicle laws, the government is not authorized to require that defective vehicles be called back, although manufacturers have usually done so when requested.

When a manufacturer notices a defect, he must notify both the dealer and the ultimate buyer by certified mail. He must also notify the Coast Guard.

The new law gives Coast Guard officers expanded powers to check on boats in operation. Boarding officers are authorized to require boaters to return to a safe mooring if there are not sufficient lifesaving devices aboard. Violators are also subject to arrest.

The new law drops the automatic maximum penalty clause, allowing a boarding officer to use his own discretion.

It also provides new protection for "good samaritans" who give aid in emergencies. The new law exempts them from civil damages providing that they act reasonably and the recipients do not object to receiving aid.

Specific questions relating to the new law should also be directed to the Coast Guard.

Microwave Cookery

Microwave cooking is not a new innovation. It has been around for nearly three decades but only recently recognized by the consumer as a fast and efficient method of food preparation.

Jade Much Tougher Than A Diamond

A diamond should be treated with some degree of caution, according to the American Gem Society. Although it is exceedingly hard and resistant to scratching it is not exceedingly tough or resistant to blows.

Jade is softer, but it is tougher. A jade ring would probably survive a hard knock against a brass doorknob with only a scratch. Given the same treatment a diamond would not scratch, but it could chip or fracture.

Capt. Patrick D. C. Dumas of Jacksonville, N.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. David Dumas of Sausalito, claimed Mary Anne Staudt as his bride on April 8 at St. Joseph's Church in King's Park, Long Island, N.Y.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Staudt of King's Park, had as her maid of honor her sister, Regina Staudt of King's Park and as bridesmaids her sisters Loretta and Theresa Staudt of King's Park and Carol Goodenough of Cherry Point, N.C.

Stephen Gardiner of Sausalito was best man, and ushers were the bride's brothers, Dick and James Saudt of King's Park and Thomas Staudt of the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis.

A graduate of Catholic High School in Smithtown, Long Island, the bride attended D'Youville College in New York. She is employed at the U.S. Naval Hospital in Cherry Point, N.C.

The bridegroom was graduated from Beaverton Hgh School in Beaverton, Ore., and Portland State College. He recently received two distinguished flying crosses for heroism and extraordinary achievement while serving as a cobra pilot in Vietnam.

Physician approval is necessary as course follows a 1200-calorie base with anticipated weight loss of one and a half pounds per week. Films, physician speaker and physical therapist are part of the 12-week instruction series.

Open to both men and women, the course will show how to adapt recipes to low calorie count. Special emphasis is given to food preparation around the entire meal pattern and how to shop for foods while counting calories. Registration for class may be made by calling the Marin County Heart Association.

Among the examples of dessert treats adapted to low calorie while controlling weight are Refrigerator Strawberry Jam, Jellied Cheese and Strawberry Salad and Orange Sherbet with Strawberries.

Marinite Carl Arena With Acting Troupe

By JAY GOODWIN

It's a long way from O. Henry candy bar commercials to the Renaissance Pleasure Faire's Commedia della Vita troupe.

Carl Arena — a 25-year-old actor who spent years in Hollywood leaping over giant candy bars and puffing Newport cigarettes for television commercials — has made the journey.

Commedia della Vita, of which Arena and six other Marinites are members, is a troupe of seven actors and actresses that presents stage performances in the style of Italian Renaissance commedia.

The group was formed in 1971 by Judy Kory, an eight-year veteran with the Renaissance Faire, held each year in Marin. As she tells it, the idea hit her and she told the fair organizers that she wanted to direct commedia. They approved the idea and she went out to gather other performers from within the Renaissance Faire family.

Though they perform throughout the state, their primary exposure has been in Marin, where fair organizers hope to locate permanently.

Commedia theatre developed in the 16th Century — with its roots in Chinese Kabuki theater — and hit its peak during the Italian Renaissance. In those days, commedias were presented by traveling families whose oldest and most experienced member usually served as director.

The seven members of Commedia dela Vita are not members of the same family. "Actually, we tried living together for awhile," recalled Arena. "But it was a total disaster."

Nevertheless, said Arena, the troupe "works fantastically well together on-stage."

For 45 energetic minutes, the troupe glides through its loosely constructed scenario, employing techniques of mime, improvisation and dance.

They dart on and off stage wearing white-face makeup or masks and bizarre, fairy-tale costumes. Their characters are played with gusto and exaggeration.

The Villain, for example, does not make his entrance in a calm, relaxed manner. Rather, he swoops out from the wings, with his cape flying in a maniacal fashion.

All emotions are inflated as the troupe goes through its wild and entertaining caricatures.

"Commedia is tremendously demanding of your acting talents," said Arena. "It's vaudeville, it's outdoor theatre, it's energetic, it's life!"

Each of the seven performers becomes a standard character in the commedia family. That character — be it villain, heroine, or old miser —assumes a particular role in each production. While the roles and plots change from one production to another, the character is always played by the same actor.

Carl Arena, for example, is Capitano —the villain. In every production by Commedia della Vita, there is always a villain. That villain is always played by Capitano. And Capitano is always Carl Arena.

"I enjoy being Capitano — he's a great character. Between me and he Fool, we get most of the 'boos' and 'yeas.'"

The Fool, with whom Carl shares the 'boos' and 'yeas' is played by Billy Scudder, 32, an ex-nightclub crooner and rock and roll singer during the 1950s.

Other members of the troupe are Kim Zultz, 19 — The Old Miser — who came to Commedia della Vita with experience as a woodcarver, and a telephone operator; Suzanne Marceau, 21, — The Wench —who's the daughter-in-law of mimist Marcel Marceau and an ex-lab technician, and Julie Stambone, 25, —The Heroine —A Bank of America teller and veteran of The Wing improvisational theater.

Also Kenneth Millikan, 31, — The Lover —who's an ace carpenter and jeweler, and Judy Kory, 37, — The Narrator and special effects expert — who's been a dancer and Instant Theatre actress.

Except for Arena, who lives in Larkspur, they all live in San Rafael.

"We sit around over dinner and talk about what we want to do for our next show," explained Arena.

"From our readings and our knowledge of theater, we shoot into our "stew" all the things we'd like to do. Then we dip in and see what we've got."

The Commedia della Vita is financed by the Renaissance Center, which annually stages the fair in Marin. The troupe performs not only to entertain and educate their audiences, but also to expose them to a form of drama that will be available when the Renaissance Center finds a permanent home in the county.

Between Marin County school bookings, which Arena said are harder and harder to find, the group prepares for its next production at the Renaissance Faire in Los Angeles, later this year.

"We're fair people," said Arena, who was seen by thousands at the Dickens Christmas Fair in San Francisco in the guise of Sherlock Holmes. "We go from fair to fair and perform wherever we can."

"It's a needed type of theater and people love it, so we'll keep doing it."

Pussycats, Sourpusses Are Named

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pussycat and Sourpuss awards of the year were announced Tuesday by the Pussycat League of Happily Unliberated Women.

Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., and Elizabeth Taylor both won Pussycat awards.

Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and the sex research team of Masters and Johnson won sourpuss awards.

Ervin won for what the league called a valiant fight against the Equal Rights Amendment and Miss Taylor for maintaining "her zest for life despite the double burdens of incredibly good looks and heavy jewelry."

Mitchell got the Golden Receiver Ribbon for what the league called "using his wife to make headlines and then quitting his job to shut her up."

Masters and Johnson won the "Sexual Fallacy Sweepstakes" for "treating human bodies like late model cars in need of servicing and for giving motels a bad name."

Recount Delays Mill Valley Oaths

Changing of the guard ceremonies were halted in midmaneuver last night as the outgoing Mill Valley City Council resolved to remain in office until the question of a vote recount is settled.

Councilman Jerome C. Hauke, declared by the county elections department to be the loser to Gerald J. Hood by six votes in the April 11 election, yesterday requested a recount. Hood, Robert E. Burton and Robert E. Capron had been declared winners in the contest.

The council adopted a resolution which accepted the county's vote tally, but stopped short of declaring anyone elected and did not call for the oath of office to be administered.

City Atty. Leland H. Jordan said the council had the option of recounting the ballots itself, but recommended that it name a special recounting board to do the job under county authority.

The council ratified four persons already selected by the county elections department to comprise such a committee, and asked the county to move up the recounting date.

City mgr. William H. Cunningham said recounting had been planned to begin Monday at 8 a.m., but the council voted to adjourn its meeting only until tomorrow at 8 p.m. in hopes that the recheck could be completed by then.

Jordan said the council's course of action was "flying by the seat of the pants" because state law does not cover the situation, but he recommended its passage.

Selected to perform the recount were: George Parker of 106 Lovell Avenue, Edith Provines of 60 Corte Madera, Eunice Beck of 640 Throckmorton Avenue and Gladys Mae Bernard of 13 Alta Vista Avenue.

The council met briefly as the city's retirement board before taking up the recount issue, and voted to reaffirm city policy of providing the same retirement to city employees who retired before the city joined the State Retirement System as current employees will get.

It also approved two traffic ordinances, one extending the 25-mile-per-hour speed limit on Iamino Alto to the north city limits and the other creating a two-hour parking zone on a portion of Montford Avenue.

Ford Recalls 1972 Torinos And Montegoes

DETROIT (UPI)—Ford Motor Co. has recalled all the Ford Torinos and Mercury Montegoes built in 1972 to correct a bearing problem that could cause the rear wheels to fall off under stress.

A total of 396,000 vehicles—the entire 1972 model-year run of intermediate size cars built by the automaker — were involved in the recall "dating back to job one of the 1972 models" a spokesman said Monday.

Ford said that it has received reports of 16 cases in which the rear wheels and axle were separated from vehicles, but only one of these known cases involved personal injury.

Allen Will Continue As Ross Mayor

The Ross Town Council last night canvassed the votes; swore in the new members; named a mayor and mayor protem and named new committee members, all without any change of personnel.

There was no change in the unofficial count in the votes for council which were John H. Chase, 467; Alan P. Maginis, 446; Jewell I. Osterloh, 460, all incumbents and reelected; Peter B. Valentine, 302 and Tracy Van Vorhees, 282. Virginia Stott, 594, for town clerk and Else M. Innes, 592, for town treasurer, both unopposed.

Frederick S. Allen was reelected mayor for a fifth term and Roy Farrington Jones was selected mayor pro-tem.

The committees remained the same with John H. Chase and Jones on the community protection committee; Chase and Maginis on the finance committee, Maginis and Osterloh on the streets and Parks committee and Osterloh and Jones on the general government committee.

The council briefly reviewed the preliminary fire and street budgets which showed but little change, and nothing for salary increases.

The fire budget for fiscal 1972-73 was proposed at $47,745, down $20 from the current $47,765. The street budget was proposed at $31,503, down $305 from the current $31,808.

The council members agreed that these figures could change at budget time when cost-of-living salary increases will be considered.

The council adjourned to 8 p.m., May 11.

New Cotati Councilmen Score War

By BONNIE BARD

Two of Cotati's three youthful new councilmen took office last night and denounced the war in Vietnam as their first official act.

Stephen Laughlin, 24, was joined by Geoffrey Dunham, 29, in urging the immediate withdrawal of all troops from Southeast Asia only minutes after the oaths of office were administered.

Laughlin began by calling the intensified bombing of North Vietnam a "drastic and extreme situation". He shared a letter he had written to president Richard M. Nixon "urging the withdrawal of all troops immediately to avoid the risk of more wanton slaughter."

Laughlin's statement brought warm applause from Dunham and many friends in the audience, but drew only cold stares from the older council members, Frank P. Dolinsek and Herbert T. Winter.

Both Sonoma State College graduates mumbled nervously through the oath of office and seemed uneasy in their unaccustomed seats at the council table. Fellow election winner Annette Lombardi, 24, was in Italy.

The council agreed to delay the election of mayor until her return, which is expected in two weeks. "I think we should postpone the election until Annette is here since she should be the mayor," Laughlin suggested. Dolinsek and Winter agreed, saying the person winning the most votes is traditionally picked for the top job.

Both young men sat between Dolinsek and Winter on the council rostrum, enhancing the contrast in ages and in lifestyles. Laughlin, who in recent months has cut his shoulder length hair into a Prince Valiant style, wore faded blue jeans and a garnet sweater for the official installation.

Dunham, prematurely bald with only a fringe of dark hair and a drooping mustache, wore a gaily flowered shirt making the dark business suits worn by Dolinsek and Winter appear drab in comparison.

City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen called the election a "considerable surprise" and said it showed that young people can work within the established system "and accomplish goals without resorting to riots and burning."

Laughlin and Dunham stared at the city manager during his statement and appeared perturbed at his mention of riots and burning. "I'm looking forward to working with them for the next four years," Salfen said.

Dolinsek and Winter shook hands with the newcomers and offered congratulations along with Lester H. Petersen, Alfred Falletti and Ben Oretsky, who were ousted from their council seats last Tuesday.

Each of the losers carefully looked over the official election results with stoic expressions. When a friend jokingly asked why the men were sitting in the audience instead of at the council table, Petersen replied laughingly, "haven't you heard? We've been fired."

In the first official action, the council unanimously appointed Petersen to the committee working to renovate an old water well. Dunham said he believed Petersen should continue to serve since he owns a well drilling business and could lend expertise to the committee.

At an impromptu news conference after the meeting, Laughlin and Dunham said prime concerns will be repair of the city's water system, streets, the improvement of Plaza Park by rerouting vehicular traffic and forming a day care center.

They said they will also work to see that the rural atmosphere of Cotati is retained and that growth is strictly controlled.

The new councilmen will be faced with their first subdivision application at the council meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. when developer Harold Heers requests approval for two more units at the Holiday Park Subdivision. Tentative maps for the units have already been approved by the old council.

Plans For New Money Orders

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Postal Service said today it will scrap its present money order system and introduce a simplified new one by October.

It said the new system will improve service to the public by reducing issuance time, by offering a modern paper check-style money order and an improved customer receipt.

The receipt will contain all pertinent information on the money order, including serial number, date and office issue, face amount and payee and payor names and addresses.

SPORT NOTES

A Special King Of Competition

By RALPH CHATOIAN

It's time again for the Special Olympics in San Rafael. The annual event is called "Special" not for the times and distances which are established. In fact, the times are slow and the distances short. The people involved is what makes the event so special.

ARCHIE WILLIAMS

They have a mental defect, you see. They are retarded. But they try, and they try hard. That's what makes this track-field and swimming competition so special.

The fourth annual Special Olympics will be held Saturday, opening ceremonies at 9 a.m., at San Rafael High School. There will be two Olympic Gold Medal winners at the ceremonies, two persons who really want to help. One is Archie Williams, winner of the 400-meter run at the 1936 Olympics in Berlin, who now teaches at Drake High School. The other is heavyweight boxer George Foren, winner at the Mexico City Olympics in 1968.

Foreman is Special Olympics National co-chairman along with Rafer Johnson, Olympic decathlon champion of 1960. Foreman is hoping to reach a goal of $30,000 in contributing to the national Special Olympics Fund.

There will be 200 retarded persons, mostly youngsters but a few adults who range all the way to age 61, running, jumping and swimming during the day's activities. There'll be 200 persons who haven't given up, who haven't been given up.

The volunteers who have worked so hard to put on this event deserve a good round of applause. The committee is made up of Virginia McKeever, Tom Smith, Carl (Red) Brown, Fred Clawson, Gary Hughes, Lois Goodall, La Dawn Kemp Joanne Karlsrud, Janet Kenworthy, Laura Levers, Linda Holmes and Williams.

Among the aims of the Specal Olympics, as outlined by the committee's guide book, is to "Give the retarded child a sense of pride, by giving him a chance to win an award ... by giving him a chance to know success.'

The volunteer workers, a bunch of good guys and gals, give them that chance.

MARIN COUNTY'S only active crew teams, from Redwood High School, have returned to action in a five-team league that includes four high schools in the East Bay — Berkeley, Salesian of Richmond, St. Joseph's of Alameda and Concordia of Oakland.

With approval of the California Interscholastic Federation (CIF), the board which governs high school sports, Redwood will be competing with the other four schools in both varsity and junior varsity four-oared shells. When not in actual prep season, the same boys are junior members of the Marin Rowing Club, the organization that is supplying the shells for competiton. Four-oared shells for crew cost about $2,000. Add about $65 per oar and you find out that this sport doesn't come cheap.

"We're hoping to get other high schools in Marin County involved in crew," said the Marin Rowing Club's Bob Cumming of Kentfield, adding that there are about 25 boys at Redwood competing on the varsity and junior varsity level.

So when you see those kids rowing up Corte Madera Creek between the Bon Air Bridge and Highway 101 overpass, don't think they're just paddling canoes.

High School Net Streak Continues

Terra Linda High School dropped Novato, and San Rafael defeated San Marin by 5-2 scores in Marin County Athletic League tennis yesterday, while Redwood continued undefeated by defeating Tamalpais, 7-0, again without dropping a single set.

In the other MCAL match yesterday, unbeaten Drake trounced Marin Catholic, 7-0.

Marin Catholic's match with San Marin, rained out earlier, will be held Friday at 3:30 p.m. at College of Marin, Marin Catholic coach Ed Fuchs announced.

Indianapolis 500 Entry List—81

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) —The mailman brought another entry today for the indianapolis "500" from builder-owner Rolla Vollstedt, Portland, Ore., bringing the field for this year's race to 81, four more than last year.

Vollstedt thus entered the first car for the million-dollar chase May 27 and the last.

His first entry, for Denny Zimmerman, the 1971 Speedway "rookie of the year," was the first received for this year's holiday weekend classic. His latest entry named no driver and listed no specifications for the car.

McCovey Injury Tough Blow For Giants

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The crack heard in San Diego Tuesday night was the sound of the San Francisco Giants' pennant hopes crumbling.

The Giants, who won the National League West crown by a single game last year, were dealt a crushing blow when Willie McCovey suffered a broken right forearm in a collision at first base.

McCovey, who hit 18 homers last year despite an ailing knee that required surgery in the off-season, will be out from two to three months and his loss overshadowed the Giants' 5-1 victory over the Padres.

Game On Television

Tonight's Giants-Padres game will be televised by KTVU, Channel 2, beginning at 7:30.

"It's a blow to the club," Manager Charlie Fox said. "We'll just have to move around him and go with what we have. We still have a helluva club."

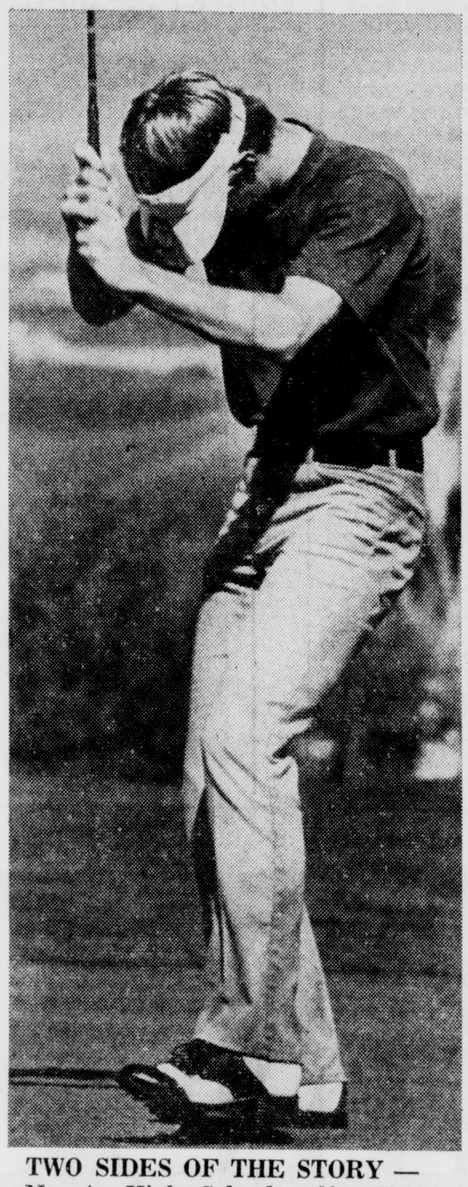
Dr. H. Paul Bower, the Padres' team physician, said McCovey suffered a fractured ulna just below the elbow in the right arm. Dr. Bower put a temporary cast on the arm and McCovey will have the fracture set at Sanford on Wednesday. Dr. Bower predicted McCovey will be out for two to three months.

The injury occurred when the Giants were trying to pull off a double play. John Jeter hit a grounder to shortstop Chris Speier, who threw to second baseman Tito Fuentes to force Derrel Thomas. Fuentes then fired to first in an attempt to nip Jeter but the throw was on the home plate side of first. McCovey dived to retrive the throw and collided with Jeter.

Besides the broken forearm, McCovey was also kicked in the head and had bruises over his right eye. Jeter had the wind knocked out of him and bruised ribs but he is expected to play today.

When Fox was asked if he had any plans to bring up a replacement from the minors, the manager said, "don't rush me, I've got until Wednesday night." But McCovey, who was the league's Most Valuable Player in 1969 and hit 30 or more homers for six straight years until he was hobbled last year, will be sorely missed by the Giants and it'll be a difficult task for them to win without him.

Homers by Bobby Bonds and Fran Healy carried the Giants to the victory but there wasn't any celebrating in the subdued Giant clubhouse.



TWO SIDES OF THE STORY — Novato High School golfer Pat Grogan (left) missed a putt yesterday, while Terra Linda's Greg Cudworth made one. Grogan shot a 37 and Cudworth a 42 as Terra Linda won the critical match at Indian Valley Golf Club, 203-206.

Redwood Stretches Prep Baseball Lead

By LEW CODDINGTON

If you're interested in baseball, then you might be interested in a new type of game the Marin County Athletic League is playing this year. It's called "Catch Redwood." Up to seven can play. It's possible that all seven could lose.

Redwood High School, attacking Novato pitcher Mike Lamb in a rare moment of weakness, scored its only three runs on its only three hits in the fourth inning yesterday to defeat the Hornets, 3-2.

The victory at Novato gave Redwood a 4-0 MCAL record and a lead of a game and one-half over its nearest challengers, Novato and Drake. Both are 3-2, and both have lost to the streaking Giants.

Redwood pitcher Gene Frey hurled an admirable game, scattering five hits and striking out seven. He gave up just one earned run (the first surrendered by the Giants this year), and even that run wasn't scored authoritatively.

Still, Novato led going into the fourth, 1-0. Lamb, pitching on just two days rest after beating Marin Catholic Saturday night, opened the inning with a strikeout, one of 13 he was to post.

Redwood's Dave Payne then broke up Lamb's no-hitter with a clean single. Mike Connor walked, but Lamb followed with another strikeout. Then Daryl Edralin lined a sharp double over first base, scoring Payne and putting runners on second and third.

Jamie Williams followed with a broken-bat single to center. Connor scored and Edralin rounded third as center fielder Stan Conte's throw came in to catcher Dennis Stanley.

Stanley took the throw behind home plate and a few feet down the third base line, and his lunging tag missed Edralin, who was called safe. Novato coach Tom Barrie bolted from the dugout to protest, brandishing (not menacingly) his omnipresent fungo bat.

"I say the umpire was in bad position to make the call," said Barrie. (The ump was behind Stanley.) "It's not my place to question the call itself."

Novato came back with a run in the fifth as Bob Lawrence singled, advanced on Bill Busher's single and scored as Redwood failed to convert a double play when the second baseman's throw was errant.

The Hornets threatened in the sixth, when Tom Conklin reached third base with two out. Frey went to a 3-0 count on pinch-batter Greg Lash, but reached back for something extra, threw two strikes, then induced Lash to fly to center. Novato also put runners on first and second with two down in the seventh, but a fielder's choice ended the uprising.

Novato scored in the first after Stanley singled, moved to second on a fielder's choice and third on Jeff Pond's single. Both hits barely eluded the infielders. After an intentional walk to Conte, Lamb hit an infield topper back to Frey, but Stanley had too good a jump and scored. Frey, after first looking to home, threw high to first and Lamb was safe, but he then bore down and retired the next 10 men.

Lakers Trample Bucks, 115-90

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Feet were the big items in the National Basketball Association Tuesday.

One was in the mouth of Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello, who predicted Sunday that his club would win the NBA Western finals in six games and then watched Los Angeles take a 3-2 lead in games with a 115-90 rout of the Bucks.

And the other belonged to Boston guard Jo Jo White, who twisted an ankle during a workout Tuesday and may be hampered tonight when the Celtics try to get back into the Eastern playoffs against the New York Knicks.

Costello boldly predicted that his club, the defending NBA champions, would win in six games after routing Los Angeles on Sunday. But the Lakers came out inspired Tuesday night and blew open the game in the third period. Gail Goodrich scored 13 of his 22 points in the quarter as the Lakers outscored the Bucks 35-23.

Jim McMillian led the Laker attack with 25 points and made it clear that Costello's comments fired up Los Angeles. "We read in the papers where Costello said they would win it in six," said McMillian, who let the final score speak for the Lakers' reaction.

"We did a tremendous job on the boards and it opened up everything else to us," said Laker Coach Bill Sharman. "If we can beat the Bucks on the boards Saturday, then we can win in six games."

Wilt Chamberlain, overwhelmed by Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in the 26-point loss to the Bucks Sunday, was a different man Tuesday night. He held him to 13-of 33 from the floor (28 points) and outrebounded him 26-16.

"It was the best job Wilt's done on Jabbar all year," said Sharman. "He forced him out, kind of like (Nate) Thurmond plays him."

White, who runs the offense and is one of Boston's top outside shooters, is one of the keys if the Celtics are to bounce back from their 2-0 deficit in their best-of-seven series.

Trojan Golfers Triumph

Just when it looked like the 1972 season might be a grim one, Terra Linda High School's golf team pulled itself together yesterday and vaulted back into the race with a crucial 203-206 victory over favored Novato — and on Novato's course, no less.

The victory at Indian Valley golf course put Terra Linda in a second-place tie with Novato and San Rafael at 2-1, barely behind Redwood at 2-0. San Rafael trounced San Marin yesterday, 197-244, at Peacock Gap.

Terra Linda's Rich Purdle fired a one-over-par 37 to share medalist honors with Pat Grogan of Novato. Four other Trojans kept their scores to 42 or less, while two Hornets soared as high as 45.

Terra Linda is defending champion, but was upset last week by Redwood, and needed the victory to remain in contention:

The results:

STANDINGS

Redwood 2-0, Novato 2-1, San Rafael 2-1, Terra Linda 2-1, Drake 1-2, San Marin 1-2, Tamalpais 1-2, Marin Catholic 0-2.

Terra Linda Gymnists Win 3-Way Meet

Chris van Oeveren was first in floor exercise and in all-around, and Steve Flook won the high bar event to top Terra Linda High School individual performances in a triangular gymnastics meet victory yesterday in Terra Linda.

The Trojan squad defeated Monte Vista High School of Danville, and Oakland High with a score of 73.33 points. Monte Vista was second with 67.51 and Oakland third with 64.50.

In a dual meet last Friday, the Trojans were defeated by defending Northern California champion Encina High School of Sacramento, 116.07-75.32.

A BOOST FOR A'S

McLain Is Back

OAKLAND (UPI) — You could say, guardedly, that Denny McLain is back.

You could say that only after watching the former 31-game winner pitch the Oakland A's, his new club, to a 3-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals Tuesday night.

McLain, who never has been a good spring pitcher, was a pretty good "winter" pitcher in the cold and windy Oakland coliseum as he went into the eighth inning without walking a man and then finally came out when the first two batters reached him for singles.

Manager Dick Williams said he had figured on McLain working five or six innings, or throwing 100 pitches at the most.

McLain threw 88 at the point Williams came out to get him in the eighth and it all turned out right for the A's and McLain as Darold Knowles and Rollie Fingers finished up without incident.

McLain pitched poorly in the three exhibition starts and there were reports about that he had a sore arm. He hadn't pitched in a game since four days before the players strike so no one really expected much of him.

"He was fabulous, that's all," said Williams. "Now you can go and write about his sore arm. "Really, though, he pitched better than I expected but I had to be shown."

McLain didn't walk a man in the seven plus innings he worked and he struck out two. The two runs he gave up were unearned, coming as a result of an error by the usually reliable Sal Bando. Naturally, he didn't want to come out but he said it's different "with this club."

"They've done a helluva job putting their pitching staff together," McLain said, still talking like he didn't belong. "This team is deeper than the 1968 Tigers." That was the year Denny won 31 games and the Tigers won the American League pennant and the World Series.

McLain's performance Tuesday was sparkling to say the least. He moved the ball well and his fastball was an effective pitch. In all he gave up eight hits.

"I've never been overpowering," he said. "My big thing is control. That's why I'm pleased with this performance. I got the ball in and out and up and down the way I like. It's usually into May before I have this kind of control."

McLain put to rest reports of a sore arm.

"I have a problem with my shoulder," he said, "but I've had that since 1965 and I guess you could say I've done some pitching in the years since."

Marin Tar Baseballers Lose, 5-1

"We didn't even threaten the guy," College of Marin baseball coach Vic Petreshene sighed yesterday after his Tars dropped a 5-1 Camino Norte Conference baseball game to star hurler Cliff Holland and his Canada College teammates.

Holland, a member of the United States Pan American Games team, struck out 13 Marin players, and yieled only four hits.

Marin got its run in the eighth when Mike Dito plated Frank Pomilia with a solid base hit.

According to Petreshene, Holland was drafted and offered a "substantial bonus" by the Boston Red Sox, but turned it down to finish the year with his college squad.

Some Advice On Safety

Many cities situated on the ocean or a large lake have some kind of boat safety program as part of their recreation department's activities. It's a great idea for instilling safety practices into young minds. More cities should do it.

One of the best programs is that operated in Miami, Fla., where kids from 9 to 14 get practical instruction with boats on the water.

If children can't swim they can enroll in the city's learn-to-swim program at municipal pools and enroll later in the boating safety course. Graduates of the course get a certificate and an emblem. The objective is to give children at an early age a proper appreciation of the handling of small craft and the proper attitudes necessary for good seamanship and safety.

Anyone interested might write to the Director, City of Miami Parks and Recreation Department, Miami, Fla., 33132.

There are many ways to achieve boating safety, as some of the questions we've been asked indicates.

Q. If you had to pick the "most dangerous type" of boatman, wouldn't it be the crazy young water cowboys in sailboats and outboards?

A. Far from it. The boatman most frequently involved in the boating fatalities across the nation is the angler —the mature, capable, well-to-do man, out for a quiet day's fishing. Major factors are inexperience in handling boats, overloading, standing up, excitement, panic, and ignorance of weather and waters. Speed and recklessness are seldom factors in these fatalities.

Q. Some small boats, particularly aluminum sailboats, are so slippery on the inside when wet, that they are dangerous. Is there a cure?

A. Non-skid material in strip form with adhesive backing is available. This may be stuck on. Non-skid paint can be bought, or made by sprinkling clean dry sand on paint before it's dry. Even rubber mats may be stuck to slippery surfaces.

Q. Are children of any age allowed to drive boats?

A. In most states —yes. But remember their parents are responsible for their actions. Some states are enacting legislation to change this. For instance, New York State requires children from 10 to 14 to take a boating course before they can drive a boat alone. Others are following suit.

Q. I notice that a lot of the clamor for licensing of pleasure boatmen, once a very popular editorial topic, has diminished. Why?

A. I like to think that it's because the number of boating accidents is staying relatively stable, while the number of boats is increasing astronomically every year. However, the Coast Guard has now come out in favor of licensing. So it appears that we are going to get licensing, long after the public clamor for it has died.

Q. I saw water skiers wearing short rubber divers' suits. Where can I get one?

A. They are sold by scuba or skin diving shops. The diver's "wet suit," or the abbreviated version called an exposure suit by water skiers, is great for sailing. Some of the northern yacht clubs are considering making such suits compulsory for younger sailors competing in late or early season "frostbite" regattas.

Rancho '9' Defeats Healdsburg

Lou Goring drove in three runs yesterday to lead Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park to a 3-2 Sonoma County League Baseball victory over visiting Healdsburg, a win which gave the Cougars a two-game first place lead.

In other southern Sonoma County diamond action, Petaluma beat North Bay League host Vallejo, 3-2, and North Central League II rivals St. Vincent and Kelseyville cancelled their game because both teams stayed home.

Goring, a returning all-league catcher, started his batting heroics in the first inning with a double.

Two innings later, he belted a triple to deep left center to score Marshall Brant.

The Petaluma-Vallejo game was a pitchers' battle with the Trojans' Sam Solis out-dueling Kelly McWilliams. Solis, who has a glittering 1.00 earned run average in league, allowed only three singles.

Kevin Gillmore, who went two for three at the plate, drove in the winning run for Petaluma with a triple down the left field line in the fifth inning.

St. Vincent was scheduled to play in Petaluma's McNear Park, but Kelseyville thought it was to host the game and stayed in Kelseyville.

Sonoma State Tops USF Baseballers

Sonoma State College scored five unearned runs in the eighth inning yesterday to beat University of San Francisco, 8-5, in a non-league baseball game played at Doyle Park in Santa Rosa.

With two outs in the eighth, Tom Hughes singled, Jim Boesiger walked and Ron Petroni reached first safely on an error to load the bases. Then, Rick Jones walked to bring in one run, Gordon McLachlan drove in two more with a single and Mark Newsom cleared the bases with a triple that scored the final two runs.

Newsom, who went two for four at bat, pitched a nine-inning five-hitter at the Dons who had beaten Sonoma State twice earlier this year.

Petroni hit a triple and double, and Jones got two singles to lead the Cossacks' batting attack.

Rangers Thrash Black Hawks, 5-3

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Chicago Black Hawks are shaking their heads in disbelief.

The Black Hawks ran off with West Division honors this season and thrashed Pittsburgh in four games in the National Hockey League Stanley Cup quarterfinals. But suddenly the Hawks have gone flat.

The New York Rangers erupted for four goals in the final period Tuesday night to beat Chicago 5-3 and take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven semifinal series. Rod Gilbert collected two of the goals, including the tie-breaker at 12-36.

In the other semifinal game Tuesday night, the Boston Bruins crushed the St. Louis Blues 6-1.

The Black Hawks took the lead three times only to have New York tie the game each time. Dennis Hull, Stan Mikita and Pat Stapleton had goals for the Hawks but Vic Hadfield, Gilbert and Brad Park managed to match them.

Chicago took a 2-1 lead into the final period but Gilbert hit on a power play after only 54 seconds to tie the game. Stapleton's power play goal gave the Hawks the lead at 6:17 but Park then tied it less than two minutes later. Gilbert blazed a slap shot past goalie Tony Esposito at the 12:36 mark for the winning goal and Pete Stemkowski had an empty net score with 10 seconds left in the game.

Versatility Shows In 'Cats Win

Demonstrating the versatility that made them the pre-season Marin County Athletic League favorites, the Marin Catholic High School Wildcats scored with frequency and imagination to defeat host Tamalpais yesterday, 9-3.

The victory moved the 'Cats into the logjam in the middle of the standings at 2-3, while Tam dropped to 0-4.

Marin Catholic scored by such diverse ploys as a double steal, a squeeze play, and two sacrifice flies. The Wildcats got timely hitting from Pete Arbios, who went three for four, and Rich Lopez, the only nonsenior on the team, who drove in two runs.

Pitcher Vince Bormolini went the distance, scattering seven hits, and ripped two hits himself, knocking in two runs.

Tam's Clifford Hall continued his torrid recent hitting with a double and home run. He went three for four, scored twice, drove in a run and stole a base.

LEADERS BREEZE

Swimming Victory For San Rafael

San Rafael High School, with double winner Gary Walraven leading the way, clinched a hold on third place yesterday in the Marin County Athletic League swim race, with a 56-39 victory over Novato at the losers' pool.

In the other MCAL meets yesterday, championship contenders Redwood and Terra Linda each breezed by lesser rivals, Redwood with a 70-25 rout of San Marin, and Terra Linda with a 78-17 demolition of winless Tamalpais.

Walraven took firsts in the 200-yard freestyle and 100 butterfly, offsetting a double win by Novato's Roger Rechsteiner and a diving triumph by John Summerfield.

A top time in that meet was San Rafael's Mike Kamler's 23.3 in the 50 free.

The Giants' took every individual event, dropping only the 400 free relay, where they were disqualified. There was no Redwood-San Marin Class B meet, since San Marin elevated its "B" swimmers to the varsity.

Rick DeMont bolstered two relay victories for the Trojans, and Rick Lund won the 200 and 400 free races to stand as the only individual double winner.

Dick Attwood of Tam took the Indians' only first, in the 100 back.

7th Inning 6-5 Victory For Drake

Doug Harnsberger singled to score Bob Mayer with two men out in the seventh inning yesterday to give Drake High School a 6-5 victory over San Rafael in a Marin County Athletic League baseball game at Drake.

Drake struck first, scoring in the opening inning as John Billings raced home from third when San Rafael's pitcher fumbled a routina throw back from the catcher. The tally ended a streak of 14 consecutive scoreless innings.

San Rafael charged ahead with five runs in the second, one scoring on a Rick Klarkowski single, two more on an error, and the final two on Dirk Gansloser's single.

Drake tied the game with four in the fourth.

Terra Linda Drubs San Marin, 8-2

Mark Mueller pitched a complete game and got supporting home runs from Rick Trono and John Loberg as Terra Linda High School swamped San Marin yesterday, 8-2, in a Marin County Athletic League baseball game at Albert Park.

The loss dropped San Marin into a fourth-place tie in the MCAL at 2-2, while Terra Linda pulled into a tie for sixth at 2-3.

Trono hit a two-run homer in the fifth inning and Loberg a solo shot in the sixth to fatten an early Terra Linda lead.

The Trojans scored in the first inning as Huey Williams walked, stole second and came home on Mike Allen's double. In the third, Williams walked and scored on two errors.

Terra Linda got two more runs in the fourth without a hit, benefitting from another San Marin error. The Trojans stole two bases that inning and six in the game, giving them 15 in the last two days.

Refugees are constantly on the move in Cambodia. As North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops penetrate deeper into the countryside, families now often flee as far south as Phnom Penh.

But the relatively secure capital has very few camps for refugees. Some live in tents, others in quickly erected bamboo and thatched huts. But most live with relatives and friends in already extremely overcrowded quarters.

Yet, with all the daily hardships, they, like most Asians, have a very special place in their hearts for their children — symbols of future hopes during troubled times.

Talley Industries Earnings Move Up

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My shares of Talley Industries (NYSE) bought two years ago at just below $20 have traded well below that level since. Do you forsee a turnaround? — G.A.

A. Talley's earnings moved up 30 per cent in the first nine months of fiscal 1971-72. Full year, ended March 31, should see earnings of $1.10 a share. Sales to the government dropped to only 15 per cent of the total in that period. In the previous year the mixture was nearer 75 per cent commercial/consumer and 25 per cent government. The larger proportion of higher margined commercial business plus a cost-cutting program were primarily responsible for the earnings recovery.

A pioneer in the technology of solid propellants and ballistic devices, Talley acquired with the General Time merger in 1970 the world's largest clockmaker. This division has recently introduced a precision quartz crystal clock line ranging in price from $50 to $5,000. Other company products include knitted sports apparel, small motors, toys and sports equipment. Talley has developed an explosive slurry used in oil and gas recovery as well as a propellant for airbag safety devices. Shares have excellent turnaround potential and should be held.

Q. I am at sea over the advisability of U.S. Treasury bonds acceptable on estate taxes. The interest is low even though some trade below par. I would appreciate your comments. — W.W.

A. If your estate after marital deductions exceeds the $60,000 exemption, these Treasuries are advisable. These bonds are acceptable at par in payment of estate, taxed, even if bought in anticipation of death. However, you must actually own them at the time of death. Although these issues are accepted at par value to meet tax liability, they are also valued at par in figuring gross worth of your estate. A deep discount issue such as 4¼s of August, 1987-92, trades 22 per cent below par value and yields 5.4 percent currently. This bond will provide not only a fair return but also a potentially worhwhile capital gain.

Prices Down In Active Trading

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices closed lower in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange today.

Of the more than 1,767 issues crossing the tape, declines broadly outdistanced advances 938 to 492.

Analysts said the setback was caused primarily by North Vietnam's attack on U.S. warship in the Gulf of Tonkin.

Buyers moved in on Curtiss Wright after an announcement that Chrysler Corp. has been discussing possible license to make Wankel rotary engines. Curtiss Wright has the exclusive North American rights to the innovative engine. The firm's stock was ahead 1 3-4 with less than an hour left in the session.

Federal National Mortgage, another of the active issues, was ahead fractionally.

Japanese Import Hike Predicted

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — While U.S. consumers may be paying a little more for Toyota cars, Sony TV sets, and Seiko watches these days, it probably won't deter them from buying a record amount of Japanese goods.

Last December's 17 per cent revaluation of the yen notwithstanding, Japanese economist Chaiki Nishiyama predicts that U.S. imports from Japan will climb again this year.

It's too early to tell definitely what the trend will be later this year, the internationally known economist says. But figures for the first two months of 1972 suggest that Japanese exports will continue to rise, if somewhat less briskly than in the past.

EXPORT INCREASE

Official forecasts call for an 8.5 per cent increase in exports this fiscal year (just ending) — only about half of 1971's 18 per cent climb.

In the short run, Nishiyama said in an interview here, "it's difficult for importers to find alternative goods to those they are used to buying."

As February's sharp rise in the U.S. trade deficit shows, devaluation of the dollar hasn't done much to reduce the flow of imports. This is because the early effect of devaluation is to raise the cost of already ordered foreign goods. It takes more dollars to pay for them. Only in the longer run, experience of devaluation nations shows, does the physical volume of imports decline and the volume of experts increases.

NOTED FOR CANDOR

Nishiyama, a Tokyo professor, is visiting the United States under the aegis of the Japanese External Trade Organization, a government agency. In talks with U.S. executives and Washington officials, Nishiyama is explaining some of Japan's post-revaluation economic policies and problems. Though not an official government spokesman, Nishiyama has participated in many forums on U.S.-Japan economic relations and is noted for his candor.

Japan won't begin to feel the "real impact" of the yen appreciation until the late summer, says the University of Chicago-educated economist. But by that time, he fears, the U.S. business recovery may build up enough inflationary steam to provide a fillip to lower cost imports.

YEN'S VALUE UP

In theory, upward adjustment of the yen pushed the landed cost of Japanese products up by 17 per cent in the United States. That's because the yen's value was marked up from 360 to the U.S. dollar to about 330. It was done to trim Japan's huge trade surplus with the United States and Europe, slow the outflow of U.S. dollars, and put trade between the United States and Japan on a more equitable footing.

In practice, however, it won't happen quite that way, the Tokyo professor says. With the Japanese economy in "severe recession," many exporters are "absorbing some or all of the revaluation burden."

In other words, to stimulate overseas sales and bolster lagging output, exporters are not raising export prices as they otherwise might. They would rather lower profit margins than sell less and lay off workers — a practice that is frowned upon under Japan's paternalistic employment system.

In addition, the typical Japanese firm is heavily in debt to its bankers. During good times, loan repayment problems are few.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

32 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 19, 1972 EDITORIAL PAGE

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

There's Better Way Than Begging 'Uncle'

Increasingly, it seems, we hear pleas for federal, state and local governments to underwrite cultural activities. It is government's duty, some would have us believe, to subsidize the arts.

This is an extension of the increasing dependence on government that prevails in our society. For instance, no longer is it sufficient for the public schools to provide the basic education necessary for those reaching adulthood to make their way in society; they must take over child supervision and training, which seemingly no longer can be done in the home, at earlier and earlier ages.

We hear insistent pleas for government to underwrite more of our recreation, more of our health needs, more of our scientific research. Despite abundant evidence to the contrary, the belief persists that somehow government can do these things better and more economically than we can do them through private efforts.

ONE MARIN organization that has never sought more than token support from government is the Marin Music Chest, which since 1934 has been bringing us summer seasons of fine concert artists.

The Music Chest believes that Marinites who appreciate good music and dancing will themselves make it possible to bring such entertainment here. Annually, the Music Chest's thesis is proved right.

This year's Music Chest season will mark a departure from past summers. The concerts, starting with the appearance of Korean violinist Yong Uck Kim on June 18 and ending with that of Canadian vocalist Maureen Forrester on Aug. 20, will be presented in the new Veterans Memorial Auditorium.

The Music Chest has long hoped for an adequate auditorium for its presentations, and finally has it. Many will miss the atmosphere of the outdoor programs in Forest Meadows; but the superior acoustics and comfort of the auditorium will much more than compensate for this loss. We predict the new location will spur season ticket sales, which now are under way.

ANOTHER INSTANCE of refusing to depend on government subsidies, in a different field, will be brought home later this month when local chapters of the American Cancer Society in Marin and Sonoma begin their annual campaigns for funds.

Although the government underwrites some cancer research through the National Institutes of Health, the cancer society has never waited for a handout from "Uncle". It has pressed cancer research for many years, and has scored victories against this insidious killer — although its war is far from won.

There are many other examples of where doing it for ourselves has been more rewarding, at less cost, than leaving it to government. In fact, were we to wait on government to solve our problems, or to improve our lives, we might have an exceedingly long wait.

Embarrassment Of Riches For 'Hard-Pressed' State

By RUS WALTON

If you are in the same fix as most Californians, you're probably having trouble making ends meet.

Well, cheer up! Your good old state government is currently suffering from an embarrassment of riches. It has money it shouldn't have and it really doesn't know what to do: spend, or hoard, or punt!

Back in mid-December, 1971, in this column I questioned the necessity of the Reagan administration's so-called mini-tax bill. I reported there were those in high places who argued that the new tax was not necessary. The cash-flow crisis could have been solved by simply activating withholding — through administrative regulation, if not legislation.

That column was criticized but never refuted; time is proving it accurate.

STATE FINANCE Director Verne Orr recently announced that he might have been conservative in estimating state tax revenues for the coming year. Privately, he has acknowledged he was — indeed — conservative.

Experts in both the administration and the legislature are now arguing over the eventual size of the developing surplus and what to do with it: a surplus, that is, over and above the $7.7 billion budget for 1972-73, and $900 million larger than the $6.8 billion budget for 1971-72.

Almost all parties agree there will be a sizeable increase in state revenues this year. They believe the $47 million surplus Orr predicted for June 30, 1972 — and the $157 million surplus he saw for fiscal year 1973 — are off target.

Assemblyman Willie Brown, D-San Francisco, chairman of Ways and Means, saw it all coming. And Willie wants to spend it. His version of the 1972-73 budget would require the state controller (not the finance calculators!) to determine the surplus and to add those funds to money allocated for the public schools.

LATE IN DECEMBER, 1971, the state finance whiz kids were crying the blues, sobbing about an anticipated $330 million deficit and forecasting a gloomy economic future. Out of that came the tear-stained $501 million mini-tax.

Then in March the Governor's Economic Report, prepared by the same department of finance, painted a rosy hue for '72.

Personal income up 8 per cent, corporate profits up 10.6 per cent, personal taxes up 11.5 per cent and disposable income up 7.5 per cent (which means more sales tax revenue).

All of that, plus an expected increase in employment, means increased revenues for state government. The report indicated state tax collections would rise from the $5.59 billion of 1971 to $6.50 billion for 1972 and go on up to $7.04 billion for 1973. I'm just a country boy but that adds up to a $1.45 billion increase in state taxes in just three years.

Controller Houston Flournoy recently reported that the state's general cash fund cash receipts for the first eight months of this fiscal year were 14.41 per cent ahead of the same period a year ago.

Expenditures for this fiscal year over last year are up about 4.5 per cent, which means that so far the state has had a 10 per cent net revenue gain over 1970-71.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Influence Suspected In Board Appointment

Why did not any consideration be given to any of the many parents representing those of us north of the hill, at the time the city council appointed a new member to the board of education? Surely the councilmen knew Terra Linda High is the largest high school and Santa Venetia soon will be the largest middle school with the incoming students from Glenwood and San Pedro schools. Does not this warrant a replacement for Paul Jones from the same community he represented?

Could it be this appointment was strictly a political appointment? Could it be ITT has taught PT&T, well how to make such political appointments and thereby bring big business into dominating our school policies?

Correct me if I am wrong, but was not the new school board member recently appointed, the campaign manager for one of the newer city councilmen at the last election? Is not our new board member an employee of the PT&T as is one of the veteran councilmen and thereby because of company politics he was able to sway the three votes necessary to gain the appointment?

Perhaps the students should make the appointments to the board of education, I am sure they would be honest in stating the measuring stick they used. An overdose of honesty is long needed in our city government as well as in school administration.

Accolade To Losing Council Incumbent

By the slim margin of only six votes, Mill Valley residents yesterday failed to reelect a man who has dedicated nine years of his life to community service. Jerry Hauke gave unceasingly of his time and talents and Mill Valley is the richer for it today.

We were with him in 1968 when he swept into office as the youngest-ever elected chairman and we were with him last night. Jerry voiced no regrets or excuses, maligned no other candidate and indulged in no self-pity. He accepted defeat as graciously as he had welcomed victory four years ago.

Let's hope Jerry's successor on the council has what it takes to fill his shoes.

'Bagley Busing Bill' Bogey Alarming

How did the Bagley Busing Bill get passed without anybody knowing anything about it? To bus 20,000 students between Marin and San Francisco will cost almost $10,000 daily! How much smog will it produce? How much additional congestion during commute hours? How many more hazards? And how many wasted man hours per day?

Do the voters, taxpayers and parents wish to pay for the privilege of having their children bused daily across the Golden Gate Bridge, in the commute traffic, to the inner city and vice versa?

If we ignore it, it will not go away. It has happened in Detroit. It has happened in San Diego, and it can happen here. "The price of liberty is eternal vigilance!"

MARGARET W. MITCHELL
Santa Venetia

(The so-called "Bagley Busing Bill" was not passed without anyone knowing about it; on the contrary, it was the subject of much debate before passage which was reported in this and other newspapers. Further, the bill has nothing to do with busing children "daily across the Golden Gate Bridge." It requires racial balance in schools WITHIN a school district, and has no effect whatever for or against busing children from one district to another. — Editor)

Kudos For Writer; None For Road Builder

I would like to complement Jeff Greer for his excellent article on "Inverness looks Ahead to Its Future." I would like to make the following remarks with respect to Mr. Adams' comments: Mr. Adams refers to the fact that he has only heard of two accidents on his "adequately designed" roads, and that I was involved in one of the two accidents. Mr. Adams must be hard of hearing, for besides myself, the following persons represent a few of those who have been involved in accidents: Van der Ryn, Arturi, Telford, Burroughs, Torbert, Foote, etc. These are just a few of the names of those involved in accidents, and a survey of those persons located at crucial steep and blind curves will reveal many more such accidents. In addition, one of the worst slides in the history of Inverness took place on Drakes View Drive two years ago, due to inadequate drainage and poor water tank placement. As far as visual esthetics goes, the gash on Dover Road can be seen clearly across the canyon by the homeowners at the top of Balboa. If Mr. Adams' roads are adequately designed, then why is it that the cost of bringing them up to safe, minimum standards, may range from $50,000 on up (county estimates)?

As far as water goes, county records will verify that in the past years there have been several water shortages, and that twice last year our water supply was condemned by the Department of Environmental Health.

There is a crucial difference between haphazard development and careful planning.

Runoffs Advocated In City Elections

If the philosophy of run-off elections is to insure that the winning candidate gets a majority of the votes cast in an election campaign, why isn't that philosophy applied to city council races? If the winning candidates in a multi-candidate race for city council gather together only 35 per cent of the votes cast as in San Anselmo recently, or 41 per cent as in Fairfax, or 44 per cent as in Corte Madera, or 45 per cent as in Novato, do they really represent the voters? The majority of the votes were given to the losers.

I can not comprehend electing a county supervisor without having a run-off election if no candidate gained a majority of the votes cast. The city councils are even closer to the people and, for that reason if for no other, they should conduct their elections the same way. Why not a run-off among the top candidates involving twice as many participants as positions available? In other words, four candidates if two seats are up for election, six if three are up for election, etc.

I understand that to do this it is necessary to change state laws as every city in the county except San Rafael does not control its election rules. I direct this, then, to Sen. Peter Behr and Assemblyman William Bagley, the councilmen of San Rafael and the citizens of Marin County.

This change seems absolutely necessary in any attempt to make sure the voters have the right to decide who governs them.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

'I'm Being Persecuted' Wails Disproved By Records Of Trials

WASHINGTON — For many months people with loud voices, here and abroad, have been screaming that black revolutionaries and antiwar militants couldn't possibly get a fair trial anywhere in the United States.

It isn't true. It wasn't true. Now it is proved unture.

The evidence is conclusive. Half a dozen such trials have been completed and in every instance the accused were either given light sentences or exonerated.

It is understandable that American Communists and others who want to tear everything down should try to discredit the courts. The others should know better. But it is hard to explain why the president of Yale University, Kingman Brewster Jr., assumed that the judiciary is guilty until proved innocent. Perhaps he was only momentarily courting favor with violent disrupters on the Yale campus when he asserted that the Black Panthers would undoubtedly be unfairly dealt with in the courts.

They weren't unfairly dealt with. Their rights were respected and protected. But even now when this unfair charge of judicial unfairness has been disproved, one searches in vain for any good-faith retraction, any apology of any kind from Dr. Brewster.

THE EXPERIENCE of the Black Panthers, the Chicago Seven, the Soledad Brothers, Huey Newton, Bobby Seale and Dr. Benjamin Spock and Rev. Philip Berrigan all show that the American system of trial by jury dispenses justice. It is justice visibly rooted to the premise that guilt must be proved beyond all reasonable doubt or the accused must go free.

Nearly all have gone free — set free by a judicial process which the president of Yale for some reason said was so tainted by a climate of emotionalism and repression that it couldn't be trusted.

Not so. It hasn't worked out that way at all. Possibly those who kept proclaiming that the U.S. courts could do no right failed to understand the strength of the American judicial system or misread the climate of the nation.

Unfortunately, this attempted deriding and denigrating of the courts is providing a tempting facade behind which those indicted for serious crimes cry "political persecution" and thus try to influence the judicial process by public exhortation.

THIS IS WHAT Angela Davis and the Free Angela Davis Committee in the U.S. and Communist groups abroad are seeking to do.

Miss Davis is accused of providing the weapons which were used when Judge Harold Haley was killed during a gun battle with police following an attempted escape by three convicts from a California courthouse.

Miss Davis is now being tried by a jury after being indicted by a jury whose verdict was that there was sufficient evidence of guilt to proceed. She is on trial for a pretty heinous crime. Wouldn't it be well to let the facts come out before claiming "persecution"?

AND NOW A MEMBER of Congress, Rep. Cornelius E. Gallagher, D-N.J., is resorting to the "persecution" ploy after being indicted on charges of perjury, conspiracy and tax evasion.

The indictment couldn't possibly be true, he argued, because he was just "a target of our secret police society."

This whole "I'm being persecuted" syndrome can't stand up against the record of the courts which have been consistently dispensing careful and fair-minded justice.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

All Is Not Sweet And Light Among The Dropout Society

WASHINGTON — President Nixon and I are glad to report that the youth cult, or at least its frightening influence on the rest of us, is fading. The only weeping heard here comes from mod shops overstocked with wide ties and fuchsia bell-bottoms. But youth itself is still out there somewhere, marching in lock step toward the hallowed goal of doing its own thing.

Those of us with direct pipelines to youth keep up with it through debates about passing and flunking and hitchhiking to Florida. Since the President's daughters are grown up and married now, he probably has to stay in touch by reading excerpts from the Quicksilver Times in his daily press summary.

Some of what he finds out in his notes from the underground press would be tolerable, even amusing, to anyone but a prude. And, of course, he is no prude. Some of it is not amusing at all, and only tends to confirm his recent judgement that heroin is the nation's No. 1 domestic problem — worse even that the economy, racial antagonism and the pollution of everything. Start with the tolerable part, gleaned from the classified ads:

"TO THE GIRL who had rings on every finger, long brown hair and fingernails painted green. You were wearing a red body-shirt and a fur coat at the Humble Pie concert on 3/26/72. You were with a guy and another couple. Had no time to talk. PLEASE tell me in an ad where I can contact you. Remeber me? — The cat with blond hair ic the green sweater."

There follow any number of ads seeking rides to places like Seattle and Orlando, appeals for pen-pals from prisoners at Jessups Penitentiary, notices of gay receptions and seminars, ads for abortion services and, healthiest note of all in this hairy spring, an ad for a pyrinate liquid solution which says: "Lice? No stain — no smell. One shampoo kills lice and nits. At drugstores without prescription."

All of which indicates hearteningly that commerce continues on various levels, sand; of course, every little transaction helps the GNP. Another item of concern is the notice that "the Committee for the Advancement of Scientific Kowledge and the Investigation of Unexplainable Phenomena needs unexplainable phenomena to investigate. So if anything has happened lately that strikes you as being weird or extraordinary, e.g., ghosts, local legends, psychic phenomena, flying saucers, etc., drop us a line . . ."

MR. NIXON could conclude from this that his antidrug campaign is succeeding, at least against the hallucinogens. But along about here is where we make the switch from congenial interpersonal commerce to matters that strain the sense of humor.

"Beware of two pigs (at a hangout in Georgetown)," a public service ad begins. "Description: male, black, shaved head, usually wears dark glasses . . . second pig, black male, stocky build, usually wears a blue work cap. Warning: Pigs are armed and should be considered dangerous . . ."

Legitimate exercise of the free press, yes. Still a reminder that while the more visible and laughable aspects of the youth cult have receded from the rest of society, its most tragic aspect is persistent, remains "our own thing," the vehicle of a fun game of cowboys and Indians.

On the same day this Quicksilver Times was available to the President's readers, they also might have noted in the Baltimore papers an account of how a narcotics agent in disguise had enrolled as a student at a suburban high school and fingered two persons for using and selling marijuana — one of them a nonstudent. There was a controversy, with predictable complaints about use of undercover police in a school. But the county school board voted unanimously to continue the practice whenever it seems needed.

IT IS A TICKLISH area, this matter of undercover police. Mr. Nixon, on his past record, would have no compunction at all in commending the agent, perhaps promoting him and inviting the school board en masse to ceremonies at the White House. I and a lot of other Americans would be more hesitant about it.

If it is acceptable to detect drugs in schools, how far beyond that does the line of acceptability run? And yet, on balance, when you consider it against what drugs can do to children — and when you draw the line here, not one step further — such police work has to be acceptable.

Let the cat in the green sweater yearn for the girl in the red body-shirt — I hope he finds her. Let the gay seminars convene and the unexplainable phenomena be investigated. But let you and me and the narcotics agent and the school board and the President, even — let all of us do our damndest to contain the drug phenomenon. It is all too cruelly explainable.

By THERON NEWELL

Vancouver Disaster Raises Question On Marin Preparedness

For many years, my wife and I lived in Vancouver, Wash., which until recently was best known for often being confused with Vancouver, British Columbia.

The Alioto trial and recent disastrous windstorm changed that. The city of 40,000 on the north bank of the Columbia River became known to many who had never heard of it before.

Being former residents, we had more than a passing fancy to find out the extent of damage from the storm.

The storm was quick, violent and deadly. It started on the Portland side of the river, uprooting trees and wrecking boats at the marinas on the river.

When it hit Vancouver, it blew off the roof and smashed the brick walls of an elementary school, wrecked a shopping center, bowling alley, lumber yard and other businesses, as well as about 100 houses in a half-mile-wide swath 10 miles long.

IN THE TIME estimated at a minute and a half to two minutes, it left six dead, 304 wounded and hundreds homeless.

One of the best descriptions of the damage was made by a reporter in a helicopter who described the ring of flashing red lights as highway patrolmen, police, sheriff's deputies, fire engines and ambulances from four counties converged on the scene but could not get into it because of the blocked streets.

It took seven hours to get the last of the wounded treated at the city's two hospitals. In the meantime, portable kitchens were set up and food dispensed.

Housicg was prepared for the homeless, but apparently they had friends as it was not needed.

IT LEFT US wondering: What if a similar disaster hit Marin County?

The county is updating its plan for civic defense which is scheduled for completion on May 1.

But Marin County is more vulnerable than the area to the north. Highway 101 is the main artery of the county. Most of the population live along it. If it were cut by an earthquake knocking down overpasses, or if a series of accidents jammed it, the emergency vehicles would be forced to use long, winding, slow back roads.

The Civic Center has been designated as the prime headquarters in event of a disaster. If it should be knocked out by an earthquake, the second choice now is Marion School in Novato. Surely there are better second choice than that old school for a headquarters. Of course, that is a carryover from the 1960 plan.

We hope that it never happens, but Marin County engineers have been lax in providing the public the safety of alternate routes in the county. These may not be needed normally, but in case of an emergency or disaster, they might make the difference between life or death for people.

Medicare Pay Areas Criticized

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Medicare regulations which encourage elderly persons to seek hospitalization should be eliminated, according to a report prepared for the Senate Committee on Aging.

The report criticized Medicare provisions under which a patient must be institutionalized for at least three days before the government insurance program will pay the costs of home health care. It was also critical of regulations that require the patient to pay part of his own doctor bill if treated at home but often none of it if he is treated at a hospital or skilled nursing home.

The report said such "barriers" should be ended in an effort to build up home health services and reduce government costs.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Proposed Law Legalizes Unionshop In Schools

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Assembly Bill 545, sponsored by the California Teachers Association, would legalize both strikes and union shops in the public schools, according to the legislative counsel.

CTA, in promoting this collective bargaining bill, has repeatedly emphasized that it does not contain the specific provisions for teacher strikes and forced union assessments that were in the organization's AB 2833 last year.

However, in the belief of the legislative counsel — whose job it is to advise the legislature on legal implications of bills — AB 545 legalizes both of these by implication.

IN AN OPINION prepared for Assemblyman John L. E. Collier, R-South Pasadena, the legislative counsel said that a section of the bill "could, we think, be interpreted as permitting a teachers' organization to undertake concerted activities, such as striking, picketing or boycotting a school district, as a means of obtaining from the district an agreement to employ or to continue in employment only those teachers who join and remain members of the teachers' organization or who agree to pay dues to such organization."

The section in question says: "Employees shall have the right . . . to engage in other activities, individually or in concert, for the purpose of establishing, maintaining, protecting or improving terms and conditions of service and other matters affecting their work environment."

Similar language appears in the Los Angeles Metropolitan Transit Act of 1957, noted Martin L. Anderson, deputy legislative counsel, in the opinion prepared for Assemblyman Collier. And on the basis of that language, the California Supreme Court ruled in 1960 that the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen had a legal right to strike against the Los Angeles Metropolitan Transit Authority, despite the general provision of California law that public employees do not have such a right.

"FURTHERMORE," the legislative counsel noted, "AB 545 would repeal both section 13082 of the Education Code, which specifically gives school employees the right to refuse to join or participate in the activities of an employee organization, and Section 13088, which provides that the enactment of the Winton Act is not to be construed as making the provisions of Section 923 of the Labor Code applicable to public school employees." Section 923 is the section which legalizes the closed shop in California.

CTA's AB 545, introduced for it by Assemblyman Jim Keysor, D-San Fernando, is not the only bill designed to bring union exclusive bargaining rights into the schools. Assemblyman Ken Meade, D-Oakland, has introduced AB 559, which would do the same thing.

Meade put in AB 559 at request of the California Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO. Interestingly, its wording is almost identical to that of CTA's AB 545. The section cited by the legislative counsel appears in both bills.

Professional Educators Group of California commented in a bulletin sent to its members, urging opposition to both measures: "Almost-identical twins want you — or your dues. Two bills — almost identical — prove again that California Teachers Association and California Federation of Teachers are philosophically aligned. They also reveal that CTA and CFT are out to legalize agency shops (pay dues or be fired) and/or union shops (join or be fired)."

Also in the legislature is AB 1553 by Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento, which would not apply to teachers but would give classified (non-credentialed) school employees the right to exclusive union representation.

PROFESSIONAL EDUCATORS Group, on the other hand, has a bill to restrict the scope of the Winton Act, which now governs teacher-school board negotiations. This measure is AB 2181 by Assemblyman Robert C. Cline, R-Woodland Hills, and is a rewrite of last year's AB 2473 which he introduced for Professional Educators of Los Angeles.

Hearings on the bills by an Assembly education subcommittee chaired by Assemblyman James W. Dent, R-Concord, are scheduled to begin April 25.

Santa Clara Man Has Court Date

Preliminary hearings on two separate cases against Leroy Raymond Willey, 40, of Santa Clara have been set for April 26 and 27 in Marin Municipal Court.

Willey, who has pleaded innocent, is charged with stealing a car from Annex Motors in San Rafael March 19 and with passing four bad checks in Mill Valley between Dec. 13 and Dec. 20.

Willey, who once lived in Petaluma, was arrested on warrants by San Rafael police Thursday.

Alcohol, Drug Abuse Discussion Set

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Basic Principal Of Finesse: Follows Opponents High Card

The basic principle of the finesse is that you must be able to make a key play after an opponent with a high card has played. You can do this only if you lead through the opponent with the high card. It follows from this that you must take care to lead as often as necessary from the correct hand. In general, you lead from weakness toward strength.

Opening lead — ♣ 10

FINESSE IN SPADES

West leads a club, and you win in dummy with the ace, noting that you must finesse in spades and diamonds. The problem is to lead from dummy as often as necessary.

You start with the trumps. Lead the eight of spades from dummy and let it ride for a finesse.

West plays a low spade on this trick without appearing to give the matter any thought. He hopes to confuse you.

ACE WIN FATAL

You must next lead a small trump from dummy. It would be fatal to lead the 10. East discards a club, and you finesse with the queen from your hand. It would be fatal to win with the ace.

West wins the second spade trick with his king and leads another club. You ruff with an honor and lead the nine of spades to dummy's ten. This entry to dummy would not exist if you had made any of the fatal errors already mentioned.

START THE DIAMONDS

It is now time to start the diamonds. Lead a diamond from dummy and finesse with the queen. Fortunately, the finesse succeeds.

Get back to dummy by leading the jack of hearts to dummy's queen. (This doesn't give you an additional heart trick, but it puts the lead where you want it.) Lead another low diamond from dummy and finesse with the jack.

Finally, you cash the ace of diamonds and ruff your last diamond with dummy's last trump. The slam is now home.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two spades (forcing to game) and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ - 5
♥ - 9 7 4 2
♦ - K 9 8 4
♣ - K Q 7 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three no trump.

You have eight points in high cards, made up of 1½ Quick Tricks. This is worth a positive response. A response of two no-trump would show weakness, and a response in a new suit would be misleading.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Assembly Panel Votes To Reduce Pot Penalty

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An Assembly commitee has voted to reduce the penalty for possession of marijuana from a felony to a misdemeanor, but killed legislation to repeal all pot penalties entirely.

The Assembly Criminal Justice Committee acted to relax marijuana penalties Tuesday as a group seeking to eliminate them completely announced it has collected more than half the necessary signatures to place the issue on the November ballot.

Witnesses testifying in favor of reduced marijuana penalties ranged from the judge in the Sirhan Sirhan murder trial and a lobbyist for the state Bar to a former Eagle Scout and youthful "Jesus freaks."

Major opponents are the District Attorneys and Peace officers Association and the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department.

With no votes to spare, the committee sent to the Aseembly floor a bill by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Beverly Hills, to make marijuana possession a misdemeanor.

Presently in California, a judge has discretion to regard marijuana possession as either a felony or a misdemeanor if it is the defendant's first offense. A felony conviction carries a prison sentence of from 1 to 10 years, while the maximum penalty for a misdemeanor is 6 months in county jail or a $500 fine.

"The penalties for marijuana do not fit the crime," contended Sieroty.

His bill needed five votes for approval and got just that many, 5-3.

The committee, however, rejected, 3-5, a bill by Assemblyman Henry A. Waxman, D-Los Angeles, to remove all penalties against possession of marijuana. Commercial sales of marijuana still would be illegal.

Waxman called the present law "wholly unrealistic and anachronistic."

A proposal similar to Waxman's is being pushed by a group seeking to qualify an initiative measure on the November ballot. The organization needs to collect signatures of 326,000 registered voters by June 19 and announced at the hearing it has obtained 180,000.

"We should give the same privilege and choice to a person who smokes a joint as a person who drinks a highball," said Robert Ashford, a San Francisco attorney who is coordinating the initiative drive. "We should stop making millions of otherwise law abiding Californians criminals in the eyes of the law."

Ashford supported Waxman's bill and oppposed Sieroty's as "only a lip service solution."

Dr. Thomas Gitchoff, director of criminal justice administrration at San Diego State College and a former Eagle Scout, said he came from a generation which believed "marijuana was the weed of madness." Later, Gitchoff told the committee, he saw middle class youngsters trying marijuana "about as fast as it takes to let a crew cut grow into a Prince Valiant haircut."

He added, "I've never seen anybody violent on marijuana. In fact, maybe the world would be a happier place if we all took grass."

The comment brought loud applause from the approximately 100 youths who packed the committee room.

Also supporting the Sieroty bill was Dr. J. Thomas Ungerleider, a member of the President's commission on drug abuse which recommended removal of marijuana penalties for private use.

But Carl W. Anderson, lobbyist for the district attorneys and peace officers, said "we believe the present sentencing procedure, where the first offense can be prosecuted as a misdemeanor, gives the courts sufficient flexibility."

PUC POLICY

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Senate has approved without a ripple of dissent controversial legislation urging the state Public Utilities Commission to comply more strictly with a law requiring its staff attorneys to participate in all proceedings.

The measure by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, calls on the commission, whose members were appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan, to report back within 15 days on steps taken to achieve full compliance.

The proposal sailed out of the Senate on a voice vote Tuesday without an audible dissenting vote.

As the Senate prepared to adjourn, Alquist stood at his desk and explained that the resolution merely "clarifies legislative intent" of a provision of the Public Utilities Code.

He asked for an "aye" vote and sat down. The motion carried routinely and Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, the presiding officer, declared it adopted.

The resolution accuses the commission of "on occasion, by individual order" prohibiting its staff of civil service lawyers from carrying out a provision of the law which declares that the staff attorneys must appear and represent the public as well as the commission at all commission proceedings.

MURDER BILL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Senate Judiciary Committee has overwhelmingly approved a bill supported by Gov. Ronald Reagan making the killing of an on-duty peace officer automatic first degree murder.

But in a related action, the committee defeated by one vote legislation stripping the power of the governor to commute the term of a convict serving a life sentence without possibility of parole.

Sen. H.L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, author of both proposals, received permission Tuesday to return in two weeks to seek to have the committee reconsider its defeat of the commutation legislation.

The committee on a 9-2 vote sent the measure making the slaying of a policeman automatic first degree murder to the full Senate. Reagan had called for such legislation in his "state of the state" message last January.

Under current law, the slaying of a policeman can be either first or second degree murder.

HITS COUNCIL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An Assembly committee has approved a bill that would abolish the California Council on Criminal Justice and replace it with a five-man board of fulltime professionals.

The Criminal Justice Committee sent the measure by Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda, to Ways and Means Tuesday on a 5-1 vote, with Assemblyman Robert Beverly, R-Manhattan Beach, dissenting.

VD PROPOSAL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation permitting schools to contract with private agencies to provide instruction on venereal disease prevention has been approved by an Assembly committee.

The Education Committee sent the measure by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, to the ways and means Committee Tuesday on a 10-5 vote.

Approval came after the legislation was amended to require the state superintendent of public instruction to approve all VD instruction courses.

WIRETAP

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill law enforcement agencies said would "strengthen the hand of local governments by permitting electronic eavesdropping in some criminal investigations has been rejected by an Assembly committee.

The Criminal Justice Committee turned down the measure by Assemblyman W. Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, Tuesday after Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda, declared a wiretap was "nondiscriminatory" and a "sponge."

With the wiretap, Crown said, "You hear all sorts of things."

Arlo Smith of the state attorney general's office argued, "We ought to strengthen the hand of local government ... at getting at organized crime, the big criminal."

TUITION

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Assembly Education Committee has rejected a study-now, pay-later higher education plan described by its author as a "poor man's bill."

After opponents charged it would place a financial burden on students, the so-called "learn, earn and reimburse" measure by Assemblyman John L. E. Collier, R-Los Angeles, failed Tuesday on a 6-10 vote.

The bill would have required University of California and state college students to pay tuition. If a student could not pay, he could sign a note promising to repay the state for part of the cost of his education after graduation.

TUTOR FUNDS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly Education Committee has approved a bill appropriating $866,000 to expand the pilot program in which college students are used as tutors for elementary school pupils with reading problems.

The panel sent the measure by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, to the Ways and Means Committee Tuesday on a quick 15-0 vote. The hearing room was packed with the tutors.

The program, called SHARE, was initiated in Santa Clara County in 1970. The measure requests the superintendent of public instruction to include SHARE projects in the annual budget of the state Department of Education.

OPPOSE PLAN

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Women labor leaders have vowed to fight legislation that would add California to states ratifying the proposed equal rights amendment when it comes before the Assembly. An aide to Assemblyman Walter Karabian, D-Monterey Park, the author of the measure, said the resolution would come before the Assembly as early as Thursday and no later than Monday.

Karabian's office prepared Tuesday to win swift approval for the measure. The aide said if labor does not campaign vigorously against the amendment it should pass the Assembly without difficulty.

But women labor leaders said they would fight the proposal to ratify the 27th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution after the all-male Assembly Judiciary Committee approved the measure Monday night in a 4 1-2 hour hearing.

"Equal rights should not mean loss of rights for women but an extension of them to all workers," Ann Draper, representative of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, told the committee.

Far-Fetched Idea On Curbing Vandalism To Nation's Schools

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Concrete walls four feet thick, no doors, no windows, no lights, no plumbing fixtures and surrounded by a 10-foot high electrified fence.

A top-security prison? No, James F. Fisher of Oakland, told the National School Boards Association annual convention yesterday.

That's how he sees the probable complete answer to vandals on school property.

Fisher, director of Oakland school construction, admits the extreme is "ridiculous," but said new methods have to be found to outwit and thwart vandals

To test stronger and better building materials and alarm systems, he suggests that authorities indulge in a little make-believe vandalism themselves.

To find out just how good those materials are, he said, "test, try, kick, hammer—will lipstick or ballpoint pen really come off the surface? And not leave a mark?"

Robert E. Grimditch, an insurance executive from San Francisco, went further in proposed remedies for "uncomfortably" high costs to schools as a result of vandalism.

In addition to human watchdogs, he detailed a host of electronic devices which could be used to keep every inch of school grounds under surveillance 24 hours a day.

Electronic fences can be installed to trigger an alarm if any person approaches within three feet of an electromagnetic field.

On his list, too, is a portable radar unit which transmits a 25-foot radius of high intensity radio frequency waves. Any disturbance of the pattern triggers an alarm.

Monday, famed psychiatrist Dr. W. Walter Menninger told the convention that opposition to busing stems from subtle prejudices.

U.S., Mexico River Boundary Pact Set

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States and Mexico have formally put into force a treaty resolving boundary disputes—some dating back to 1907—caused by course changes in the Rio Grande and Colorado Rivers.

The Senate approved the treaty last November. It was formally implemented Tuesday when Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Mexican Ambassador Jose De Olloqui exchanged documents at a State Department ceremony.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Without Milk Sickness Lincoln May Not Have Been President

We never hear of the milk sick disease, but 150 years ago, it was a serious problem in the Midwest. Many fatalities occurred among the pioneers and their horses and cattle. And because entire communities were affected, the plants or soil were held responsible. As a result, settlers frequently pulled up stakes and migrated westward. This happened to the family of Abraham Lincoln when Nancy, his mother, died of the disease. Perhaps he would never have been President had it not been for milk sickness and the family's move from Indiana to Illinois.

THE CONDITION is called milk sickness because many people develop the symptoms of poisoning after drinking milk or eating butter from a sick cow. The animal is ill because it eats the white snakeroot and may develop the "trembles." Some of the poison (trematol) gets into the milk, and anyone who drinks it is likely to become ill or die.

Nowadays the sickness is seldom encountered because most milk comes from large dairies. During the processing, any milk that might be contaminated is so diluted that it is safe. Years ago, farmers peddled their own milk and left a trail of sickness along the route.

THE INITIAL symptoms of milk sickness are lassitude, drowsiness, and weakness. Obstinate constipation develops and there is no appetite. This is followed by abdominal pain, nausea, and vomiting. Dehydration and acidosis ensue unless the condition is recognized and intravenous fluids are started.

Snakeroot, an annual, grows in most parts of the United States and has been a problem for decades. It is a slim weed with leaves two to five inches long and has 10 to 30 small white flowers on the top. The plant is easily eradicated by cutting early or pulling before it blooms or the seeds fall to the ground.

Learn to recognize the plant and destroy it immediately. It is still found in pastures, backyards, playgrounds, and public parks. Children will eat anything in sight and weed poisoning must be considered if a baffling illness develops suddenly.

LAZY THYROID

D. D. writes: If an underactive thyroid is neglected, how will the body be affected?

REPLY

The skin becomes cold and dry, the hair tends to fall out and become dry, and the mind becomes dulled. Weight gain occurs in some along with puffiness of the face. The victim feels cold because his metabolism is low.

In time the heart becomes lazy and enlarges.

GRATING KNEES

R. W. writes: Will taking a spoonful of cod liver oil and a mouthful of orange juice before going to bed help grating in the knee?

REPLY

No, but this odd combination won't aggravate the condition either. This type of arthritis is better at times and worse at others.

Reagan Declares Crop Emergency

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — In the wake of severe frost and hail damage to crops, Gov. Ronald Reagan has declared a state of emergency in 13 Northern and Central counties.

The governor also asked President Nixon to designate the counties as a disaster area.

Reagan's action opens the door to business and property tax relief for the growers.

The affected counties are Fresno, Kings, Tulare, Stanislaus, Tehama, Placer, Nevada, San Benito, Kern, San Joaquin, El Dorado, Merced and Madera.

Stolen Property Felony Case Dismissed By Judge

A superior court judge yesterday dismissed a felony charge of receiving stolen property against Donald H.L. DeSurville in the midst of a jury trial on the charge.

Judge Thomas F. Keating ruled the prosecution had insufficient evidence after a conference with the attorneys involved while the defense was presenting its case.

The prosecution had called only one witness who testified for six minutes against the owner of Town and Country Billiards in Kentfield.

DeSurville was arrested Nov. 12 on a charge that he had purchased a valuable coin collection stolen by teen-agers from a Larkspur home in October.

DeSurville was suspected of buying $250 worth or coins from the $3,400 in coins taken from the home of Norbert G. Hartman.

Plea Made To Robbery Of Motorist

Richard Dean Guendner, 21, of Larkspur, has pleaded innocent to the armed robbery of a motorist Saturday.

A preliminary hearing in Marin Municipal Court was set for Tuesday.

Guendner was arrested by Larkspur police after Thomas S. Robertson of Tiburon was roughed up and robbed of $75 by hitchhikers.

Police are seeking Steven John Pappas, 21, of San Francisco, for his alleged part in the incident.

Pappas allegedly grabbed the driver by the neck and threatened him with a knife while Guendner took the money, according to police.

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday and Monday in saying Guendner both threatened and robbed Robertson.

Police said the hitchhikers forced the motorist to drive from in front of the police station to the end of Baltimore Canyon where they robbed him.

A third hitchhiker who was in the car has not been identified, according to police.

Shares In Road Users Taxes Set

Sonoma County received $197,259.22, of which Petaluma received $20,458.77; Cotati, $1,505.66, and Rohnert Park, $5,219.59.

TIBURON-BELVEDERE TURNOFF AT HWY. 101, MILL VALLEY

Village Offers A 'Cruise'

Vistors to Strawberry's Town and Country Village can enjoy an imaginary cruise on the T.S. Hamburg during the Sea Fair holidays.

As crew members, assignments to the engine room wheelhouse, and the deck force are published at 0700. Passengers can enjoy the latest nautical fashions for spring and summer for every kind of casual and formal occasion.

The day begins with a hearty breakfast of buttermilk pancakes, sausage, barbecued ham at the Hick'ry Pit.

Following reakfast yoga classes will be held on the fantail by Capricorn Books. At 0900 all launches are lowered and our ladies descend for a fashion shopping tour of the Village.

Here, one experiences elegance at James Sears, chic ensembles at Gigi's, leisure wear at the Little Daisy, romantic attire at Littlechix, and casual wear from Alvin Duskin. Some of the ladies will have cruise dresses made to order at Eleanor Green's Dresscotheque. For garden and pool parties a brief visit to the Polynesian House will be a special side trip. For shipboard, nautical fashions unfold at Motherhood Maternity.

Our ship's whistle signals lunch time aboard the decks of the Ancient Mariner where delectable steak sandwiches and salads are served in the classic nautical tradition.

Once again our launches sail forth past the bumboats to the docks of International Imports. Here, in keeping with the ancient market place, is the hum and excitement of the bazaar — bargains and treasures from the four corners of the globe.

Spanish doubloons are exchanged at the Golden Gate Coin and Stamp shop. Fine coffees are quaffed by eager tourists at the continental style Caravansary.

Some of the guests will enjoy special excursions to the nifty gourmet boutiques. At Walther's Bakery tasty cakes and pastries are born. Packages to send home include cheeses and fine foods from Hickory Farms and vintage wines from the Village Liquors. Visitors to the Village will find shopping adventures await in the Golden Cherub, Fiesta Candle, Boutique Mimi, RoJean's, and Telford's Pipe Shop.

Tennis lessons and tennis fashions are available in the afternoon at Marina Tennis.

A brief splash in the pool is in order and then an exciting retracing in the footsteps of Marco Polo as he dined with Kublai Khan begins 'neath chandeliers at Kublai Khan. Gourmet delights are featured at dinner time. Here is no place for counting calories. Kublai Khan offers gastronomic joy. Patrons enjoy the delicate lift of aromatic herbs, a delicacy of taste, piquant combinations and mouthwatering ingredients in a superlative menu.

A stroll down the passageways discovers the music of the great bands, a complementary invitation from the Marin Music Center to enjoy the joy of quadraphonic sound.

And thus it goes on our voyage during the Sea Fair at Town and Country Village.

Exciting Nautical Fashions Available

An exciting program has been undertaken by Town and Country Village aboard the German-Atlantic Line's T.S. Hamburg. The programs started on April 9 and will continue June 9, ship's sailing dates.

Fashion layouts have been photographed by San Francisco cameraman Terry Ward. KGO-TV, Channel 7, will film portions of this showing for newscasts. Fashion magazines and travel magazines will also feature excerpts from this series.

The nautical fashions at the many boutiques of Town and Country Villages in Mill Valley, Palo Alto, Sunnyvale, and San Jose have been modeled for Ward's lenses, from the binnacle to the galley and from the engine rooms to the funnel.

The models chosen include Elaine Macy, Tiburon; Samantha Swann, Larkspur; Randi Blair, Carina Corman and Betty Haymen, San Rafael; Candy Lauer, San Anselmo; Sheila Barnett and Debbie Whitworth, Sunnyvale; Marcia Sulk, Sausalito; and Lois Langston, Tiburon.

The T.S. Hamburg, the Space Ship, commences its sea-air fall cruise to the Mediterranean and the Black Sea on Sept. 14. This dream cruise includes 12 perfect ports and returns to the U.S. by KLM Airlines.

Bert Talbot of Talbot of Tiburon's Travel Agency is handling the travel arrangements for the Hamburg in Marin County.

As one passenger expressed it, 'They even got the kitchen sink!'

New Store To Open In Town & Country

"It is going to be a great opening," promises Hal Wolfson, owner of James Sears of Marin. James Sears, longtime resident of the merchant community of Vallejo will introduce its couturier to fashion in Marin along with an addition of sportswear. Sizes will be extended to size 16. Miss Lois Asdale Langston, of Scotland, will manage the new store at 234 Town & Country Village. Wolfson is from Philadelphia and is now a resident of Sausalito.

Special Class Aided By Fashion Show

The Omicron Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi of Marin County held its annual fashion show at the Boathouse in Sausalito Friday. Themed "Tonics and Tunics" the show featured fashions from Littlechix, the petite sizes, fashion store in Town and Country Village.

All proceeds were for the special class for autistic children at the Henry C. Hall School in Larkspur. Judy Cefalu of Kentfield was the fashion coordinator. The commentator was Littlechix owner, Charles LaBue. The fashions included hot pants, bathing suits, long dresses and casual wear.

Littlechix Buyer Trip Completed

Charles LaBue has just compelted his annual New York buying trip, and the exciting new items are arriving daily. During the trip, LaBue made it a point to visit the out-of-the-way manufacturers who are so popular at present.

Just a short time back, Littlechix was an idea of Wayne Klugman and Charles LaBue. They had discovered that sophisticated clothes were virtually impossible to find in small sizes. Their success was immediate, and they opened their third store in February in Palo Alto's Town & Country Village.

The Great Gildersleeve's Voice Back On Radio For Gibraltar

It's been about 20 years since you heard the unforgettable chuckle of the Great Gildersleeve in the "Golden Days" of radio.

But that engaging voice is yours to enjoy again whenever you hear the friendly commercials of Gibraltar Savings and Loan Association.

You have to say the man who created Gildersleeve, Hal Peary, wears well. One of his secrets was to start early.

Born in San Leandro, and raised in Napa, Hal was 13 when he first planted his sturdy frame in front of a microphone. Would you believe as a singer? The station was KLX, Oakland, and Hal was known as the Boy Caruso. "I had an extremely high voice. When it changed, it had to be for the better."

Hal's first job as an actor was at NBC in San Francisco. Without pay. But he did so well that the network decided to pay him $35 a week. Hal claims the pay was primarily for his versatility. "I was known as their triple-threat man. Sang, acted and wielded a broom."

News of his San Franciso work had preceded him. Marion and Jim Jordan, already known as Fibber McGee and Molly, offered him a job on their show.

The Jordans encouraged Hal to create the character of Throckmorton P. Gildersleeve for their show in 1937. It was an immediate success. Two years later they all went to Hollywood to broadcast the program and make movies at RKO.

One of the questions most often asked of Hal is how he developed his famous chuckle. "We were doing a McGee show and ran out of script and about five minutes before the program was to end. The producer was frantically giving us the "stretch it" sign so Fibber and I started ad libbing. At one point McGee said something funny and I reacted with that "nasty" Gildersleeve laugh. Well, the audience howled. From that point on, the laugh was included in every show and it became my "trademark"."

Just before the summer hiatus for Fibber and Molly, Hal was asked to build a radio show of his own to replace them for thirteen weeks.

With Leonard L. Levinson, one of their writers, Hal wrote about a bachelor who left "Wistful Vista" to go to "Summerfield" to raise a niece and nephew. Thus were born Marjorie (Laureen Tuttle) and Lee-Roy (Walter Tetley) and the "Great Gildersleeve". At this point, what appeared to be misfortune turned into a lucky break. The sponsor chose another program for McGee's replacement, and just when Peary thought his show would never get off the ground or on the air, another picked it up. It started in the fall of 1941 and continued for 16 years.

Today Hal Peary is quite content — and busy — as Gibraltar's radio spokesman, appearing as guest speaker and entertainer at numerous club dates, radio and television talk shows, as character actor in many TV series (his recent, the Doris Day Show) and as "Open House Host" at the many Gibraltar offices throughout the state.

He is also the honorary mayor of Manhattan Beach, where he and his wife, Juanita, reside. She holds a degree in electrical engineering and formerly headed that department at Douglas Aircraft.

Dean Describes Modern Lawyer

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)— Dean Theodore J. St. Antoine of the University of Michigan Law School believes the modern lawyer must be a "mix of scholar and practical man" and that law schools should plan their curricula accordingly.

On the practical side, St. Antoine foresees greater emphasis on clinical law programs, such as student workstudy projects in legal aid clinics.

MARINWOOD MODELS — Ian Hay and his son, Steve, are featured in a billboard series for Chiffon. Hay owns Ideal Sationers in Strawberry's Town and Country Village. Steve, 13, is a pupil in Miller Creek School. The modeling assignment was the first for both of them.

Ian Hay And Son Are Models

Movies have been made about the predicaments and misadventures that occur when personalities are selected for billboards. Jack Lemmon as "Good Neighbor" Sam spent evenings in San Francisco painting out his face as he was shown embracing a neighbor's wife.

Judy Holiday's character became famous overnight in a sequence where an obscure girl spends her entire savings on a billboard presentation of herself to achieve fame.

In Boccacio 70, Marcello Mastroianni spends sleepless hours haunted by the visage of Anita Ekberg peering through his window from a billboard.

Over in Marinwood last October an advertising agency was shooting a commercial at Hap Edde Standard Station on Miller Creek Road. In the background three boys were sitting on a fence watching.

Agency photographers on reviewing their proofs were delighted with the picture of Steve Hay and on checking with the gas station learned his address and arranged for Steve and his father, Ian, to pose in a scene of a boy having his hair cut by his father. This scene was for Crown Zellerbach's new campaign illustrating the versatility of Chiffon paper towels. Tom Tjerandsen, account executive for D'Arcy-MacManns-Intermarco Inc., San Francisco, planned the campaign in conjunction with Zellerbach ad man, Bob Haile.

The series of ads appeared in San Rafael's Idependent-Journal, California Living, Parade, Ladies Home Journal, Good Housekeeping, TV Guide, Sunset Magazine, House Beautiful, and on 300 billboards in the Western U.S.

Hay, formerly of London, is the owner of Ideal Stationers in Town and Country Village. Ian and his wife, sons, Dave and Seve, live in San Rafael.

Steve, age 13, attends the eighth grade at Miller Creek School. His hobbies include golf,, fishing, and baseball.

This modeling experience is a first for both Steve and Ian.

Producer Of Program For Village Is A Busy Person

Between news casts, executive sales contracts, and writing commercials, Clint Weyrauch is a busy man.

Producer of Shopping in The Village radio program on KTIM daily, Monday through Friday, at 11:35 a.m. 'til noon, Clint still finds time to skydive and fly.

He recently developed a rock format for listeners during the evening hours. He has added an element of versatility to the station's format. The "Village" program is a balance between music and interviews.

Weyrauch's latest effort will be a Sunday concert series featuring local rock music artists.

Departing from the traditions of a family of physicians, Clint attended Union College with the goal of radio foremost in his mind.

Hugh Turner, station manager, of KTIM gave him a chance to prove himself and he has. Originally from San Francisco, Clint lives in San Rafael.

SHIFT TO UNIFORM OF DAY

Fashion's latest excitement on the sports' deck by Hawaiian Togs. They are hot pants with long tunic worn by Elaine Macy, Tiburon, in purple, blue and green. They are from the Polynesian House.

Little Daisy Observes An Ancient Tradition

In early times man observed spring with awe and excitement. The egg and budding flowers symbolized new life. It was customary to exchange these symbols of new life with friends, family, and community to wish one another the blessings of fertility and abundant living.

Every year the Little Daisy brings an end to winter and salutes the first day of spring by offering free, living daisies to everyone visiting their stores. It is a symbol of their best wishes and connotes the excitement of color and change of mood to spring.

This year it is nautical at the Little Daisy. There is bold enthusiasm for the red, white and blue according to Patti Marsh, assistant manager. Active clothes for sailing, hiking, and outdoor play are now in-clothes. Swimwear with matching cover-ups, smocks with coordinate pants are also popular.

The Little Daisy is an Oakland-based firm headed by Wallace Bradshaw under whose leadership the store has grown to five stores in just a few years.

The Daisy's success story, according to Bradshaw, has been due to the skill of Daisy buyers in adapting a wide range of merchandise demands of both varied communities and ever changing life styles.

Bradshaw, his wife, Joyce, and three children live in LaFayette. Swimming and sailing are their pastimes.

The local Little Daisy manager at Town and Country Village is Marilyn Meadows.

New Nautical Look In Men's Fashions

There was little uniformity about the dress of seamen until the beginning of the 19th Century. The typical sailor wore loose fitting short trousers with wide bottoms, a shirt or vest, and a high waistcoat.

Caps included stocking caps, handerchiefs, and round felt hats. Many seamen wore hats made of canvas and waterproofed with tar or paint.

Early officers wore blue coats with red lapels, red waistcoats, blue breeches, white stockings and tri-cornered hats.

Men's naval uniforms have long been a symbol of distinctiveness, discipline, and tradition. Now designers have done everything for the girls that live on water.

The new nautical look includes everything from sweaters decorated with signal flags to foul weather gear, bell bottoms, stocking caps, jumpers, pinnafores, and pretty petty coats are back as in the days of sailing ships.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Larson formerly of Helena now reside in Mill Valley. Larson is employed by Levi Straus in San Francisco.

Nordhoff is a direct descendent of Charles Nordhoff the author of "Mutiny on the Bounty".

Job Deaths Stable

CHICAGO (UPI)—The death toll from occupational accidents last year was 14,200—a figure unchanged over the past two years. The number of disabling injuries, 2.2 million, was comparable to 1970's figure, the National Safety Council reports.

Trio Opens Store With Paris Flare

Travelling aboard ocean liners Ile de France and SS Washington, three girls from Paris, Betty Corman, Betty Haymen, and Gigi Meunier, arrived in San Francisco with the desire of having a special store for young ladies.

In October 1971, their dream became a reality with the opening of Gigi, Inc. in Strawberry's Town and Country Village.

According to Gigi, "Our aim is to provide young ladies with moderately priced clothes with chic distinction. We want our young lady patrons to enjoy individuality in fashion in well groomed, organized ensembles. As expressed in the familiar song, "Gigi", this is particularly important as a young girl blossoms into womanhood."

She also said "Our collections sustain distinctiveness and femininity in style."

Presently, Betty has Gigi's windows reflecting the fun and excitement of sea fashions in red, white and blue.

At Gigi's are all the colors of spring in print dresses, long pleated skirts, multi colored hats, and swimsuits with matching cover-ups. There is a magnetic air of excitement, sophistication and fun at Gigi's. One finds a nostalgic reminder of a Parisian afternoon.

Polynesian House Was Family Dream

Two imaginative apparel factory sales representatives realized the need for bright and colorful clothes for casual living in Marin.

In 1965 Dick and Molly Marcus opened the Polynesian House in Town and Country Village.

In 1972, the Polynesian style has blossomed into the latest thing dominating the spring and summer fashion season from coast to coast.

South Sea island attire is now popular in styles for men, tiny tots and grandmothers.

The Marcuses now operate five stores; their newest store opening shortly in Carmichael. The Marcus family resides in Bel Marin Keys. They have just returned from a buying trip to Hawaii with the latest styles and colors.

"At Polynesian House you'll find long muu muus, hostess dresses, short muus, slacks, print tops, bikinis, beach coverups, shoes, rattan furniture collections, and all the accessories for a Polynesian experience in Marin," says Mrs. Eunice Lavin, manager of the Village store.

Motherhood Maternity Under A New Manager

From across the seas to Town and Country Village hailsMrs. Merete Bendtsen, a new manager for Motherhood Maternity. Her appointment was made official by vice-president Harold Rosenburg on April 17 in Santa Monica.

"Motherhood Maternity offers a complete selection of apparel for expectant mothers but of most importance Motherhood's styles are leading the fashion world in the nautical look," proclaims Mrs. Bendtsen.

Originally from Slagelse, Denmark, she now resides with her husband, Christian, in San Rafael.

She says, "There is no place like Marin County. The weather is nice, people are friendly and life is easy."

GROWING CONCERN — Alvin Duskin's owner, Harry Shain, has led his retail stores to a total of ten locations serving northern California in two years. His Marin store is in Strawberry.

At Alvin Duskin Girls Find Fun Wear In Classic Styles

Fun wear is the experience junior size girls enjoy at Alvin Duskin retail in Town and Country Village. "The classic styles that make Duskin unique include every kind of casual apparel," exclaims manager Aileen Reis.

Alvin Duskin retail stores are actually independent organizations, entirely separate from the manufacturing entity. Paul Maris operates the factory while Mr. Harold Shain owns and operates the retail company.

Through the leadership of Shain as president, vice president Sylvia Williamson, supervisors Shari Costio and Claire Tafralis, the Alvin Duskin stores have grown to 10, all in northern California in slightly less than two years.

Harold Shain, a personal friend of Duskin, brought to the boutique shop clothes that are fashionable, wearable, and priced for everyone.

In the beginning, only Duskin manufactured clothes were carried, but now the Duskin stores have expanded their stylized lines to include Hubba-Hubba, Utopia, Wrangler, Joshua Tree, Strawberry Plant, Gunne Sax, Aplomb and other fun lines.

Shain, his wife, Miriam, and three daughters live in San Francisco.

NEW PLANS — This 10-story office building, which some county officials claim will dwarf the new Veterans Memorial Building, has been proposed for the graded hillside north of the Marin Civic Center complex. The huge project was proposed by San Rafael contractor Arthur R. Nicolaisen, as an alternative to his previously approved plans for a motel on the site.

N. Viet Jets Hit 7th Fleet Vessels

MIG Attack First Ever; Four Wounded

SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnamese MIG fighter planes and "high speed surface craft" today attacked U.S. 7th Fleet warships stationed in the Gulf of Tonkin, the U.S. command announced.

It was the first attack of the war by the Soviet-built MIGs against anything but U.S. warplanes, spokesmen said.

Four U.S. sailors were wounded when one of the warships was hit by missiles from the MIGs or the North Vietnamese gunboats.

Earlier, Communist troops captured a district capital on South Vietnam's central coast and launched new attacks against three government positions within 40 miles of Saigon. In Cambodia, Communist forces continued their push along vital Highway 1 near the border, almost occupying one city and cutting off a provincial capital.

The air attacks against the U.S. warships took place between 20 and 30 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) separating the two Vietnams as the American ships were pounding North Vietnamese shore batteries.

"Preliminary reports indicate one MIG destroyed and two enemy surface craft were sunk by fire from the (UFS) Sterett," a Navy destroyer, the spokesmen said.

The command stressed in a statement to newsmen they had only "preliminary reports" on the incident, "subject to modification.

On Sunday, U.S. planes accidentally hit the frigate Worden. The Worden was thought at first to have been hit by eneny PT boats. However, on Monday the U.S. destroyer Buchanan was hit by shore batteries.

In other action today, Hanoi Radio said U.S. fighter bombers hit inside North Vietnam for the 14th consecutive day, raiding targets just north of the 20th Parallel. Saigon military sources did not confirm the report but said U.S. B52 bombers flew their heaviest strikes in South Vietnam since 1969. Communist forces, meanwhile, launched heavy attacks against the district capital of Dau Tieng at the edge of the old Michelin rubber plantation, 40 miles northwest of Saigon, and overwhelmed defenders at Hoai An, another district capital in the Central Highlands.

Military officials said "the situation at Dau Tieng looks very bad," adding the city likely would have to be abandoned in the face of any heavy North Vietnamese attacks because of the lack of manpower in the region.

At beleaguered An Loc, 60 miles northwest of Saigon, which the Viet Cong reportedly have staked out as their new capital, Communist troops attacked a government paratroop position on a hill overlooking the town. After five hours of combat and seven waves of bombing strikes, fighting still raged, military sources said.

Fighting also flared today in an area stretching 15 miles between the only major South Vietnamese base at Lai Khe and Highway 15, where government troops are fighting to relieve beseiged An Loc.

Communist troops circled around and attacked behind the stalled government relief drive and within 27 miles of Saigon.

Closer to the capital, a small-scale skirmish broke out 13 miles south of the city. Militiamen reported killing 13 Viet Cong in that battle. Military officers continued to say there was no threat to Saigon itself.

Four Americans were killed in three helicopter crashes Wednesday bringing to eight the number killed in crashes in South Vietnam in two days and to 23 the number of GIs killed in fighting in North and South Vietnam since the March 30 invasion.

Communist troops laying siege to Dau Tieng shot down a U.S. AH1 Cobra gunship, killing both crewmen aboard. Two more choppers were downed by Communist gunfire in the Central Highlands, killing two other GIs. Four were killed when their UH1 "Huey" helicopter crashed for unknown reasons Tuesday in Phu Ben province.

Massive Building Proposed Near Marin Civic Center

A massive 10-story office building, which some county officials say will dwarf the new Veterans Memorial Building, has been proposed for the graded hillside north of the Marin Civic Center complex.

Plans for the project also call for construction of two smaller commercial buildings, underground parking, a service station and large restaurant.

According to the San Rafael Planning Department, which first received the plans yesterday, a public hearing by the planning commission has been tentatively set for May 9.

The multimillion-dollar project was proposed by San Rafael contractor Arhtur R. Nicolaisen as an alternative to his previously approved "Northgate One East" master plan. That plan calls for construction of a motel on the site at 4040 Civic Center Drive.

Under the new proposal, however, the motel would become an office building towering about 154 feet and containing about 110,000 square feet.

About 560 parking spaces would be provided, of which about 330 would be underground. The 11,400-square-foot restaurant would include a convention room and other facilities.

One county planner, viewing the plans drafted by the Menlo Park firm of International Environmental Dynamics, simply shook his head.

The county has been asked by San Rafael to comment on the proposal but will have no other voice in whether it is approved.

Gain For Seniors Housing

By ERIK M. INGRAM

The controversial Dominican Priory housing project for senior citizens cleared its last major hurdle yesterday when Marin supervisors rejected a move by some Kentfield residents to block the project. (Other Marin supervisors stories, page 14.)

With Supervisor John F. McInnis dissenting, the board voted to uphold planning commission approval of the project which is being sponsored by the Catholic Social Service.

McInnis, in casting the lone vote against the project, said he agreed with residents that the development violated the spirit of single-family residential zoning in the area.

The project calls for about 100 apartment units on the five-acre priory site at Laurel Grove Avenue and Hanken Drive.

The federally-financed project was first considered by supervisors about six months ago and was approved on a 3-to-2 vote, with Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni joining McInnis in voting against.

However, embittered residents took the supervisors' action to court and were upheld in their appeal based on a loophole in the county ordinance prohibiting such a development in a single-family neighborhood.

Supervisors, earlier this year, closed the loophole and the project was reintroduced into the bureaucratic papermill.

Opponents of the proposal, headed by attorney Louis F. Hawkins of 4 Hanken Drive, argued yesterday that the development would create traffic, noise and reduce property values.

However, other residents such as John W. Bissinger of 324 Palm Lane urged its approval since citizens would prove quieter neighbors than 22 families who legally could build on the site.

Arrigoni, in switching his vote, said he had no choice but to approve it because of the growing need for moderate-cost housing for the elderly.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar, also supporting the project, said the residents' complaints were another example of "putting it elsewhere."

"The argument that 'We're all for the project but not in our area'" is getting old, he said. Supervisors Michael Wornum and Arnold M. Baptiste agreed.

Councils Select Nine Mayors In Marin, South Sonoma

Nine mayors, six of them new, were chosen last night by city councils in Marin and Southern Sonoma in the wake of last Tuesday's municipal elections.

Three other city councils failed to select mayors because of recounts or because the top vote-getter, often the mayoral pick, was absent.

The mayoral rundown:

Albert E. Gately was chosen in Fairfax, although it took a split vote to do it. (See story, page 6.)

Frederick S. Allen was named in Ross to a fifth term. (See story, page 26.)

Warren R. Perry was selected by his colleagues on the San Anselmo City Council. (See story, page 10.)

F. Wayne Sartain was the Novato City Council choice. (See story, page 6.)

William G. Fleckles was picked by colleagues on the Larkspur City Council. (See story, page 8.)

Thomas S. Price was named to another term in Belvedere. (See story, page 17.)

Arthur N. Roberts was elected mayor in Rohnert Park. (See story, page 11.)

No mahor was selected in either Mill Valley or Tiburon since the old councils decided to remain in office until recounts are completed. (See stories, pages 26 and 17.)

The Cotati City Council, now with a youth majority, also adjourned without picking a mayor because last Tuesday's top vote-getter, 24-year-old Annette Lombardi, was absent. The council agreed, however, she would be the choice. (See story, page 26.)

Meanwhile, two new defeated council hopefuls officially asked for recounts yestarday — inbumbent James F. Reed in San Anselmo and challenger Herber C. Leney in Corte Madera. The requests brought to four the total number of recounts that will be undertaken.

Reed was an apparent third-place loser by 18 votes to Dr. Martin G. Blinder, while Leney seems to have missed a council seat by four votes.

County Elections Officer Peter C. Mayer, whose office will conduct all of the recounts except Tiburon's, said only a check of San Anselmo's tally had been set definitely — for next Wednesday. Tiburon, which will perform its recount locally, has set the vote check for Monday.

Aside from Reed and Leney, Tiburon incumbent Anne L. Ellinwood and Mill Valley Councilman Jerome C. Hauke have asked for recounts. Ellinwood apparently lost a reelection bid by two votes and Hauke by six votes.

Apollo 16 Ready For Moon Landing Time

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) —The Apollo 16 astronauts accelerated toward a springboard lunar orbit Wednesday, ready for the last leg of their journey to the lofty central highlands of the moon and new pieces to the puzzle of its creation.

Along the way, they uncapped $17 million worth of mapping instruments on the sides of the command ship Casper's service module which Thomas K. "Ken" Mattingly II will use in orbit while his companions, John W. Young and Charles M. Duke Jr., are roaming the lunar surface.

A 6-minute, 15-second firing of their main rocket engine behind the moon was aimed at braking the astronauts into an orbit of 67 to 197 miles above the moon. A second firing later in the evening would put them even closer, to within 12 miles of the lunar surface.

Young and Duke are to land at 3:41 p.m. EST Thursday to begin a record 21 hours of exploration in three days outside their fourlegged landing module, Orion, in America's fifth and next-to-last scheduled manned visit to the moon.

On a remote plateau north of the giant Descartes crater, just south of the lunar equator, they plan to set up another scientific station, examine nearby volcanic craters and mountain slopes, take the first ultraviolet "photographs" of distant stars and galaxies, and gather 195 pounds

Agnew Plans Trip

TOKYO (UPI) — U.S. Vice president Spiro Agnew will visit Japan for five days, April 12-16, to attend the Okinawa reversion ceremonies on May 15, it was announced Wednesday.

Yugoslavia Travel Restriction Lifted

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government has lifted restrictions that had been in effect since March 27 on travelers entering the country from Yugoslavia, where there had been a smallpox outbreak.

Nixon Near Viet Decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon will go on nationwide radio and television some time next week to discuss further Vietnam troop withdrawals and the recent escalation of the war, it was learned today.

Sources close to the President said the speech would come after he studies a report by Brig. Gen. Alexander N. Haig, deputy to presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, who returns in a few days from a fact-finding trip to Vietnam.

Nixon said last Jan. 13 that the U.S. troop ceiling would fall to 69,000 by May 1. Despite the recent North Vietnamese offensive and a vast stepup in American bombing activity in both North and South Vietnam, officials have stressed that the 69,000-man goal would be reached and that the pullout program would not be halted.

However, Nixon apparently has not made a decision on the next phase of withdrawals and will not until he gets an analysis from Haig.

The presidentially ordered bombing last weekend of both Haiphong and Hanoi stirred the most vigorous debate in months in Congress about the war, and Secretary of State William P. Rogers made his second trip to Capitol Hill in three days today.

Rogers told reporters that there had been no evidence so far that bombing would "adversely affect" Nixon's plans to visit Moscow next month.

Rogers denied that the administration had been particularly emphasizing the substantial Soviet support in the form of heavy weapons to the Communist offensive.

On the Senate floor, Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., his voice cracking with emotion, said he hoped American bombs hit all the Soviet ships that were in Haiphong harbor last weekend because "they've got no business being there."

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., argued that the bombing amounted to "raw retaliation." He added: "The President's policy has been threatened and there is nothing more vengeful than the 'wounded pride of a king.'"

Of the Haiphong port bombing —in which Moscow claims four Soviet ships were damaged —Goldwater declared: "I say if we hit a Russian ship in Haiphong, that's too damned bad. I hope we hit them all. They've got no business being there."

Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., said the majority of Americans supports Nixon's "current course." They disagree, he said, with "those who would urge us to use the occasion of a naked invasion of South Vietnam as a suitable time to turn our backs on our allies and to expose our withdrawing troops to danger."

Rogers met privately with House members of both parties. He testified Monday on the Senate side, and Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird appeared Tuesday, both stressing that Nixon would use whatever military power he deemed necessary to try to stop the North Vietnamese offensive in South

Summit Seen Planned As Scheduled

LONDON (UPI — The Moscow summit meeting between Kremlin leaders and President Nixon will take place next month as scheduled, despite the heightening Vietnam conflict, Communist diplomats said Wednesday.

Only a major, unforeseen crisis could block it on present indications, they said.

But the stepped up Vietnam fighting is certain to cloud the Moscow meetiing, scheduled for May 22-30, and make the going tougher all round, the diplomats said.

There still is a month go to before the summit and much could happen between now and May 22. However, as of now the Communist view is that there is much at stake for the superpowers and the world as a whole that needs talking over on the highest level.

(In Washington, Secretary of State William P. Rogers told newsmen there was no evidence so far that the bombing raids on North Vietnam would "adversely affect" Nixon's plans to visit Moscow next month).

The Vietnam problem is only one of many crucial issues slated for discussion, Communist diplomats said.

Among other matters is the important question of nuclear arms curbs. An agreement—at least a partial one—probably will be signed by Nixon and the Kremlin leaders.

Sierra Club Loses Court Test To Halt Mineral King Project

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In a setback for environmentalists, the Supreme Court by a narrow 4-1 vote barred the Sierra Club today from suing to stop a $35 million development in California's mineral King Valley by the Walt Disney organization.

The majority opinion, written by Justice Potter Stewart, means the conservationist organization may not proceed in federal district court in San Francisco, under the Administrative Procedure Act, to litigate claims that the secretaries of Agriculture and Interior violated federal law and regulations in allowing the vast commercial venture in the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

The Disney firm proposed to take over 80 acres in the isolated game refuge for an "Alpine village" with hotels, restaurants, a theater, swimming pools and accommodations for 14,000 skiers at one time.

The Sierra Club has said that about 1,000 acres would actually be affected. The club sued both secretaries because national forests are under the jurisdiction of the Agriculture Department, while national parks come under the Interior Department.

The Administrative Procedure Act accords judicial review to a "person suffering legal wrong because of agency action or (who is) adversely affected or aggrieved by agency action within the meaning of a relevant statute."

Sierra Club members are said to be seeuing other means to challenge the project, which cannot proceed until a contract is awarded for an access road.

Stewart said a person can seek judicial review under the Administrative Procedure Act only if he can show that he himself has suffered or will suffer injury, economic or otherwise. He said the Sierra Club asserted no individualized harm to itself or its members.

Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Harry A. Blackmun issued dissenting opinions.

Blackmun said, "I fear, and sadly so ... that the $35.3 million complex, over 10 times greater than the Forest Service's suggested minimum, will now hastily proceed to completion; that serious opposition to it will recede in discouragement; and that Mineral King, the 'area of great natural beauty nestled in the Sierra Nevada Mountains' ... will become dfaced, at least in part, and, like so many other areas, will cease to be 'uncluttered by the products of civilization.'"

Douglas, an outdoorsman from boyhood, said the critical question of standing would be simplified "if we fashioned a federal rule that allowed environmental issues to be litigated before federal agencies of federal courts in the name of the inanimate object about to be despoiled, defaced or invaded by roads and bulldozers and where injury is the subject of public outrage."

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Meredith Back On Campus

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI) — James Meredith, whose first appearance 10 years ago at the University of Mississippi touched off a bloody riot, returned to the campus yesterday to lecture to a history class.

Meredith

"I think this is what's happening in Mississippi," he told his students for a day.

Meredith, 39, and graying in his Afro hair style, told the class of 70 students, including four blacks, that "I can't explain how significant this is. It has been quite a jump to come here as a student under the conditions I did and then to return to teach."

Meredith now is a Republican candidate for the seat of veteran Democratic Sen. James Eastland, with little hope of success.

Acceptance Asked

ATLANTA (UPI) — The United Methodist Church has been called upon to "declare our acceptance of homosexuals as persons of sacred worth and that we welcome them into the fellowship of the church."

The request came in a lengthy statement yesterday on social principals presented to the 1,000 delegates, representing the denomination's 11 million members, meeting in general conference.

LBJ's Doctor Stays

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — An "early warning" signal that former President Lyndon B. Johnson might have more heart troubles as he recuperates from an attack April 7 has caused his personal dgctor to stay in Texas several more days.

Dr. J. Willis Hurst, who flew to Johnson's side Monday night after the 36th President suffered a flurry of irregular heartbeats, said Johnson, 63, recovered from the burst yesterday and was in good spirits and resting well.

IRA Threatens

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — The Irish Republican Army threatened today to escalate its fight against British rule following the funeral of an IRA leader killed by a British patrol.

"The death of Joseph McCann has not been in vain, for it has strengthened the determination of republicans to continue and escalate their political activities until all their demands are met," an IRA spokesman said.

New violence followed the funeral of McCann yesterday.

An IRA car bomb exploded in Belfast, injuring a policeman and a pedestrian, a British army spokesman said.

ITT Attacked

SANTIAGO (UPI) — President Salvador Allende attacked America's International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. yesterday as "the perfect example of imperialism" and said he will ask congress to expropriate the company's Chilean holdings.

Allende made the announcement to thousands of cheering supporters in a speech in which he also accused the opposition of attempting to start a civil war. He said the army and the public were solidly behind his government.

Allende hinted the expropriation legislation would contain a "negative indemnization" clause, under which ITT's "excessive profits" would be deducted from the book value of the company's Chilean property.

Unconstitutional

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The U.S. District Court declared Connecticut's 112-year-old restrictive abortion law unconstitutional Tuesday.

Deputy Atty. General C. Perrie Philips said his office would review the decision for possible appeal and Republican Gov. Thomas J. Meskill, a Roman Catholic, said he may ask the legislature to enact a new abortion law.

The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Hartford asked the state to fight the ruling to "defend the absolute right of the child over a mother's false absolute freedom to take her own child's life away."

Israel Celebrates

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israel's 24th anniversary celebrations reached their climax today with a naval review and a parachute drop into the Mediterranean watched by nearly 350,000 spectators.

The main focus of the independence celebrations was along the Tel Aviv beachfront. Police said 350,000 persons jammed the five-mile long stretch of the Mediterranean shoreline to watch a naval review and a massed paratroop drop.

Thirteen gunboats built to Israeli specifications in French shipyards and armed with locally-built and designed Gabriel sea-to-sea missiles, churned through a flotilla of small naval craft and a submarine.

Mill Valley Peace Group Will March

The Mill Valley peace action committee will sponsor a motorcade to Saturday's peace march in San Francisco.

Cars will leave from the parking lot of Sabella's Restaurant at 9 a.m. and will arrive at Baker and Fell streets in San Francisco in time for the march to Kezar stadium, according to Gloria Jones, committee member.

Can't Meet Deadline, Ford Claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Ford Motor Co. testified today it could not meet the government's exhaust cleanup deadline and said refusal to postpone it could force a shutdown that would put 800,000 people out of work.

Even with a one-year postponement—all that the law allows—Ford said it had "no technical basis whatsoever" for believing it could meet the standards. The company urged William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), to review the standards and "present his recommendations to Congress," taking into consideration the high cost of emission controls.

Ford did not say so but the implication was that Ruckelshaus should ask Congress to dilute or delay the antipollution standards, which were written into the 1970 Clean Air Act for 1975 model cars.

Ford's position was stated in a document formally requesting that the standards be delayed one year. Other auto makers have made the same request. EPA officials subpoenaed Herbert L. Misch, Ford vice president, to answer questions today about the proposed delay.

Echoing statements by General Motors and other manufacturers, Ford said tests indicated its exhaust controls would wear out much too quickly. The law requires a 90 per cent reduction in emissions of carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons, and stipulates that the controls still work after 50,000 miles of driving.

Even with this "disappointing performance," Ford said, the control devices would boost the cost of a 1975 model by $430. The firm said it was now testing another device that would cost $290.

But the company said no such device would be ready for 1975 models, and predicted drastic economic results if the government sticks to the 1975 deadline and forces Ford to stop auto production for the 1975 model year.

Ford said such a shutdown would slow growth of the gross national product by $17 billion, cut national economic growth from a rate of 4 per cent to 2.7 per cent, increase unemployment by 800,000, or nine-tenths of 1 per cent, force more than 3,300 Ford dealers out of business and cut tax receipts about $5 billion.

"Ford—should it survive—would be in a drastically weakened financial condition for many years," the company said.

Ford said the 800,000 unemployment estimate included 180,000 of its own employes, 115,000 at Ford dealerships, plus reduced employment among the firm's suppliers and even in "industries totally unrelated to automotive production."

To Host Nixons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary and Mrs. John B. Connally will host President and Mrs. Nixon at a supper at their Floresville, Tex., ranch on April 30.

Meany Speaks Against Strikes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—AFL-CIO President George Meany said Tuesday he no longer believes strikes are good tools for organized labor and has appointed a committee to find an alternative weapon to the strike.

"I don't believe in strikes," he said. "I don't believe they mean what they did years ago."

Meany made the comments during an appearance before a Senate labor subcommittee which is considering a proposal from President Nixon to outlaw strikes in the transportation industry. Meany said he still opposes the administration's plan, favoring instead one that would allow strikes that would tie up only up to 40 per cent of a given transportation industry.

But Meany said his general views on strikes have changed over the years, from the time when a striking union could afford to pay its workers only 60 cents an hour in strike benefits. Now, he said, even though the benefits may be a little better, they are not sufficient for working people who have children in college, mortgage payments and other responsibilities.

GEORGE MEANY
Seek strike alternative

He said the day when a union was willing to call a strike over the interpretation of a contract clause has almost vanished because such disputes are now settled by arbitration.

Chrysler Votes Down UAW Contract Plans

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. directors weathered a stinging attack by the United Auto Workers Tuesday to defeat overwhelmingly three consumer-oriented proposals and push through three proposals of their own.

The three management sponsored proposals —bonuses for executives even in low profit years, improved pensions for salaried employes and more liberal stock option plan for the company's top echelon -won easily despite accusations by UAW Vice President Douglas Fraser that the executives were displaying "disgusting greed."

One irate stockholder stood up during the meeting and burned an $8 dividend check to protest the adoption of the executives' bonus plan, which Fraser said would allow a handful of corporations executives to share millions of dollars in bonuses.

Two of the defeated proposals were put forth by the Ralph Nader-inspired Project on Corporate Responsibility (PCR) making its first appearance at a Chrysler shareholders' meeting.

A PCR proposal to broaden the board of directors to include a woman and representatives of employe organizations, consumers and minority groups received only 5 per cent of the 37 million shares voted.

A proposal to require an annual report to stockholders on progress in pollution control and safety and a third proposal aimed at forcing the company to design cars with pedestrian safety in mind received even fewer votes.

Defeat of the proposals was expected. Similar proposals were to be up for stockholder consideration at the annual meetings of Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp. next month.

Fraser, who voted the UAW's four shares of Chrysler stock, said if the board-backed bonus plan had been in effect in 1969, 52 executives would have shared $3.4 million, while last year, 48 executives would have split $7.8 million.

Market Loses Stacking Suit

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Saying that stacking supermarket products out of the reach of the shopper was creating "an unwarranted risk," a Superior Court Tuesday awarded $11,497.45 to a woman who was struck by a jar of falling olives.

The court found in favor of Mary Dougherty who filed a suit against the A&P supermarket chain.

During the trial, the assistant manager of the supermarket testified that even though he was 5-foot-11, he would have to stretch to reach the olives on the top shelf. The woman was about five feet tall, the court said.

Riot Order Described By Sergeant

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI)—A Santa Barbara sheriff's sergeant testified Tuesday that deputies were ordered to "beat the living hell" out of bystanders during a riot near the University of California at Santa Barbara in 1970.

Sgt. Edward Piceno testified that fired sheriff's Capt. Joel B. Honey had ordered deputies "to go out there and beat the living hell out of anybody that was away from the crowd, get in our cars and leave."

His testimony came when Honey's attorney asked Piceno to describe the circumstances surrounding an incident for which Piceno and his partner were suspended for 10 days by Sheriff James Webster.

Piceno said he and Sgt. Fred Higgins were suspended for leaving their patrol car and smashing the camera and destroying the film of Richard Cutting. He said he felt the actions fell under the general orders issued by Honey.

Soviet Encyclopedia Will Be Published

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Plans have been announced to publish an English version of the Great Soviet Encyclopedia—a 30-volume set consisting of 25 million to 30 million words that will take until 1979 to be translated.

Announcement of the project was made by Crowell-Collier and Macmillan Inc., which said it expected to market the set to universities, libraries and other institutions at a price ranging from $500 to $1,000.

Bellflower Bombers Sought By Deputies

BELLFLOWER (UPI)—Sheriff's deputies early today sent out an alarm for two longhaired youths riding in a black car which was seen speeding away from a commercial street here shortly before a bomb exploded.

The blast late Tuesday night destroyed a building housing three businesses, heavily damaged another and shattered windows in some 40 buildings, some as far as four blocks away.

Two witnesses told deputies they saw the youths drive through the area in what was believed to be a 1957 Chevrolet, pausing to throw a "package or sack" next to a planter box in front of Castlehead Escrow, Inc.

Minutes later the blast occurred at about 11:40 p.m., destroying the escrow firm, Lana's Kopy Kat print shop and New Britainy Realty office, all in the same two-story building on Bellflower Boulevard.

The witnesses, Steve R. Solimeno, 21, and Randell Roubal, 20, were hospitalized briefly for observation but were found unharmed except for earaches. There were no other injuries.

An anonymous male with a youthful voice telephoned UPI within 10 minutes of the blast to take credit for an explosion but just where was unclear.

The caller mentioned "Jesus freaks" and discrimination against Jews but spoke so rapidly his mention of the location of his alleged bombing was incomprehensible. Before hanging up, he shouted "Never again" —the slogan of the Jewish Defense League.

A sheriff's department spokesman said several hours after the blast investigators were unable to locate any building in the area that might have been a logical political or religious target for a bombing. Because of the timing of the call, however, investigators said it remained an active lead.

The explosion heavily damaged the Tress of Hair beauty shop next door to the office building. The car in which the two witnesses were riding also was damaged.

"I thought we were having an earthquake," said one resident several blocks away who, like many others, was startled out of bed.

Fire department officials placed total damage at about $250,000.

Bomb experts said the explosion had an equivalent force of six sticks of dynamite but were uncertain just what type of explosive was used.

Deputies blocked off one block of Bellflower Boulevard for several hours until the owners of the damaged offices arrived.

The explosion was the second major bombing in the Los Angeles area in two weeks.

ACLU Plans To Test Bank Record Rule

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A court test of new government regulations requiring banks to keep microfilm records of all checks deposited is being prepared by the American Civil Liberties Union, an ACLU lawyer said today.

Henry Ramsey Jr., professor of law at the University of California, said his organization plans to challenge the regulations on grounds they violate infringement of Constitutional rights to privacy.

Harold Arthur, Wells Fargo Bank vice president, said his bank agreed with the purpose of the Treasury Department regulations but said the rules violated the "long-standing bank policy that customers' transactions are their own business and are to be treated in confidence."

(Wells Fargo's San Anselmo branch was recently discovered to have been for some time disclosing to the Federal Bureau of Investigation the financial transactions of a depositor.

(The secret surveillance of the checks of Richard Stark of Corta Madera, a supporter of radical causes, came to light when a copy of a bank memo ordering the surveillance was sent to him among his canceled checks.

(The bank subsequently ordered the practice halted.)

Arthur said the regulations are intended "to stop the illegal flow of funds overseas by maintaining records and reporting foreign currency transactions" but that they encompass much more.

He also said that implementations of the regulation which take effect July 1 would be a heavy fi ancial burden on banks.

Can't Fire Teacher, Court Rules

A Marin Superior Court judge yesterday ruled the Novato High School District does not have grounds to fire math teacher Wyman W. Kunzler.

Judge Thomas F. Keating said the district had not shown Kunzler, a tenured teacher, was unfit for his job.

Keating was the second Marin judge to rebuff the school district in its 2-year-old effort to fire the Hill Junior High School teacher. Judge E. Warren McGuire ruled in September of 1970 that an incompetence charge was not specific enough.

The more specific charges ruled out by Keating yesterday included teaching over the heads of his students.

The district accused Kunzler of burdening his pupils with his personal problems and giving them unrealistic assignments.

He was accused of teaching the binomial theorem to beginning algebra students and giving 20-digit multiplication problems.

Kunzler, who denied the charges, has been with the district four years when the firing effort was initiated in May of 1970.

Since he was tenured, the firing had to be done through superior court.

Hearing Set For Four In Kidnap Case

A preliminary hearing has been set for May 23 in Marin Municipal Court for four men accused of kidnapping a San Francisco woman who attracted help Sunday by throwing a beer can from a car.

James Tsopanakis and Eugenio Garza, both 20 and from San Francisco, Eric Carlisle, 21, of Menlo Park, and Gerry Estrada, 20, San Jose pleaded innocent to the kidnaping charge Monday.

All were arrested by the California Highway Patrol at about 3 a.m. A patrolmen saw the beer can tossed out and stopped the car. The woman then began yelling she was kidnaped, according to the patrolman.

She reportedly said she had been abducted in San Francisco after attending a dance and was taken to Marin. The car was finally stopped near the Corte Madera offramp of Highway 101.

Fairfax Man To Design Fair

Robert J. Mahoney of Fairfax will design the Marin County Fair for the second consecutive year, according to fair manager Marcelle McCoy.

Mahoney, president of the Marin Museum Association and display director of Gump's in San Francisco, has earned several designing awards for his efforts at Gumps.

He will develop new designs for outdoor fair displays and will design the exhibition hall, where expanded art and photography shows will be displayed and 2,000 square feet of gardens will be shown, Mrs. McCoy said.

The fair will be hald Aug. 31 through Sept. 4 at the Civic Center fairgrounds.

Two Reports On College Agenda

The Marin Community College District board will receive reports on public transportation and no-show students at its regular meeting at 8 p.m. today.

Greg Fearon, student body president, has submitted the survey of public transportation available to College of Marin students, which includes suggestions for improvement of the transportation system.

The second report attempts to explain why some students registered for classes during the spring term, but have not attended.

Ross Valley Flood Panel Sets Budget

The Ross Valley Flood Control Zone Advisory board has approved a 1972-73 budget of $68,900, about $15,000 lower than this year's $84,000.

It will be financed out of district reserves and, like last year, will require no tax levy, according to Charles E. Murphy, county flood control engineer.

Next year's figures compared to this year's (in parentheses) are: reserves $61,675 ($54,700); salaries $5,225 ($2,000); office supplies, equipment and miscellaneous expenses $2,000 ($2,000).

Also included in this year's budget were two items concerning the Corte Madera Creek Project, which has been stalled for about a year, and is not included in the new budget: $18,100 for land enhancement, along the edge of the creek and $2,000 in state lands charge of one cent per cubic yard of bay mud taken from the creek during dredging.

The budget passed, 3-1, with Ross representative Frederick S. Allen opposed. Allen said he wanted to see money in the budget to meet obligations of the flood control zone to solve local flooding problems in Ross, and the funds weren't there, according to Murphy.

The board also voted unanimously to send a letter to the board of supervisors requesting a postponement of 60 to 90 days in the dissolution of Flood Control Subzone 9A. Murphy said it requested this because investigations are now taking place for Zone 9 to do all maintenance and ordinance enforcement work throughout the zone.

APOLLO

of rocks and soil to return to scientists back on earth.

Shortly after Apollo 16's attempted lunar orbit the burned-out third stage of the Saturn 5 launching rocket was to be crashed into the moon with an explosive force of 11 tons of TNT to see if the shock waves, picked up by seismometers left by the Apollo 12, 14 and 15 missions, would yield new, more precise information about the deep interior of the moon.

Four and one-half hours before lunar orbit, the astronauts triggered a series of explosives that ejected a 5-by-9 1-2 foot aluminum panel covering two mapping cameras, a laser altimeter and three radiation sensors in Casper's service module.

"There it goes," said Young. "That was a pretty good bang. We can watch it spinning around out the window, and it's quite a sight. Every time it comes around it really flashes." The cover floated away 13,000 miles above the moon.

The astronauts awoke without prompting at about 7 a.m. Wednesday, about an hour early, and enjoyed a breakfast of mixed fruit, ham steak, cornflakes, bread and jelly, orange juice and cocoa to music from an on-board tape machine.

ABAG Receives $390,000 Grant For Planning

I-J Special Report

BERKELEY — The federal government has approved a $390,000 planning grant to the Association of Bay Area Governments toward its 1972-73 program.

The association has a $1.2 million budget for next fiscal year. Of this, $340,000 will come from dues paid from taxes by member cities and counties and the rest from other federal and state sources.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development approved the planning grant for programs in housing, water resources, parks and open space, environmental data study, regional information study, urban growth policy, regional economic policy and federal grant review.

Pair's Case To Superior Court

Two men charged with robbing, kidnaping and raping a Mill Valley woman have been bound over to Marin Superior Court to face the charges Monday.

Charles Moultry, 23, and Charles Lee, 22, both of San Francisco, were arrested March 29 after a chase across the Golden Gate Bridge.

The 28-year-old victim told police the two men robbed her in her driveway, then forced her to ride through Southern Marin with them. She said they alternated holding a gun on her and raping her.

Released two blocks from home, she called for help and sheriff's deputies caught up with the car after chasing it from near Marin City.

Lynwood Election Announced

Palmer O. Wilkins of 1291 Leafwood Drive was elected president of the Lynwood Park Improvement Association last night.

Gloria Burnett was elected vice president, Harry B. Shields, treasurer, and Kathleen B. Loeffler, corresponding secretary.

The association will urge the city to purchase the land near the Lynwood tank site, which is designated in the Scottsdale-Crossroads general plan as a park site, Mrs. Burnett reported. The owner of the land reportedly is preparing to sell it, she said.

Members also are going to request the city of Novato to construct a turnaround at the east end of Sunset Parkway, rather than extend the parkway, Mrs. Burnett said.

The association also sent a letter to the principal of Lynwood School protesting litter and seeking support of the school in a cleanup.

Members also protested residential use of a second building on a lot in Lynwood Park, which is zoned for single-family use.

Arraigned On Pot Charge

Jessie P. Wagonet, 24, of San Anselmo was arraigned yesterday on a charge of possessing marijuana earlier in the day.

She was to plead either today or on Tuesday depending on whether she would post $500 bail.

She was arrested by the California Highway Patrol on Highway 101 near Paradise Drive after an officer saw her car traveling erratically.

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday by referring to her as a man.

Woman Denies Burglary Charge

Caroline Jean McIlroy, 30, of Larkspur pleaded innocent today in Marin Superior Court to charges of attempted burglary and concealing stolen property.

A jury trial was set for June 12.

She was arrested by sheriff's deputies March 12 following an alleged theft from the Little Daisy Dress Shop in the Town and Country Shopping Center at Strawberry.

Auto Is Looted Of Possessions

Possessions valued at $388 were stolen from his car parked at Paul Drive and Mitchell Boulevard between noon and 2 p.m. yesterday, Kent L. Beardley, 42, of 34 Terrace Court, Tiburon, reported to San Rafael police.

The locked car apparently was ented by prying open a window, causing $60 damage to the vehicle, police said today.

DEBATE

Vietnam.

The White House has referred up to now to Rogers and Laird's statements when asked about Nixon's reasons for the heavy U.S. bombing and presidential views of the escalated war.

When Nixon does give his personal report, sources said today, he wants to do it directly to the people on a live broadcast. "He wants to explain Vietnam in his own way," the In the Senate, where a fivehour period was set aside for debate on the war, antiwar forces seeking to cut off war funds picked up a surprise supporter today in the. assistant Democratic leader, Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia.

Byrd consistently supported most White House Vietnam policy in both the Johnson and Nixon administrations, but announced his backing of a proposal calling for a halt in Vietnam financing as of the end of this year.

Byrd told reporters that under Nixon's troop withdrawal timetable, there might not be any need for further funds anyway.

Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, in an interview broadcast today but filmed two weeks ago — early in the North Vietnamese offensive and prior to the escalated U.S. bombing —said an end to "U.S. aggression" in Indochina was essential to improved U.S.-Chinese relations.

"The most outstanding issue in the Far East is U.S. aggression in Vietnam and Indochina," Chou said in an interview with a British journalist, Felix Greene.

The interview was carried on the NBC-TV Today Show.

Chou said that "in my opinion, if the United States does not withdraw its forces and cease supporting the puppet regime (of President Nguyen Van Thieu in Saigon), the war in Indochina cannot stop, and thus it would be impossible to reduce tensions in the Far East."

"Only the end of the war can contribute to relaxation of (U.S.-Chinese) tensions," Chou said. "This is the test."

Offices In Building Ransacked

Burglars, entering through an outside rear window, ransacked several offices in the Cheda Building at 1029 Fourth Street sometime Monday night, San Rafael police reported today.

The burglars entered five offices —those of attorneys David B. Fyfe and Sol. A. Abrams; the Cheda Estate Co.; bondsman Ralph Finley; Figa Productions Inc., and attorney Lawrence E. Weiss —taking only some photographs and a cigarette-rolling machine in the Figa office, police said.

After scrambling through the window, the burglars apparently pried Cheda Estate Co.'s office door, removing keys to other offices in the building, police theorized.

Goods were strewn about all the offices in the burglary which occurred sometime between 6:40 p.m. Monday and 8:40 a.m. Tuesday, police said.

Boyd Park Fence Broken In Accident

A car in which the brakes failed Monday plowed into a wrought-iron fence surrounding Louise A. Boyd Memorial Park, knocking down a 12-foot stretch of the old fence, San Rafael police reported today.

The car, driven by Patrick M. Daniels, 26, of 22½ Buena Vista, San Anselmo, came to rest atop the concrete-based fence at B Street and Mission Avenue, in front of the Marin County Historical Society headquarters building.

Daniels was driving southbound on sloped Laurel Place at 4:45 p.m. when the car's brakes failed, police reported. The car continued into the B and Mission intersection where, spying traffic coming in two directions, Daniels steered it into the fence.

Daniels was not injured in the mishap.

Innocent Plea To Boat Charge

Vincent Joseph Salas, 23, of Sausalito, who was arrested during the weekend on suspicion of burglarizing a boat in the Sausalito Yacht Harbor, pleaded innocent to the charge in Marin Municipal Court yesterday.

Salas was then released without bail to return for a preliminary hearing May 2.

He was arrested by Sausalito police Friday on suspicion of breaking into the Tropolino owned by Jedd McClutchy.

Richmond Bus Plan Hits Snag At Hearing

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A 27-year-old school janitor, seeking to run a new bus service between San Rafael and Richmond, won no support yesterday in a hearing before a state Public Utilities Commission examiner.

The aspiring bus operator, Stephen D. Hooper of San Rafael, assured examiner Martin J. Porter he would make "whatever effort it takes" to insure the service's success, but said he had no data on the expenses or demand for the proposed run across the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge.

Hooper's plans were indirectly opposed by the staff of the Metropolitan Transportation Commission, Golden Gate Bridge District and the Alameda-Contra Costa Transit District, while Cecil J. Allen, 75-year-old former operator of a Marin-Richmond run, said he was flatly against Hooper "trying to take my line away from me."

Allen, who still holds a PUC certificate to operate the run, told the Independent-Journal he dropped the service because he wasn't making a profit.

H. Donald White, transit manager for the bridge district, said the agency was not taking a stand for or against Hooper, but noted that the Metropolitan Transportation Commission has suggested the service be provided under a joint powers agreement between the bridge district and the Alameda-Contra Costa district.

Under this proposal, the line would link Marin to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District station at Richmond, where rail service to San Francisco would be available.

Meanwhile, Marin Transit Systems, through a Berkeley subsidiary, disclosed it was withdrawing its application to provide the cross-bay service. Theophus Barron Jr., company president, told the Independent-Journal his firm's plans might interfere with long-range goals of the bridge district.

PUC examiner Porter took the application of Hooper, who works for the San Anselmo school system, under advisement.

Ballot Too Big For Voting Machine

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An unprecedented problem faced the registrar of voters Monday —San Francisco's June ballot is too big for the voting machines.

Registrar Emmery Mihaly said there is still five more days for candidates to apply but there is no more room on the ballot. He said that one possible solution was to cut the normal 1,200 voting places to about half the number and provide two machines at each precinct.

Reinecke Testifies In ITT Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Lt. Governor Ed Reinecke of California testified today the idea of holding the Republican national convention in San Diego was "hatched" last spring one day after he met with ITT lobbyist Dita D. Beard and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell.

But Reinecke said he had not discussed the convention with either person.

Reinecke told the Senate Judiciary Committee he met with Mitchell in the morning on April 26, 1971, and with Mrs. Beard, the Washington lobbyist for the International Telephone & Telegraph (ITT), on the afternoon of the same day.

The next day, April 27, a group of San Diego representatives got together at a social reception at Republican National Headquarters here and "that was where the idea really hatched" for the San Diego convention, he said.

Reinecke denied that he discussed the convention with either Mrs. Beard or Mitchell at the April 26 meetings. He said he "obviously did not ... because the idea did not seed until the following day."

Earlier in what was expected to be one of the final sessions of the Senate hearings on the ITT controversy, it was disclosed that Peter M. Flanigan, a top presidential assistant, had agreed to answer committee questions Thursday on what he knows about the selection of San Diego as the convention site.

Nursery Open House

Parents who wish to learn about the program of the San Anselmo Cooperative Nursery School may attend the school's annual open house from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. next Wednesday, according to the president, Kathy Jones. The school, at 24 Myrtle Lane, is open to children between the ages of 33 months and 4 years.

Inflation Reduces Economy Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The U. S. economy expanded by $30.3 billion in the first three months of 1972, the Commerce Department said today, but more than half the increase was caused by inflation.

The government estimated that gross national product (GNP) in the first quarter grew 11.8 per cent, up sharply from the growth of 7.6 per cent in the last three months of 1971.

When adjusted for price increases, however, the economy's output advanced only 5.3 per cent, less rapid than the 5.8 per cent growth rate of the fourth quarter.

The difference was inflation. As measured by the "GNP deflator," prices rose 6.2 per cent between January and March, comparedto only 1.7 per cent in the October-December period.

The report, which will be revised later as more statistics become available, was bound to raise questions about the effectiveness of the administration's price control policy.

In a separate report, the department said personal income grew $3.5 billion in March. And it drastically revised the February figures, saying huge retroactive salary increases approved by the Pay Board meant that personal income rose $9 billion in February, not $5 billion as originally reported.

The $30.3 billion increase in first quarter GNP —the dollar value of all private and governmental output of goods and services —grew at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1,103.2 billion ($1.1 trillion). The figures will be revised later as more statistics are available.

The report showed a $32.2 billion annual rate of increase in final sales while inventory increased $1.8 billion.

The pace of consumer spending also rose by $13 billion, compared with $8.4 billion in the fourth quarter. The administration has been hoping that consumers would spend more and give the economy a push.

Fixed investment rose $10.1, billion, double the fourth quarter rise and government spending increased $5 billion, compared to a $2.7 billion fourth quarter increase.

At the White House, Commerce Secretary Peter G. Peterson said he believed the administration's goal of a $100 billion increase in the GNP in 1972 "is in sight."

Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien said the report "that inflation consumed more than half the reported economic growth for the first quarter of 1972 dramatizes the need for much stronger controls on profits and interest rates."

District To Study Year 'Round School

Plans to change the traditional school calendar to a year 'round plan will be considered at the Old Adobe School District board meeting at 7:45 p.m. tomorrow at La Tercera School, Petaluma.

The board will receive a recommendation that schools be changed to the 45-15 plan which would put students in school for 45 days, or nine weeks, followed by 15 days of vacation. With school enrollments staggered, buildings would be in operation for a full 12 months.

Jail Time Given For Burglary

Bertha Marie West, 18, of Oakland, was sentenced today to 60 days in the county jail for burglary by Marin Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner.

He also placed her on two years probation.

Meanwhile, in municipal court, a codefendant, Tinicia Brown, 22, of Richmond was bound over to superior court to face the same charges.

Miss West, who had pleaded guilty in a negotiated settlement, and Miss Brown were arrested July 3 after a guard at The Emporium at Northgate told police they had taken $39 worth of children's clothing from the store.

Police said they found between $300 and $500 in clothing in the trunk of their car. The clothing still bore tags from Santa Rosa stores.

Students Looking

NEW YORK (UPI)—"College students today are looking for more than a classroom education—they want an education experience embracing real-world applications," says Dean Abraham L. Gitlow of New York University's College of Business and Public Administration.

Youth Admits Check Charge

Kurt Martin Schuster, 18, of Santa Rosa, who pleaded guilty to a bad check charge when two other counts against him were dismissed, has been sentenced to the California Youth Authority by Judge Samuel W. Gardiner.

In a negotiated settlement Friday, the Marin Superior Court judge then dismissed a second bad check count and a charge of possessing marijuana.

Schuster was arrested Feb. 1 after he cashed a $250 check on his father's account and then returned later in the day to try to cash a $500 check.

A suspicious teller called police, who arrested the youth. Schuster allegedly had a small quantity of marijuana with him.

Fairfax Councilmen Split Picking Mayor, Pro Tem

By DAVID DIETZ

Despite the appeals of two outgoing members for unity, Fairfax's new city council promptly split twice last night in picking a mayor and mayor pro tempore.

Albert E. Gately, one of two new councilmen elected at last Tuesday's municipal election, was chosen mayor by a vote of 3-1, with one abstention. The other new member, E. Ross Parkerson, was named mayor pro tempore by a 3-2 vote.

Councilmen Lee Nelder and Robert R. Souza were in the minority on both votes. Nelder twice voted "no" and Souza abstained on the mayoral choice.

Ments earlier, outgoing Councilman Francis J. O'Connell, one of two members who did not seek reelection, pleaded against disvisiveness in his departure speech. The council has been racked with squabbling for years.

"Don't get locked into a 3-2 vote," he urged the newcomers. "The only people going to suffer are the people of Fairfax ... you won't walk away from here with any pride of accomplishment."

But O'Connell — who also presented the newcomers with green ties he smilingly said he bought as a measure of good will — didn't get his wish.

Neither did former Mayor Cornelis van Vliet, the other councilman who chose not to run. He, too, called for resolving of differences as he stepped down with a gavel set given by his colleagues.

Parkerson, last Tuesday's top council vote-getter and former city planning commission chairman, began by nominating

ALBERT E. GATELY
Split vote choice

Gately, also a former planning commissioner, for mayor. Councilman Frank J. Egger, expected to join with Parkerson and Nelder to form a new majority bloc, seconded.

Souza, explaining his abstention, said he wasn't against Gately but he felt it was Nelder's turn to take the mayor's seat.

When it came time to nominate for mayor pro tempore, Souza chose Nelder but his motion wasn't seconded. Then Egger nominated Parkerson, with Gately seconding, and the 3-2 vote was cast.

Later, Parkerson, who campaigned largely on the issue of the environment, said: "I think the people tried to say they wanted a new direction in this town ... I'm sorry we can't come together in this first decision-making moment.

"I hope this isn't the direction we're going to follow in the next two years ... No matter what happens tonight, it's a new day in this town and we're going to make it a better Fairfax."

With citizen participation and "candidness among council members," Gately said, "we can solve the problems in this town."

The council set a "workshop session" for 8 p.m. May 2 at Parkerson's request to discuss issues before the community. The new councilman said the firing of Police Chief James R. Orr, currently subject to a long hearing before the city board of review, would not be among them.

(In an action upheld on a split council vote, Orr was dismissed from the force last year by City Administrator Robert E. Crowe on a variety of charges. The complaints include failing to establish departmental regulations, engaging in improper social relations with a police clerk and drunkenness.)

Also sworn in last night were City Clerk Eileen Foster, who ran unopposed, and Treasurer Priscilla C. Gray, who ousted incumbent Harold H. Taft. Mrs. Gray was a leader of last Tuesday's successful ballot measure rezoning the Town and Country Club property to thwart residential development.

In another matter, the council said it would meet in closed session at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday to discuss litigation dealing with property damage along Fairfax Creek.

The council also announced the spring debris pickup would be May 1-5, with debris boxes stationed at the community ballfield on May 6.

Pleads Guilty To Possessing Pot

Pamela Lee Kidwell, 27, of San Rafael who had been charged with two felony drug counts, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court only to a misdemeanor count of marijuana possession.

Judge Peter Allen Smith accepted the bargain worked out with her attorney and after she pleaded to the misdemeanor count, he dismissed a felony charge of possessing cocaine and a misdemeanor charge of drunken driving.

She was arrested March 9 by California Highway Patrol officers who said they found drugs in her purse.

Builder Hits Novato Planners On 'Moratorium'; Council Upset

The Novato City Council bristled last night at a report the city planning commission was in effect placing a "moratorium" on some matters by delaying action.

Builder Eugene D. McGillicuddy said the commission's policy is to delay all master plan, planned unit development and rezoning requests until the general plan is revised.

The city council recently defeated a moritorium on building and "it now appears the planning commission has in fact established a moratium" by delaying such items, McGuillicuddy said.

Commissioners were delaying by scheduling these items at the end of their agenda, McGillicuddy said. (The commission rarely completes its agenda despite long sessions.)

Councilman Wayne Womack said the commission never got instruction from the council to consider any item as a "moratorium item," and if it is, it "isn't carrying out the policy of the council.

The council directed commissioners to consider agenda items as they are submitted and if they don't get to a particular item at one meeting to place it at the start of the agenda at the next meeting.

The council also directed the planning commission to devote 50 per cent of its efforts to current planning and 50 per cent to advance planning.

McGillicuddy said the policy being followed by the planning commission was "morally and ethically wrong and will have a detrimental effect on the city."

Mill Valley Man Held For Court

Eric Ansley Van Horn, 21, of Mill Valley, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a felony charge of drunk driving. He is also accused of a misdemeanor count of killing a passenger through negligent driving.

He is to be arraigned April 26.

Van Horn was the driver of a pickup truck that went over an embankment March 25 near Muir Woods, according to the highway patrol.

A passenger, Eric Bryant Satterlie, 19, also of Mill Valley, was dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Sartain, A Two-Year Member, Is Mayor

F. Wayne Sartain, a member of the Novato City Council for two years, was elected mayor last night by the newly organized council.

Sartain succeeds Joseph D. Gargiulo, who retired from the council to run for Marin County superintendent of schools in 1974.

J. Wayne Womack, the city's first mayor and councilman for 10 of the city's 12-year history, who didn't seek reelection left his council seat with the comment: "I have been rewarded by the opportunity to serve Novato." He was given a standing ovation by an overflow audience.

Sworn into office were Fred R. Ruegg and Dorothy Pj Young and returning councilman David Price Jones, who served as an appointee during the past year.

Gargiulo said the council "has been spending too much time on administration and not enough on policy."

Gargiulo was given a plaque

F. WAYNE SARTAIN
Novato mayor

with a mounted gavel and Womack, a pipe smoker, a plaque with a pipe attached.

When the new council was seated, Jones nominated Sartain for mayor and he was elected unanimously.

Ruegg was unanimously elected mayor pro tempore after nomination by Mrs. Young.

The council adjourned until 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House for a special joint meeting with the City Environmental Quality Committee.

San Rafael Drug Arrest Trial Set June 7

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A jury trial has been set for June 7 in U.S. District Court for five persons arrested in a San Rafael parking lot March 21 in connection with a large quantity of amphetamine.

Pleading innocent Monday were Charles H. W. and Sandra Cannon, both of College Park, Md., and Duane Kenny, of no known address, who are charged with possessing amphetamines with intent to sell them.

Elliot and Joan Valderrama, who live in Oakland, pleaded innocent to charges of aiding and abetting the possession of the drug.

The arrest took place after five pounds of speed was handed over to undercover agents in a Northgate parking lot.

3 Petalumans Face Pot Charge

Three Petalumans were arrested yesterday on suspicion of possession of Marijuana.

Booked into Petaluma City Jail were Joseph Michael Aquila, 19; Evelyn Mary Salisbury, 23, both of 32 Lakeville Street; and John Allen Citrowske, 19, of 415 Cleveland Avenue.

Police said the three were arrested after Marijuana plants were seen growing in the window of the home on Lakeville Street. They were scheduled for arraignment today in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Sausalito Council Installs Before Harmony Disappears

By JAY GOODWIN

Sally Stanford, Evert H. Heynneman and Robin Sweeny took their seats on last night as television cameras whirred, flash bulbs flashed, and the overflow crowd received them with a wild ovation.

After all three signed the oath of office — Mrs. Sweeny for her second four-year term — the council unanimously elected Mrs. Sweeny mayor and Earl R. Dunphy mayor pro tem.

Resolutions of appreciaton were presented by the new mayor to out-going mayor Alexander R. Imlay and out-going councilman Wyman Hicks.

Harmony didn't last long between the council and the audience.

Mrs. Sweeny moved to appoint Heynneman a "committee of one" to review and evaluate the city's organizational structure, with particular emphasis on the city's planning apparatus. Heynneman had stressed the need for such a study during his recent campaign for office.

As soon as the appointment was announced, Edward R. Fitzsimmons, who described himself as "the largest property owner in Sausalito" leaped to his feet and branded the appointment "an intellectually incestuous idea."

Fitzsimmons told the council that it was a closed body that had studied its own procedures more than enough.

"You have a conspiracy between your department heads," said Fitzsimmons. "If you really want to do a job with respect to zoning and planning, empanel a group of people that would represent all of Sausalito."

Fitzsimmons has been seeking city approval of a development on 162 acres on Wolfback Ridge for the past two years.

Despite the attack by Fitzsimmons and others on the proposed Heynneman study, Mrs. Sweeny informally authorized the new councilman to begin his evaluation.

Moments later, the temperature in the council chambers rose a few more degrees when the time schedule for the city's open space survey was considered.

Planning Director H. Eric Borgwardt suggested that survey teams composed, primarily, of city officials and staff, and one "citizen-at-large" should be established to catalog all of Sausalito's remaining open space.

Once again, Fitzsimmons rose to his feet.

He told the council that there should be more citizens on the survey teams — including himself.

"In Sausalito, I am open space. I own 90 per cent of the open space in this city and I should be on the committee," said Fitzsimmons.

Mrs. Sweeny disagreed, citing Fitzsimmons's keen interest in his 162-acre tract as his disqualification.

A motion was finally made by Councilman Stephen A. Fraser and passed unanimously that would enlarge the representation of public citizens on the survey teams; alter the time sequence of the surveying procedure, and give top priority to surveying the open space aspects of the Fitzsimmons property.

The Sausalito City Council also:

PAINTING BIDS — Rejected all four bids for painting the exterior of city hall because of the wide discrepancy between the lowest bid — which was technically disqualified — and the other three.

PEDESTRIAN WALK — Held over to next meeting a recommendation from the planning commission to construct a pedestrian path between Harbor Drive and a proposed extension of Coloma Street.

NOISE ORDINANCE — Postponed until next meeting action on a proposed noise control ordinance, in order to allow Heynneman and Mrs. Stanford time to review the measure.

USE PERMIT — Granted a request from the Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District to extend for 60 days, until June 16, its conditional use permit for ferryboat operations.

TOPICS FUNDS — Passed a resoltuion of intent to spend $5,628 in federally provided street maintenance funds.

HOUSEBOAT ORDINANCE — Sent back to planning commission a working draft of an ordinance to regulate houseboats.

ADJOURNED — The council adjourned to a special study session Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Rafael Meadows Flood Zone Residents, Board To Meet

The Rafael Meadows flood control zone advisory board will meet next Wednesday with many dissatisfied residents expected to be on hand in an attempt to dissolve the zone.

The controversy was forwarded last month by the zone board to the county board of supervisors but Supervisor John F. McInnis had requested the matter be delayed so he can meet with the residents. He will be at Wednesday's meeting, according to Charles E. Murphy, county flood control engineer.

Disapproval of the zone and its effort to end flooding problems in the 250-home community located between Highway 101 and Los Ranchitos Road surfaced at the March 23 zone board meeting when a 156-signature petition was presented by residents in favor of killing the zone. A poll of the community found similary discontent, Murphy said.

Total flood control protection in the community, which often has been plagued by rain runoff, is estimated to cost $875,000. The zone's share of the expense, $700,000, would mean the owner of a $30,000 house would pay $1,950 over a 15-year period, Murphy said.

A partial solution that would cost the zone $400,000 would cost the same homeowner $1,100 over the same period, he said.

The zone master plan also will be discussed at Wednesday's meeting at 8 p.m. in room 322 at the Civic Center, Murphy said.

Reagan 'To Stay Involved' — Wife

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —Mrs. Ronald Reagan believes her husband will "remain involved" in politics and help chart the future of the national Republican party when his gubernatorial term expires in 1974.

"He is very concerned as to the direction the Republican party takes, not only in California, but in the country, and he certainly wants a voice in that determination," Mrs. Reagan said in her weekly Sunday column in the Sacramento Union.

"Now whether this means actually holding office again, I don't know —nor does he," she added.

Rare Fever In Corte Madera

A disease that's rare in California and even rarer in Marin County has been contracted by a Corte Madera resident, according to the Marin County Health Department.

In a weekly report of communicable diseases in the county, Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, health officer, said one case of "Q fever" had turned up in Corte Madera.

The disease, sometimes called "tick fever" and carried by animals, is unplesant but not fatal, according to health officers. Symptoms include chills fevers, headaches and general malaise.

Other communicable diseases reported in Marin last week were 16 cases of gonorrhea; 8 of streptoccocus infections, six of syphillis, one of tuberculosis, six of infectious hepatitis and one of shigella.

Larkspur's new mayor firmly rang curfew on the Little King Mountain grading controversy shortly before last midnight.

Mayor William G. Fleckles continued the hearing to 8 p.m. May 1 after a two-and-three-quarter-hour session last night in the St. Patrick's Parish meeting hall across the street from Larkspur City Hall. The hearing attracted 200 persons.

The city council was hearing the Adolph A. Tiscornia estate's appeal against the city planning commission's denial of a grading permit in a marathon hearing Feb. 15. Alice B. Copeland Vincilione, executrix of the estate, and her husband Paul, want to escavate up to 360,000 yards from the crown of Little King, which the estate owns. They plan to put most of the fill on the Tiscornia-owned marshlands on the north side of Magnolia Avenue.

Several audience members complained last night that they would rather extend the meeting to permit opponents to speak. But Fleckles announced when he convened the hearing at 9 p.m. that he'd adjourn the session by 11:30, and he almost met his deadline.

"I for one have worked 15 hours today and I don't intend to work 17 hours," he said at 11:30 p.m. "I do not intend to have a 2 or 3 o'clock decision."

The council got to hear only the applicants' spokesmen — planning consultant Dan Coleman and attorney Wallace S. Myers — and city staff members plus two Larkspur citizens favoring the permit, before the curfew.

Fleckles then polled the opposition. After writing down names of 13 would-be speakers, he estimated that the hearing would take at least two more hours before the councilmen could even begin deliberations.

So far, the council's hearing on Little King has been an almost word-for-word repeat of the presentation before the planning commission.

Attorney Myers, last night laid even heavier stress on claims that the "city's own experts" were not opposed to the permit, and that the city was "required" to issue the permit because the Vinciliones could meet all the requirements of the city ordinances.

Councilman Neil Brixon recalled that the planning commission had stressed inclusion of the crown of Little King in the North Ridge open space proposal. He asked Myers how much the Vinciliones wanted for the property, which lies both in and outside Larkspur city limits. Brixon also wanted to know how much time open space campaigners would be allowed to negotiate for the property.

"I can't make a price, but it is for sale," Myers replied. "If any public agency wants it, let them step forward and make an offer."

"My buying habits are to ask the price first," Brixon countered. He asked that the Vinciliones make ther terms known to the council at or before the next session on the grading issue.

Residents James Niven of 31 Niven Way and Dexter Oakley of 400 Murray Avenue were the only pro-permit speakers in the audience. Both praised Coleman's plans for hiding the Little King grading behind existing trees, and Niven said "if it weren't for previous fills, where would a lot of us be in Larkspur today?"

The May 1 continuation of the hearing will begin in the city hall, then move either back to the parish hall or another site if the audience overcrowds the council chambers, City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst announced.

Member Resigns Planning Board

Stanley W. Little, a long-time member of the Fairfax Park and Recreation Commission, has been forced to step down because he is moving across the street.

Little, who lives in Olema Drive, told the city council in a letter he was leaving office effective Monday because he is moving his family a short distance to a new home in Oak Manor, outside the city limits.

Little has been a member of the commission for more than seven years.

Larkspur Has Change Of Command

Larkspur City Council change-of-command ceremonies last night gave the city its first woman council member in its 64-year history, Joan Sestak.

New councilman Robert H. Lee also took office, and councilman William G. Fleckles was sworn in for his second term and then elected mayor. Alfred J. Malvino was elected vice mayor.

Outgoing Mayor Earl J. O'Grady and Councilman Benton A. Sifford Jr. were bade farewell. O'Grady was given the honorary plaque and gavel by Fleckles. The Larkspur Volunteer Firemen's Association gave the new mayor a gavel.

Councilman Neil Brixon gave Mrs. Sestak a bouquet of roses, and said she also would undoubtedly become Larkspur's first woman mayor during her four years in office.

Fleckles then announced a special meeting would be held at 7:30 p.m. April 27 to interview candidates for Lee's former seat on the city planning commission. He said that Mrs. Sestak's seat on the Larkspur Library board also would have to be filled, at some later date.

The council voted unanimously to approve hiring a consultant firm, Larry Smith and Co., for a $4,300 feasibility study on formation of a redevelopment agency to speed creation of a regional shopping center either from the existing smaller Bon Air Shopping Center or in the quarry area east of Highway 101, to compete with Corte Madera's planned new center east of 101.

Mrs. Sestak questioned why the matter could not wait to be put on the agenda for the council's next regular meeting in two weeks. City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst explained that the city was in a race to attract major tenents to the proposed centers, and councilman Alfred J. Malvino declared, "we need the sales tax revenue very badly."

Changes On Sunday In Bus Routes

Several changes in transbay bus schedules will take effect on Sunday, Golden Gate Bridge District officials announced today.

The new sihedules, the third version to be printed since service began in January, are available aboard district buses and at its ticket outlets. The changes are aimed at speeding service and making the best use of the fleet, district officals said.

The major changes are on the following routes:

Route 2 — Half-hourly service between San Francisco and Sausalito will be added on weekends and holidays between 9:43 a.m. and 7:37 p.m., replacing the present Route 27 service which until now has been routed through Sausalito instead of over the Waldo Grade between San Francisco and San Anselmo.

Routes 4 and 5 — Weekend and holiday service will be replaced and consolidated into a new Route 10, which will run between Tiburon and San Francisco via Mill Valley early mornings and late evenings when Route 2 is not operating. Route 4 is between Mill Valley and San Francisco, and Route 5 is between Sausalito and Tiburon via Mill Valley.

Route 28 — This will be replaced by the new Toure 2.

Route 54 — Daily hourly service will be extended to San Marin. The route now is between Novato and San Francisco via a stop in San Rafael.

San Anselmo Has Perry As Mayor

In a polite ceremony in San Anselmo last night, Warren R. Perry, a councilman for two years, was elected mayor of the city without opposition.

The four winners in the April election were also sworn in and each was applauded by the audience of about 50.

Smiles predominated except on the face of James F. Reed, who was ousted ic a close race for another term and was replaced last night.

Reed filed yesterday for a recount of the final tally which showed he fell 12 votes short of reelection.

The two top votegetters, incumbent Kenneth L. Anderson with 1,090 votes and Dr. Martin G. Blinder with 1,078, were sworn in along with city clerk Helen J. Ragan and treasurer William P. Franchini.

Perry, a 41-year-old attorney, was selected by his fellow councilmen without opposition, and Lewis W. Stewart was elected vice mayor.

WARREN R. PERRY
New San Anselmo mayor

Perry served on the planning commission for seven years before his election to the council in 1970. He succeeds Anderson as mayor.

The San Anselmo City Council Also:

STREET SEAL — Awarded a contract of $5,729 to the Valley Slurry Seal Co. of Sacramento to surface 1.87 miles of street throughout the city.

OPEN SPACE — Endorsed the concept of a regional park district, asked for volunteers for a citizens open space committee and referred to the parks and recreation commission a letter from Lyn Fischbein of 28 Salinas Avenue suggesting ways to move toward early acquisition of mroe open space.

PHONOGRAPH —Authorized spending $134.82 for a phonograph to be used by the city's senior citizen club on condition the Marin Senior Coordinating Council repay the city.

APPOINTMENT — Appointed 17-year-old Keith Masten the youth representative on the parks and recreation commission.

OUTSTANDING SENIOR —Selected Minnie Dinucci, 77, of 19 Belle Avenue as the city entrant in the county competition for outstanding senior citizen of Marin. The nomination papers indicate she has devoted more than 7,000 hours of volunteer work to Ross General Hospital in the past eight years.

ROAD FUNDS — Told the federal government the town will be happy to use $18,292 in funds to improve traffic flow and safety. The notification of intention is a requirement.

BALANCED TRANSPORTATION — Told City Administrator Alfred C. Kaeppel to tell the City-County Planning Council of Marin it favors diverting gas tax funds from road expansion and opposes extension of Highway 17 through the city. The omments were a response to the planning council's balanced transportation program.

CLAIM — Automatically rejected a $100,000 claim filed against the city by Homer Gray of 442 West Live Oak Drive, Mill Valley, who claimed his rights were violated when he was arrested by San Anselmo police for allegedly using obscene language while seeking police help.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Tuesday at city hall.

Supervisorial Hopefuls Have Special Nights

Candidates for the second, third and fourth supervisorial districts are scheduled for two evenings of debate and discussion Friday and April 28 at the College of Marin. Programs will begin at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Building.

Second district candidates Peter J. Arrigoni Jr. (incumbent), Dr. William J. Filante and Barbara Boxer will share the April 21 program with third district candidates Michael Wornum (incumbent) and Rev. Samuel J. Banks Jr.

Fourth district candidates for the seat of Louis H. (Bud) Baar, who has declined to run, will appear on April 28, including Gary T. Giacomini, Patricia T. Maginnis, James Dougan and Michael R. Peevey.

The Associated Students is sponsoring the program in conjunction with the community services office on campus.

Tower Illegal, Opponents Say

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Opponents of the Mt. Sutro television tower charged Monday that the 981-foot structure was illegal.

Joseph T. Henke, an assistant professor of law at the University of San Francisco, said in Superior Court that the building permit for the tower expired before construction began in February 1971.

A taxpayers' suit filed by Henke said a conditional use permit issued May 17, 1966, expired three years later. The city Planning Commission gave final approval of the design on Sept. 10, 1970.

A.H. Constant, president of Sutro Tower, Inc., said the tower would improve the city's TV reception which he described as "the worst in America."

San Anselmo Act Stalled By Blinder

Dr. Martin G. Blinder, who joined the San Anselmo City Council last night, made his first official stand in favor of the birds and bees and maybe even an elm beetle or two.

City Engineer Charles R. Leitzell wanted the council to award a $983 bid to Sohner Tree Service to spray the city's elm trees against the ravages of the elm beetle.

Blinder, however, convinced the council to study alternatives with a speech on the evils of sevin, an insecticide Sohner would spray on the trees. The council put the issue over to May 9.

"We have no Dutch Elm disease in California and I wonder if in this case we are not using a weapon more lethal than the insect we are trying to control," the psychiatrist said.

He said sevin is lethal to bees and can kill birds too, but Leitzell quoted two University of California experts who said the insecticide is one of the least deadly. He admitted it kills bees, but added bees wouldn't be in the trees when they are sprayed because the trees won't be in bloom.

However, Blinder continued to insist that another chemical, probably rotenone, should be used. It wouldn't kill all the beetles, he said, but that would be acceptable because the bug in California does not carry the Dutch Elm disease so widespread on the east coast.

"What the beetle does here is defoliate the trees and leave a mess under the trees," Lietzell said.

"We have a choice between getting hit by falling beetles or falling bees," Blinder offered.

While important to Blinder, the fate of the beetles apparently wasn't so crucial to City Atty. John J. Buresh. Asked for a legal opinion, he admitted, "I really wasn't listening."

Hub Commission's Meeting Canceled

Tonight's scheduled meeting of the San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Commission has been canceled for lack of a quorum, according to Gary Howell, city parks and recreation director. The next meeting will be held at 8 p.m. May 3 in the city hall.

The commission is looking for applicants for a replacement for its teen-age member, Dan Danner, who has resigned, Howell said.

Santa Rosa Man Hurt In Accident

David C. Ledbetter, 30, of Santa Rosa, was traated at Hillcrest Hospital for a back injury suffered when his car overturned at 6:40 p.m. yesterday on Petaluma Boulevard North near Gossage Avenue, Petaluma.

According to the California Highway Patrol, he said he swerved his car to avoid hitting a dog in the road and overturned in a ditch.

Planners Overturned

The San Anselmo City Council last night overturned the city's planning commission on one variance, then immediately afterward upheld the commission on a somewhat similar appeal.

Ira Shinebarger, an elderly man due to retire soon, wanted side and rear yard variances to add a bedroom to his home at 37 Yolanda Drive.

The planning commission turned him down April 13 on a split vote saying he had shown no hardship as required by the city code. The majority said he had a large level lot with plenty of room to expand within allowable setbacks.

But only two co ncilmer agreed. Kenneth L. Anderson, said "We have a government of laws and not of men. I don't see where the variance meets the criteria as called for by the ordinance," and Warren R. Perry echoed the opinion.

"I feel it is a bad precedent to grant a variance where there seems to be a failure to comply with the ordinance," Perry said.

But Councilmen Lewis W. Stewart, Dr. Martin G. Blinder and Woodrow V. Capurro voted in favor of Shinebarger without much comment.

Only Capurro voted in favor of the second appeal. Joe V. Whiteley, an elderly retired man, wanted to build a garage on an existing concrete pad to store his boat, but he needed a sideyard setback variance to do it.

The planning commission, again by a split vote, ruled Feb. 28 Whiteley showed no hardship or special circumstance to warrant a variance for his property at 11 Terrace Avenue.

Councilmen said the property is too crowded with cars, trucks, the boat and a trailer in the nront yard.

Stewart said, "I can't see that constructing this additional storage area is adding anything to the lot."

But Capurro argued, "Sometimes you have to go beyond what is written down. Sometimes you have to read between the lines something that isn't there."

Reports Dog Stolen

Charles Morain of Sebastopol told Petaluma police yesterday that his dog valued at $155 was stolen from his pickup truck while parked at 214 Prospect Street. The dog was described as a four-month-old pug, light tan with a dark stripe down its back and a black face.

Three Injured In San Rafael

A San Rafael woman and two children, injured when the car in which they were riding rolled over on Highway 101 near the San Rafael Avenue overpass yesterday, were treated at Marin General Hospital for cuts and bruises, according to a hospital spokesman.

Daisy C. Gonzales, 24, of 22 Knoll Way, San Rafael, received scrapes on the left side of her face. Daisy Dedina, 13, of the same address, received a cut lower lip and Robin Dedina, 11, same address, received a scrape on the left cheek.

California Highway Patrol officers said the southbound car rolled over about 7:30 p.m. yesterday.

Six-Year Member To Direct Corte Madera

Holmes S. (Pete) Norville, 46, a member of the Corte Madera Town Council since 1966, was unanimously reelected mayor last night by his fellow councilmen.

Holmes had served in the same capacity for the past year. It is not customary in Corte Madera to rotate the mayorship annually, according to town clerk Betty Behel.

Also unanimously reelected last night was the vice mayor, Harold B. Wagstaff.

The council also last night authorized a recount of votes from last week's election for Herber C. Leney, who lost a seat on the council by four votes.

The mayor named new Councilman Robert J. Flahive, leading vote getter in the election, to the police and fire committee along with Wagstaff.

Edward W. Colthurst and Robert P. Simmons, who kept his seat by the narrow margin over Leney, were appointed to the finance committee and Simmons and the mayor to the public works committee.

The Corte Madera Town Council Also:

COMMITTEES — Named Colthurst and Simmons to the finance committee, Wagstaff and Flahive to the police and fire committee and Simmons and Norville to the public works committee.

BUSINESSES — Introduced an ordinance to allow a business in a home when neighbors are not bothered, back for adoption May 1.

FEES — Returned a fee schedule proposed for design review applications to city staff for clarification.

CASA MADERA — Concurred 4-1 with town planning commission rejection of Johnny Ribeiro Inc.'s plans for 114 units at 66 Tamal Vista Boulevard. Colthurst objected, claiming the rejection was negative, and should have been constructive criticism. The county public hearing on the Casa Madera project will be April 24 at the Civic Center.

MARINA — Concurred 4-0-1 with planning commission rejection of Frank Burke's plans for a 355-boat marina on a 93-acre marsh. Norville abstained.

TENNIS — Heard that the city expects estimates May 15 on the construction of tennis courts in East Corte Madera; adopted enabling legislation allowing the town to make rules governing "various town facilities," aimed at tennis courts, and adopted a resolution setting 15 rules for town tennis court use.

HOURS — Adopted an ordinance setting town hall hours from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. It previously opened at 8:30 a.m.

VACATION —Amended the municipal code relating to employees vacations.

HOUSING — Set a public hearing on the proposed housing element of the general plan for 7:30 p.m. May 15.

SIGNS — Set a public hearing on a proposed amendment to the city's sign ordinance for 7:30 p.m. June 5.

STOP SIGNS — Rejected a request from the Joseph C. Wagners of 33 Birch Avenue, asking for stop signs on Birch at its intersection with Lakeside Drive.

LOT LINES — Approved redrawing lot lines around two existing houses on what had been six lots on Redwood Avenue near the Marin Municipal Water District tank.

CARNIVALS — Learned that no more carnivals will be held at the Corte Madera Center.

MEETINGS — Authorized Arthur N. Morrison, director of public works, to attend the American Public Works Association Western Regional Conference May 7-10 in San Diego at an estimated cost of $180.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. May 1.

Pharmast Will Serve As Mayor

Pharmacist Arthur N. Roberts was elected mayor last night by the Rohnert Park City Council.

Roberts, 41, served as vice mayor last year and had served as mayor in 1968. He has been on the council since 1966 and owns and operates the Rohnert Park Pharmacy.

Armando Flores, a teacher at Martin Luther King School in Sausalito, was elected vice mayor.

Holdover councilmen Warren K. Hopkins and Vernon P. Smith were given the oath of office along with newly elected Louis G. Beary. Both Beary and Hopkins are recent graduates of Sonoma State College.

Dentists Elect Dr. D. S. Moore

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Dr. Dudley S. Moore of Santa Rosa has been named president of the California Dental Association at its annual convention.

Other new officers chosen Monday are Drs. Burton H. Press, Pittsburg, president-elect; B. C. Kingsbury Jr., Vallejo, vice president; Arthur A. Dugoni, South San Francisco, secretary; Edwin J. Human, San Francisco, treasurer; Stephen S. Yuen, Hayward, editor, and Alvin D. Senter, Oakland, speaker of the house.

Freshman Councilman Loses Round

Freshman Corte Madera Town Councilman Robert J. Flahive lost his opening round 4 to 1 against the status quo last night when he failed to get the council to guarantee it would make no binding agreements on the Madera del Presidio development until after the referendum issue is settled.

The request reached the council in a letter from L. P. Weingarth, president of the Marin Estates Homeonwers' Association. Although the group, itself, has declined to take a stand on the referendum, three of its members are behind the petition.

Weingarth urged the council "to delay entering into any agreements with the developers until such time as the citizenry has had the chance to sign or refuse signing the (referendum) . . . petition and cast their vote regarding this rezoning, should an election on the matter eventuate."

The petition seeks a rezoning of the land from present R-2, planned unit development zone, to R-1 or single family dwelling zone.

Flahive drew applause from interested residents when he said "I think we should take positive action tonight."

During discussion on the matter, which culminated with the letter being filed, councilmen made three basic arguments against such a policy:

Mayor Holmes S. (Pete) Norville said it would violate the principle of government by law and not by emotion. He said at one point there was no way he could see how the council could avoid entering into an agreement with the developer, given existing laws.

Councilman Robert P. Simmons said the group may not know what it would get with the R-1 zoning, should its campaign be successful, suggesting that it might entail greater density and more cut and fill than Madera del Presidio does now.

Norville also said the council will not commit itself without a concrete reason. The residents, he said, could not know to what they were objecting, since no plans to which they could sensibly object have been approved by the planning commission.

Councilman Edward W. Colthurst agreed with Norville, as did councilman Harold B. Wagstaff, who said he had never seen a Development proposal scrutinized as closely as Madera del Presidio since 1958 when he entered town government.

Brown Sets Campaign Fund Guides

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Declaring that the political campaign disclosure law has been "openly evaded" for decades, Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. yesterday announced guidelines designed to end "secret political fundraising."

Brown, a Democrat, said that although $26 million was reported spent in the 1970 elections, many reports of campaign contributions and expenditures showed "substantial deviation" from state law.

Asked about the report filed by Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan, Brown replied that it did not comply in some respects but declined to go into detail.

Brown, the son of former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, said the new regulations would go into effect for the June primary.

If candidates do not comply, Brown — the state's chief election officer —said he could refuse to put them on the November ballot in cases where they win the primary, ask district attorneys to prosecute or seek a court injunction to force disclosure.

In a statement released to a news conference, Brown declared, "I believe it is essential for taxpayers to know who is bankrolling political campaigns, to know the names of fat-cat contributors who pay into political war chests."

He added, "Much of this money is delivered and spent behind a cloak of secrecy ...

"For decades our contribution disclosure laws have been openly evaded. Money has been funneled through dummy committees. Code words and mysterious abbreviations have been used in campaign contribution reports."

The new rules apply to virtually all campaigns except those for minor local office.

Brown listed some of the 1970 descriptions of sources of campaign contributions which would be unacceptable under the new regulations. They included a "Dutch friend," "A-6 memberships" and a "reception."

Under the new guidelines, candidates will be required to give the full name of each contributor and his locality, but not his address.

Brown distributed a 68-page booklet, resembling the Internal Revenue Service's tax pamphlet, which detailed instructions for reporting and provided forms.

The regulations require political committees to file detailed reports explaining where they receive their money and how they spend it. The committees will have to list an officer of the committee and how he can be reached, Brown said.

The guidelines also will require lobbyists who contribute to election campaigns to list the clients who provided the funds and the amount.

Rare Albino Bear At Helsinki Zoo

HELSINKI (UPI)—A rare albino bear has been born to a couple of brown bears at the Helsinki Zoo, a spokesman said today.

"I bet he is going to be the pet of everybody," Ilkka Koivisto, superintendent of the zoo, said. "He is cute even though his snout looks more like that of a pig."

The albino bear was born Jan. 1 to a pair of brown bears. His twin brother is normal.

Major Joint Effort Set On Sewage Plans

MARTINEZ (UPI) —Two federal agencies have signed an agreement with the state Water Resources Control Board to develop a sewage management plan for the San Francisco Bay and Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta region.

The Army Corps of Engineers and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency will join with the state agency in the vast planning project. The agreement was announced Monday night at the outset of a hearing conducted by the three agencies.

It was described as the first such agreement to be signed between the federal government's two top environmental agencies and a state government.

The Army Engineers will prepare the master plan, which envisages reclamation of sewage water for irrigation, industry and home use.

"The proposed coordination program avoids potential duplication of efforts and insures the maximum use of available data and professional expertise available to all these agencies," the announcement said.

The master plan will cover the counties of Contra Costa, San Mateo, San Francisco, Alameda, Santa Clara, Napa, Solano, Yolo, Sacramento and San Joaquin, a region with a population of 5.5 million.

'Shaking Table' Will Simulate Earthquake

BERKELEY (UPI)—Sixty-six years after San Francisco was leveled by a massive earthquake, engineers today unveiled for the first time a machine able to produce even greater shocks.

Full-scale structures used in skyscrapers, freeway overpasses and dams can be toppled by the machine, the largest earthquake simulator in the U.S. constructed at the University of California in Berkeley.

The purpose of the 20-foot square "shaking table," built at a cost of $800,000 by the Earthquake Engineering Research Center, is not to destroy.

It is to measure the touchness of building materials, their capacity to absorb energy without collapsing and the strength of structural designs —as earthquake-proof as possible.

Prof. Joseph Penzien, the center's director, said that although are large simulators operating in other countries none are as sophisticated as the Berkeley model in producing effects the same as earthquakes.

Isle Plan Changes Approved

The Larkspur Architectural Review board has approved modifications of a landscape plan for Larkspur Isle and the design of several apartment developments.

Board member John W. Appleton said seven representatives of Shareholders Capital Programs, developer of Larkspur Isle, suppested changes in the originally approved landscape plan around the development's 186 finished units.

After some modifications, the board recommended the plans to the city planning commission at its meeting next Tuesday night.

The board also approved, and sent to the planning commission, plans for a six-unit apartment house on Corte Madera Creek at 855 South Eliseo drive, submitted by John and Estelle Moran; a 22-unit multi-family housing project by Plantech Corp. at 45 Corte Real and a five-unit apartment project at 805 South Eliseo Drive, also by Plantech.

A Frenchwoman's Personal Look At Nixon Adviser

PARIS (UPI)—A French paperback published this week gives a portrait of Henry Kissinger by a French woman journalist who fell in love with him while on assignment in Washington.

"Dear Henry" tells of the unrequited love of 49-year-old Danielle Hunebelle, journalist, author and film producer, for President Nixon's national security adviser.

Miss Hunebelle said she wrote the book because she "could not forgive" Kissinger for betraying "the sacred character of friendship."

She referred to an incident when Kissinger passed through Paris last July on his way back, as it was later disclosed, from Peking. She said the "betrayal" was Kissinger's dining out with Margaret Osmer, an associate producer for Columbia Broadcasting System (CBS) television, during his short stopover in Paris.

House In Bay Permit Pending

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A permit application to build a two-family house on pilings in the bay in Tiburon will be heard by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission tomorrow.

The commission will meet at 2 p.m. in Room 1194 of the Stae Building, 455 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco.

Also on the agenda will be a staff report on a new dredging policy and a report by the commission's engineering criteria review board on problems of settling and earthquake safety on bay fill.

The Tiburon permit is a reapplication by Raymond G. Handley for a project at 2308 Mar East Street rejected by the commission last October, when it got only eight of the 13 necessary votes. The vote was a rare rejection of a staff recommendation.

Bad Altimeter May Have Caused Crash

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Faulty altimeter readings appear to be the most likely reason a jetliner crashed short of the Huntington, W.Va., airport in 1970, killing members of the Marshall University football team, a government report said today.

Seventy-five persons, including the football players, coaches and fans, died when the Southern Airways DC-9 charter crashed into trees near the airport, which is located on a hilltop.

Marin Supervisors Endorse Behr Bill

State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, won endorsement of his revised "wild rivers" bill by a split, 3-2 vote of the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday.

Behr appeared personally to explain his proposal to bar new dams for 25 years from the Eel, Trinity, Klamath, Smith and American rivers. He failed to win the votes of Supervisors John F. McInnis and Louis H. Barr. The dissenters cited the destructive floods of past years, and criticism by Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District.

The supervisors last week requested that Behr or a representative speak to them before they acted on the lawmaker's request they endorse SB 107.

Because "I still have a picture I saw of the desolation" in the last decade's floods there," McInnis said.

"A law is open for amendment in the Legislature every year," Behr said.

"But once the 25-year law gets in, it will be hard to get out," Baar argued. "If the bill gets in, northerners won't get it out, because they won't have the clout. But Southern California will, if they want the water."

Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

COURTHOUSE — Referred to the board's committee studying the sale of the old courthouse site in San Rafael a question of whether 40 per cent of the land should be kept as open space or available for public use. County attorneys have urged the land be kept open for public use.

ROAD — Approved unanimously changing the name of Quarry Road at McNear's Beach to Cantera Way — which means "quarry" in Spanish. The renaming was approved to avoid conflicts with other Quarry roads in Marin.

HOUSEBOAT — Warned owners of Richardson Bay houseboat marinas that the county will activate a lawsuit if the marinas are not brought up to health and safety standards within approved time limits. Also, the county will ask the Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board to impose fines if improvement delays continue.

WATER PLANT — Approved unanimously plans for expansion of water treatment plant facilities at the Marin Municipal Water District's San Geronimo Valley plant.

SCHIZOPHRENIC — Referred to the Mental Health Advisory Board a proposed program for treating schizophrenic young adults in Marin once the state phases out such treatment.

CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS — Continued to Tuesday consideration of the county's proposed $37.5 million capital improvement program for the next six years. Tennis players voiced support for a tennis and swim center before the matter was continued.

WELFARE — Authorized paying up to $1,527 per month for a new assistant welfare director to replace Elizabeth Coyle who will retire June 30.

APPOINTMENTS — Approved appointing Genie Gabel of 19 Ridge Avenue, San Rafael, to the Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee. Accepted the resignation of Herbert M. Hanson Jr. from the Marin County Aviation Commission. Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni called for applicants to fill the seat, for a term expiring July 1, 1973.

PARKING — Adopted ordinances limiting parking to two hours on the westerly side of Reed Boulevard in the Strawberry area, and banning parking on the easterly side of Toussin Avenue between Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Geary Avenue in Kentfield.

UNDERGROUND — Approved creation of an assessment district to install underground utilities for 150 homes in Oceana Marin Unit 5, at a cost of $286 per lot. Ordered payment of $6,355 for engineering services to the assessment district.

CONSULTANT — Approved retaining Dr. Frederick W. Coe as substitute medical consultant to the Department of Public Social Services whenever the regular consultant, Dr. Leo Wagner, is absent. Coe will be paid $25 per hour up to a maximum of 26 hours per month.

HOMEMAKERS — Approved creation of new job classifications of homemaker I and II, and modified the county's wage contract to provide for the new positions. Workers will assist in household management for homes receiving services from the Department of Public Social Services.

CLEAN-UP — Voted only 3-2 (four votes were needed) in favor of Mrs. Jean Berensmeier's request that the county donate $270 towards the annual San Geronimo Valley "Cleanup and Recycle Country Style" slated for Saturday and Sunday. Supervisors John F. McInnis and Peter R. Arrigoni blocked the funds on grounds it could not be done for all communities.

FLOODING — Refused to spend county funds to alleviate flooding on private land at Atherton and Palm avenues, following a third hearing on the issue since late 1970. Attorney John G. Buresh argued unsuccessfully for owners of the trailer court and neighbors that county drainage changes had caused the problem.

POVERTY WAR — Approved interim reduction of the 36-member board of the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council to 24 members, eliminating representatives of the board of supervisors and housing authority, Novato, Larkspur, Marin Council for Civic Affairs, Senior Citizens Coordinating Council and others. Eventual goal is to trim the board to 15 members, the supervisors were told.

FAIR EMPLOYMENT — Referred to the county personnel commission for review, a survey of the county's hiring and wage practices relating to women and minorities, along with county Personnel Director Maren W. Rinne's comments on the report.

BOY SCOUTS — Instructed Thomas F. Campanella, assistant county administrator, to hold to the rules on rental deposits and insurance coverage for a "commercial" Boy Scout fund-raising event at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building and fairgrounds.

PRELIMINARY PLAN — Set 8 p.m. May 16 for a board workshop discussion of the Marin Countywide Preliminary Plan.

STREET — Approved contract with developer V. Turski and Associates for construction of Seminary Drive between Ricardo Road and the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary and accepted two deeds for right of way.

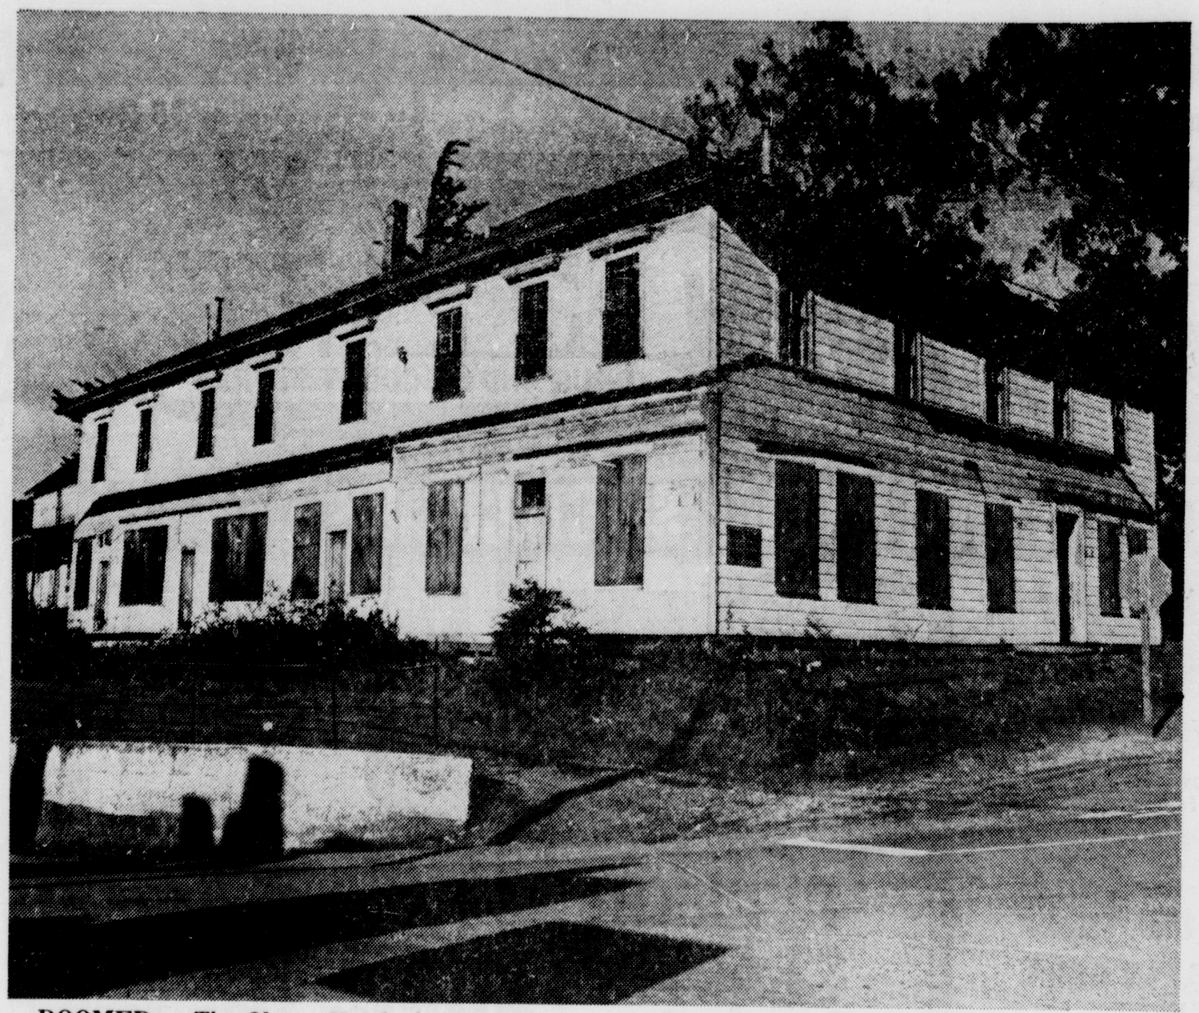
BLACK POINT — Accepted deed from Thomas R. and Elizabeth Anne Griffin for property needed to expand the parking area at the public boat launching ramp beneath the Petaluma River Bridge.

CORTE MADERA CREEK — Accepted without comment a report from Ray W. Foreaker Jr., public works director, that the stalled Corte Madera Creek flood control project would give no additional protection if it were continued to the Lagunitas Road Bridge. Flooding will remain likely until Phase Four is completed, the Army Corps of Engineers advised Foreaker. Supervisors approved a recommendation by Joseph A. Forest, deputy County Council, that his affice be allowed to defend Flood Control Zone 9 against litigation by the Town of Ross over the drainage controversy.

REGIONAL PARK — Approved Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste's request that the parks and recreation staff begin work on drafting a regional park proposal for the November ballot.

LUCAS VALLEY — Unanimously approved Supervisor John F. McInnis's proposal for a resolution commending the Lucas Valley Homeowners Association for its unique success in passing a $315,000 bond election to preserve open space.

FERRYBOATS — Voted unanimously to endorse the Golden Gate Bridge District's application for an $18 million federal grant for ferry board transit and bus acquisition. Baptiste said he objected to district timetables for implementation, but not to the grant itself.



DOOMED — The Olema Hotel, a noteworthy hostel when built 80 years ago and for many years more recently a derelict structure, shows the scars of time and abuse. The old building has been condemned by the Marin County Board of Supervisors and faces destruction.

80-Year-Old Olema Hotel Is Facing Demolition Once Again

The 80-year-old Olema Hotel was ordered demolished yesterday.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors declared the aging structure a fire hazard to the entire community.

The board, on a 4-to-1 vote with Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste dissenting, gave owner Ruth M. Ruoff 60 days to abate the old landmark before county wrecking crews move in.

Yesterday's fiat was not the first time the old building has been threatened with destruction. In 1965 and 1966, county officials ordered the two-story inn razed bacause the long-vacant building was being used by transients.

Each time Mrs. Ruoff won a stay of the order by boarding up the building. However, then and in the years following, the boards were repeatedly removed by trespassing lodgers.

"If that building goes, the whole town goes," warned county fire chief Richard D. Pedroli. "There's just not enough water to fight a fire there."

San Rafael attorney Eugene B. Ceccotti, representing Mrs. Ruoff, urged the board to delay abatement proceeding because his client is working on a deal to sell the property.

He said Mrs. Ruoff, who resides in San Rafael, can not finance demolition of the building which includes valuable redwood timbers.

The board, however, following the lead of Supervisor Louis H. Baar, ruled that the threat posed by the deteriorating hotel was too great to delay abatement more than 60 days.

Reagan Says His Taxes Are Paid

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan, who was criticized for paying no state income tax last year, said Sunday he has paid both state and federal taxes this year."

Reagan, who earned $49,100 as governor in 1971, declined in a television interview to disclose his state tax for the past year. He said he "hand delivered" his state return last week.

Democrats charged Reagan with hypocrisy when it was learned he paid no state income tax on his 1970 earnings.

A Farm Bureau Rift On Rezoning Policy

A rift among members of the Marin County Farm Bureau surfaced yesterday over the controversial rezoning of the county's sprawling agricultural preserve.

Appearing before the Marin County Board of Supervisors, Rancher Robert Clark said the bureau's land use committee was in support of the rezoning as a means of protecting the agricultural industry. (Another board of supervisors story, page 1.)

No sooner had Clark finished his statement, however, than he was challenged by dairyman Waldo Giacomini of Point Reyes Station. "Was that approved by the (bureau's) board of directors?" asked Giacomini, himself a director. "It's my understanding that it wasn't."

Clark replied that he thought it was, but wasn't sure. He said, however, his committee supported it.

The farm bureau board has gone on record as opposing the rezoning which would limit development within the 210,000-acre preserve to one home per 60 acres.

Giacomini and others — including some nonagricultural land owners — have criticized the proposal as unfairly reducing the market value of their land.

They have argued that the rezoning will block future sale of their land which is becoming less and less economical to ranch.

However, Clark said yesterday that a survey by his committee showed agriculture is still a viable industry in which most surveyed intend to stay.

"In regard to the question of who are in most need of protective measure (rezoning), we concur with the areas as described in Mr. (Bert W.) Broemmel's report," Clark said.

As reported in Monday's Independent-Journal, County Assessor Broemmel has recommended only the northern half of the preserve be rezoned.

The county planning department and various conservation groups have recommended the entire preserve he rezoned to forestall the pressures of urban growth on the agricultural industry.

Supervisors yesterday reviewed Broemmel's report and referred it along with two others from the farm advisor and agricultural commissioner to the county planning commission for study.

ANGELA'S GUNS — Four weapons registered to Angela Davis, found in the bullet-ridden van in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three others died, are now in evidence in her trial in San Jose. A state ballistics expert testified that a shell from the strange looking shotgun (center) which had both the handle and barrel sawed off, killed the judge. All the guns have plastic guards over the triggers at the orders of Judge Richard E. Arnason.

Trustees View Plan For School

A plan for Central School class reorganization was heard by the Fairfax School District board at last night's meeting, according to district secretary Gwyneth R. McGee.

Central principal Jack Usilton presented the plan which he said will provide more individualized instruction at all grade levels.

The board was impressed by the plan and will decide its adoption at the next meeting, Miss McGee said. Meanwhile, a copy of the plan is being sent to parents.

The plan lumps together kindergarten and first-grade students, second and third-grade, third and fourth, fourth and fifth, and fifth and sixth. Two additional classes for second through sixth grades also are included, and materials would be geared to all ages, Miss McGee said.

The reorganization, if approved, would take place with the start of next school year.

The Fairfax School District board also:

SALARY — Heard salary committee requests of 5.5 per cent pay raises for certificated and classified personnel, to be effective next school year. The board will discuss the matter during its May 2 budget session.

FESTIVAL — Set this year's fine arts festival for 1 p.m. May 7 at White Hill School. Children will exhibit their handiwork.

CALENDAR — Adopted next year's school calendar which calls for school to start Sept. 11 and end June 15, 1973, to include 177 days of instruction.

GIFT — Accepted a $250 gift in behalf of Deer Park School to buy science equipment at the school. The money was presented by the Deer Park Parent-Teacher Association.

MEETING — Adjourned to its next meeting, May 2 at 7:45 p.m. at White Hill School, when a budget session will be held.

Board To Consider Marin County Order

The Muir Beach Community Services District board tonight will consider a county order that it take "corrective action" to eliminate a conflict of interest between a staff officer and board member.

According to county officials, the board illegally hired the husband of one director last November to serve as general manager.

A letter was sent earlier this month advising that either director Mary Mosteller resign her post or her husband, Gordon, quit his $500-per month job.

Last week, the Muir Beach Inprovement Association asked county officials to "find some way" to keep both Mr. and Mrs. Mosteller at their posts since the loss of either "will markedly impair the effectiveness of the district . . ."

County auditor-controller Michael Mitchell said today there are no laws sanctioning conflicts of interest and doubted the state legislature would consider enacting one for Muir Beach.

Tonight's meeting is slated for 8 o'clock at the Edward C. Clark residence, 50 Starbreck Drive, Muir Beach.

Burglary Case To Higher Court

Two San Francisco men accused of burglary and having stolen property have been bound over to Marin Superior Court after a preliminary hearing in municipal court.

Walter James Brock, 30, and Vernon James Robinson, 23, who had claimed to be Melvin Carl Allen, are to appear for arraignment in the higher court Monday.

They were arrested April 4 by Sausalito police who said they found them burglarizing the home of Helme W. Schweikert at 5 Cloudview Trail.

San Rafael Youth Accused Of Entry

Christopher J. Wooton, 18, of San Rafael was arraigned today in Marin Superior Court on charges of burglary and possessing stolen property. He is to plead tomorrow.

Wooton was arrested with three others Feb. 27 outside Zahia Vista School in San Rafael after the door to the school had been forced open, setting off a silent alarm.

Petalumans Oppose Shop Center Plan

Plans for a neighborhood shopping center brought howls of protest last night before the Petaluma Planning Commission.

Norman Rollins had sought rezoning for a small shopping center on South McDowell Boulevard at Caulfield Lane Extension, but the proposal was tabled under a barrage of complaints.

Plans include a service station, convenience market, drug store and other small shops. Neighbors submitted a petition of opposition with 142 signatures and predicted traffic problems would be caused by the development.

Neighbors also complained that convenience shops would also cause noise problems, disturbingly bright lights, litter and a police problem.

The commission told Rollins it would take another look at the plan when traffic problems are studied more thoroughly and when he can present plans for devleopment of the remainder of the property.

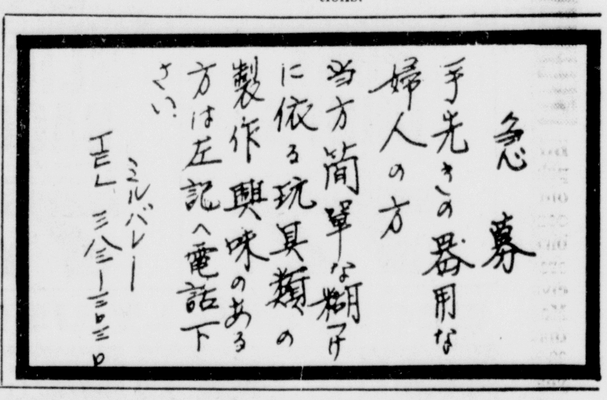
The Petaluma Planning Commission also:

MOTEL — Approved plans by James Codding for a motel adjacent to Sonoma Joe's Restaurant. Commissioner Robert E. Daly cast the lone dissenting vote, saying it did not conform to the recently approved environmental design plan.

RESTAURANT — Approved plans by Carlo A. Patocchi to rezone land at 219 Lakeville Street for the future Tivoli Restaurant-Bar.

SUBDIVISION — Approved the request of Valley Green Co. to rezone land off South McDowell Boulevard for the future 101-unit Cambridge Square subdivision.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. to consider three requests for service stations.



Angela's Attorneys Seek To Bar Letters

SAN JOSE (UPI)—Angela Davis' attorneys today asked Judge Richard E. Aranason to bar from evidence four love letters between the black militant and slain convict George Jackson on grounds they were illegally taken from Miss Davis' Los Angeles apartment.

The FBI entered the apartment Aug. 17 and 18, 1970, on a "fishing expedition," the defense motion said, when it had authority only to try to determine whether Miss Davis had fled the state.

Miss Davis' three unmailed letters became public last November during an earlier defense attempt to keep them out of the case.

In them Miss Davis expressed both love for Jackson and shared revolutionary thoughts. In one she wrote that she had dreamed of him after seeing him in court and in the dream, "we were together fighting pigs," she wrote.

The letters were taken 10 days after the Aug. 7, 1970, Marin County shootout at San Rafael, when Miss Davis was the object of a nationwide search.

She is on trial on charges of murder, kidnaping and conspiracy and accused of helping plot the kidnaping of five hostages from a Marin County courthouse which resulted in four deaths.

Defense attorney Doris Brin Walker said the letters, which have become part of the prosecution's case in the murder-kidnap trial, had nothing to do with federal charges of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Miss Davis was believed to be in Los Angeles at tha time, Miss Walker said, and consequently "clearly ... she had not crossed a state line."

The purpose of the federal warrant, she said, was "to discover instrumentalities and evidence of an unlawful flight" and FBI agent Jim McCord should have confined himself to that in searching Miss Davis' apartment.

"The letters contain nothing that could have led anyone to find Miss Davis. It was obvious that he was on a fishing expedition. He rummaged at will through her personal papers and took anything" he could find, Miss Walker said.

McCord testified Tuesday he was looking for "anything that could lead us to persons or places, which in turn, might lead to Miss Davis."

Arnason called a brief recess to consider the defense motion, and then dismissed the jury for the rest of the day in anticipation of lengthy arguments by both sides on the legal points.

"It's unlikely we will get to you today, so go on about your business," he told the jurors.

Reception Set On April 28 For Democrats

Democratic candidates for Congress and state Assembly will appear at a reception at 8 p.m. on April 28 at the Shelter Bay Club House, Shelter Bay apartments, Mill Valley.

The reception, labeled as "Primarily a Political Party," will be sponsored by the Marin Democratic Forum.

Scheduled to appear are congressional condidates Roger Boas and Alan French of San Francisco and Assembly candidates Joe Franaszek of Tiburon and Harry J. Moore of Novato.

Entertainment will be by folk singer Naomi Charnas.

Candidates for county supervisor, a nonpartisan position, also will be present, according to forum president Robert W. Greenman Jr. of Mill Valley.

Education Board Resignation

The Marin County Board of Education last night accepted the resignation of James A. Swenson, effective June 1.

A paint salesman in San Francisco, he cited increasing business pressure as his reason for resigning.

Swenson was first appointed to the board in January, 1969, and won election in April of that year from the Novato area.

Asst. Supt. Robert E. Spain said the board last night established procedures for replacing Swenson. Applications will be received immediately through May 15 at 5 p.m.

May 15 a county board screening committee will interview all those who applied, and May 23 the board will interview candidates the committee forwards. Spain said the board may announce the new appointment that evening.

June 5 will be the new appointee's first board meeting.

The appointee will serve until Nov. 7, elections, when a successor will be chosen to fill the unexpired term running to June 30, 1975.

Spain said the board also examined the preliminary budget of its special education programs. He said the figures call for a tax rate of 19.21 cents per $100 of assessed valuation to raise $1,325,000 to support that part of next year's budget, compared to a 20-cent tax rate last year, raising $1,347,288. Total tax rate for the county board has not been determined.

Spain said the board indicated cuts will be made in the budget requests.

Marin Groups Receive Grants

Three Marin groups are among 25 in the Bay Area to receive grants from the San Francisco Foundation, according to distribution committee chairman William H. Orrick Jr. of Stinson Beach.

The Marin County Police Community Relations Department received $29,500; Youth in Arts of Marin County, $10,000, and Catholic Social Service of Marin, San Rafael, $5,191, according to Orrick.

In all, $700,073 in grants were approved for the 25 groups during the first quarter of 1972, Orrick said.

Warrant Issued For Greenbrae Man

A bench warrant was issued today in Marin Superior Court for the arrest of Herbert Cosme, 22, of Greenbrae, who has failed to make court appearances on a charge of welfare fraud.

He is charged with receiving $747 in welfare overpayment last year when both he and his wife worked, but did not report their earnings.

Price Reelected Mayor As Belvedere Swears In

Newly elected Belvedere City Councilman David E. Bordon and reelected Councilmen Thomas S. Price and Merritt K. Ruddock were sworn into office last night and Price was unanimously elected to serve another year as mayor.

Allan Steinau was again named vice mayor, according to City Mgr. William L. Cavalli's office.

The Belvedere City Council also:

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to a special meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in Cavalli's office to hear a report from John McFarlane, retiring superintendent-manager of the Tiburon Sanitary District that maintains Belvedere's sewer system. The council wanted to hear McFarlane's views on proposed merger of Southern Marin sanitary districts and other matters.

BIDS — Authorized calling bids for May 1 on reconstruction of Woodland Lane between Bay View and Bella Vista avenues, to be reported on at the council's May 1 meeting.

PLANNING STUDY — Continued reviewing and adopting in principal the planning commission recommendations on the city's planning study subject to later hearings.

SUBDIVISION — Continued hearing on the Vose subdivision to the May 1 meeting.

Class Rescheduled By Boyd Museum

The Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science in San Rafael has rescheduled its canoeing class for May 5, rather than April 21 as previously announced, according to museum spokesman Gayle Rojas.

She also said a nature workshop for children aged 3 to 5 has been set for Tuesday afternoons. The next workshop of four 90-minute sessions begins May 2 at 10 a.m. Enrollments are being taken now, she said.

Tiburon Council Awaits Election Vote Recount

Tiburon's new city council will not be seated until Monday night, pending the outcome of a vote recount requested by Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood who lost her council seat by two votes in the April 11 election.

City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer said the recount will be performed Monday beginning at 9 a.m. in Tiburon council chambers under his supervision as city clerk. It will be done by four Tiburon voters, Vivienne Winblad, Harry Matthews, Gertrude Schliger and Dorothy Levitan.

The old council will convene at 7:30 p.m. to hand over its duties to the new one, he said.

At last night's meeting, he said the council accepted the canvass of the votes in the election, but did not declare anyone elected. Miss Ellinwood, according to county election figues, received 898 votes, compared with 900 for Allan N. Littman and 955 for Albert Aramburu.

No other business was conducted at the meeting, Balmer said.

Sewer Hook-Up Fees Are Raised

Directors of the Richardson Bay Sanitary District last night approved raising sewer connection fees by 25 per cent, according to District Secretary Eber D. Russell.

Russell said the vote was 3-2, with himself and Henry C. Whitescarver casting negative votes. Formal adoption of the ordinance will come at a later meeting, he said.

Usual house connection fee is about $400 tg $450, he said, and apartment connection fees vary too much to give an average figure.

Jobs Discussion On KTIM Program

The importance of finding jobs for veterans returning home from Vietnam will be discussed tomorrow at 9 a.m. on the KTIM "Sounding Board" by Robert C. Beebe, veterans employment representative with the state; James Burdick, Marin veterans service officer; Robert Souza, senior veterans representative for Northern California, and Harold B. Walde, president of Harver Industries of San Rafael.

Questions may be phoned during tomorrow's broadcast. The program will be repeated by tape-recording Sunday at 10:05 a.m.

Attack By The Zodiac Is Doubted

The mad killer who calls himself the Zodiac is a suspect in an unprovoked knife attack on a woman in Tamalpais Valley April 7.

That is the conclusion of Ken Narlow, a Napa sheriff's captain who has been hunting the killer since September 1969 when a coed was murdered at Lake Berryessa. "There is a better than 50-50 chance it is him," Narlow said.

The Marin County Sheriff's Department doesn't agree. Lt. Richard Gaddinni of the Marin City substation said he has several leads for his investigation, but the Zodiac isn't one.

Another lieutenant who has followed Zodiac's bizarre career said there were some similarities to Zodiac's other known attacks, but enough dissimilarities to make him doubt the killer of at least five persons in the Bay Area was involved.

The attack that sparked the speculation occurred on dark tree-lined Pine Hill Road shortly before 9 p.m. when a car swerved in front of Isobel Watson as she walked toward her home.

The driver got out and offered twice to drive her home. Twice she politely refused. The man then began pummeling her about the head and shoulders with his fists, according to Gaddinni.

Only after the man had fled when her screams attracted friends did she realize she had been stabbed in the upper back and neck, he said.

The 33-year-old legal secretary was taken to Marin General Hospital by friends for treatment.

She said her attacker was about 40 years old and a stocky five feet, eight inches in height with black hair. She described his car as a late model Ford or Chevrolet sedan.

The Napa captain who conferred with Marin authorities after the attack, said he has no concrete evidence, but "you get a certain feeling about things. I got a feeling about this one."

Narlow said the attack occurred on a weekend which is when the Zodiac killer has struck in the past.

The elusive murderer who writes to newspapers chronicling his exploits, claims at least 17 slayings. However, police have positively linked him to only five.

The most recent was the shooting of San Francisco cab driver Paul Stine in October 1969. A piece of the victim's shirt was later mailed to police.

San Rafael Youths Face Misdemeanors

Only misdemeanor charges have been filed against two San Rafael youths who were arrested Sunday on suspicion of marijuana and liquor violations by the California Highway Patrol.

Billy R. Dennis, 18, and Douglas W. Puskar, 19, were arrested when a car driven by Puskar was stopped near the Corte Madera off ramp of Highway 101 because it was traveling erratically, according to the highway patrol.

Youth Council In Novato Urged; Guidelines Given

The Novato Youth Advisory Committee recommended last night that the city establish a youth commission.

Michael Ascuitto, a committee member from Novato High School, told the Novato City Council, "This is what we felt had to be done to have youth get more responsive and to get more action."

The committee said a commission could:

"Present ideas to the city council that indicate what the younger people think about youth and what should be done by the community in serving the youth.

"Provide a means for allowing the youth to tell themselves what needs to be done.

"Give youth representation within the community that can develop alternatives for solving or filling the needs of youth.

"Give the youth meaningful responsibility through service on this body (commission) or other public advisory bodies.

"Give youth of all ages an interest and opportunity to be heard and to participate in decision making.

"Start Novato moving on a course to solve youth problems at an early stage in Novato's growth before it is too late."

Among the potential projects for the commission would be the development of a youth drop-in center, encouragement or improvement of recreation programs and development of job opportunities or youth business the committee reported.

As proposed the commission wouldn't have a set membership, but any individual willing to "become involved" would be a commission member.

The committee also said the council could consider hiring a coordinator to guide the commission and work with public agencies and the community.

Among the proposed tasks for the commission would be identifying the needs of youth which aren't being satisfied, formulate proposals to meet these needs, and seek community support for necessary youth programs.

The council agreed to put the youth proposal on the agenda of its next regular meeting, at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Novato Community House.

100th Birthday For Sausalito Man

More than 1,000 birthday cards from throughout California arrived last weekend at the home of Francis Baptiste, retired Sausalito builder who was 100 years old on Saturday.

Nearly 100 persons came to the family home to wish him well, and he wants to thank everyone, according to his daughter, Elphe Brogdon.

Concept For Open Space Is Endorsed

The Novato Parks and Recreation Commission has endorsed the concept of forming a special district to acquire open space but not a method under which the agency would be run, according to Recreation Director Edward W. Adams.

Commissioners Monday night heard a proposal from Patrick H. Heffernan, representing People for Parks and Open Space, for a regional district with a separate governing board.

At a previous meeting, commissioners heard Marin County's proposal for a countywide district governed by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Commissioners didn't take any action on either proposal, pending further study, Adams said.

The Novato Parks and Recreation Commission also:

PARKS — Heard from Adams that the Little League field and play area at Olive School will be ready for use April 30, that work has started on the parking lot at Novato Creek Park and play equipment is being installed at Pioneer Memorial Park.

DOWNTOWN PLAN — Agreed to take a field trip to the park site designated in the city's downtown plan, mostly along Novato Creek, with a view toward setting priorities, but the trip date wasn't set.

MOUNT BURDELL — Received an inquiry from Ester Equities Co. of San Francisco, owner of 200 acres on Mount Burdell, about the city's plans for the mountain, which has been labeled a choice area for preservation as open space.

WOK COOKING of Chinese foods is becoming more popular than ever since high food prices have led Americans toward the less expensive vegetable and meat dishes of the Chinese. This one is beef with snow peas.

TWO TASTY ENTREES

Join The Fun, Try Out A Chinese Dish For A Party

By LUCILE B. FLITTON
The Christian Science Monitor News Sarvice

When Mrs. Nixon admired the way Chinese chefs turned out the traditional Peking duck, she was told that it took many years to learn its preparation.

But this isn't so when it comes to making many Chinese vegetable dishes, now popular in the United States where prices of meat are so high.

Here are two recipes that use vegetables in combinations with meat. Both could be made with less meat than listed if you feel qualified to change the recipe around, perhaps after one or two experiences in cooking Chinese style.

The Oriental beef is made from thinly sliced beefsteak, either fillet or rump marinated then cooked by the stir-fry method with vegetables.

If you want to be fully authentic you will cook these dishes in an Oriental wok which is the shallow pan with a rounded bottom.

An electric frying pan can also be used at the table or a heavy skillet will work equally well on your kitchen range. Woks are generally available in large department stores and gourmet shops as well as in many of the mail order catalogs. You can also enjoy them for stir-frying bits of fish, shrimp, and vegetables as well as for special Chinese dishes.

ORIENTAL BEEF WITH SNOW PEAS

1½ pounds beefsteak, either fillet or rump 1¼ inches thick
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon ginger
1 clove garlic, finely minced
3 tablespoon cooking oil
1 package (7ounces) frozen snow peas (Chinese sugar peas)
1 cup sliced celery or 2 cups Chinese cabbage
1 cup fresh mushrooms, sliced
1 cup 1-inch green onion slices
1 can (6-½ ounce) water chestnuts, drained and sliced
2 beef bouillon cubes, crumbled
1 cup water
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1½ teaspoons salt

Partially freeze meat, to make thin slicing easier. Cut meat diagonally into very thin slices. Combine lemon juice, soy sauce, sugar, ginger, and garlic to make marinade; pour over meat. Refrigerate one hour.

Heat oil in Chinese wok or heavy fry pan over high heat. Drain marinade from meat, stir and fry meat slices over high heat one minute until meat is gray in color. Add snow peas and marinade; stir and cook over high heat one minute.

Add celery or celery cabbage, mushrooms, green onions, and water chestnuts; stir and cook over high heat two minutes. Combine remaining ingredients; add and cook until sauce is clear and thickened. Serve immediately with hot fluffy rice, if desired. Kumquats and watermelon picles make a perfect accompaniment. Serves six.

Attractive as it is tasty, sweet and sour pork is perfect for a buffet dinner. Pork cubes glisten in sweet-sour sauce and are bright with dashes of red, yellow, and green from tomato, pineapple and green pepper.

Rice is a natural accompaniment and a pretty one, too, shaped in a favorite mold. Simply pack the hot cooked rice firmly into a well-buttered mold. Let it stand for about five minutes in a pan of warm water. Then invert it on a serving dish and carefully lift off the mold. Surround the rice with mandarin oranges and sprinkle with almonds for extra color and flavor.

SWEET AND SOUR PORK

1 can (1 pound 4½ ounce) pineapple chunks
½ cup water
⅓ cup vinegar
⅓ cup (packed) brown sugar
4 teaspoons soy sauce
⅓ cup flour
1½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon garlic salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 pounds boneless pork shoulder cut into 1 inch cubes.
2 tablespoons butter or margaine
1 medium green pepper, cut in thick strips
1 medium tomato, cut in thin wedges
6 servings hot fluffy rice

Drain pineapple; save syrup and pineapple chunks. Combine syrup, water, vinegar, sugar, and soy sauce. Combine flour, salt, and pepper; mix. Dredge meat in flour mixture. Melt butter or margarine in heavy fry pan. Add meat; brown on all sides, turning as needed. Add one cup of the reserved liquid. Cover; simmer gently until meat is tender, about one hour. Uncover; add remaining liquid and continue heating. Add pineapple chunks, green pepper and tomato; mix carefully and cook just until vegetables are heated, three-five minutes. Serve with rice. Serves six.

GOURMET DELIGHTS

International Menu For Event

An international menu featuring Israeli, Greek and French dishes will be served by Episcopal Churchwomen of the Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley at the 20th annual Marin County Antiques Show and Sale April 27 to 29 at the IDESSI Hall in Sausalito. Dinners will be available between 5 and 8:30 p.m.

Mrs. Forest Goss and Mrs. Charles McCormick, kitchen chairmen, have planned an unusual and exotic but inexpensive dinner for each of the three days.

Some of the recipes they will serve are Israeli Chicken, Dolmadakia (stuffed grape leaves) and Kreatipittes (a meat-filled pastry.)

ISRAELI CHICKEN

2 young fryers (or equivalent in chicken breasts)
1 cup flour
1 tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon paprika
½ teaspoon pepper
½ cup butter
1 7-oz. jar pitted ripe olives, drained
1 cup orange juice
1 Tbsp. brown sugar
1 tsp. salt
½ teaspoon thyme
1 medium onion, sliced in rings
1 tsp. paprika

Combine salt, pepper, paprika and flour, coat chicken and brown in one-quarter cup butter. Place browned chicken in large flat casserole. To make sauce combine one-quarter cup butter, orange juice, brown sugar and thyme in saucepan. Sprinkle with paprika and bake one hour at 350 degrees. Add drained olives, baste and bake for another 20 minutes. Serve with rice.

DOLMADAKIA
(Stuffed Grape Leaves)

1 lb. ground lamb
1 tablespoon olive oil
2½ cups finely chopped onions
½ cup raw rice
¼ cup currants
¼ cup toasted pine nuts (optional)
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon allspice
¼ teaspoon crushed mint leaves
1 teaspoon salt
1 jar grape leaves

Saute lamb until well browned. Drain excess fat and remove to bowl. Add one tablespoon olive oil to pan juices and saute onions until golden. Mix lamb, onions, rice, currants, tomato sauce, parsley, mint and spices. Pat grape leaves dry — unroll and flatten. Place one tablespoon lamb filling in center of each leaf. Fold bottom of leaf over filling and tuck under. Fold sides over center and complete rolling (not too tightly). Place in oiled casserole in neat rows. Add water to almost cover. Bake in 350 degrees oven for 40 minutes. Serve hot with sour cream and slice of lemon. (May also be served cold).

KREATOPITTES

½ lb. ground beef
½ lb. ground veal
2 onions, finely chopped
2 eggs
1 cup Bechamel sauce
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 pkg. filo (or phyllo), a very fine, thin Greek pastry

Saute ground beef and onions together. Mix with other ingredients. Place one spoonful of mixture on a sheet of filo, fold like an envelope. Brush with butter and cook in a 375 degree oven about 20 minutes or until browned.

BECHAMEL SAUCE
(2 cups)

4 tablespoons butter
5-6 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 egg yolk
salt and pepper

Make like any white sauce. Makes two cups.

Meat Statistics

Total meat production in the United States during 1971 was a record 37.8 billion pounds, an increase of 1.6 billion pounds over 1970.

Beef topped the various categories with 22 billion pounds, up nearly 316 million pounds. Pork production was 14.7 billion pounds, up 1.3 billion; veal, 520 million pounds, down 68 million; lamb and mutton, 560 million pounds, up slightly.

A Tasty Dip

Why not introduce your family to a new accompaniment for cold cuts or ham? They'll enjoy the zip of the horseradish and crunch of the crisp apple in this: apple-sour cream sauce — Chop one cored unpeeled apple and fold into one cup dairy sour cream. Blend in one fourth cup prepared horseradish, three fourth teaspoon salt, and a dash of white pepper. Chill before serving. Makes about one and three fourth cups.

MRS. FORREST GOSS (left) prepares another chicken as Mrs. Charles McCormick feeds a spoonful of Israeli Chicken to her year-old daughter Mary Goss at the McCormick home in Mill Valley. The orange-flavored chicken is one of the international recipes the women have devised for the dinners to be served next week at the Annual County Antiques Show, sponsored by the Episcopal Churchwomen of the Mill Valley Church of Our Saviour.

NATIONAL MARCH of Dimes poster boy, Marty MimMack (right) practices for the March of Dimes Bike-A-Thon with his parents, William and Gloria MimMack, and his older brother Matthew, near their home in San Jose. The bicycle riding fund raising events will start at Tamalpais High School Lon May 6.

AT TAMALPAIS HIGH

Bike-A-Thon Is Launched

The community needs more education concerning handicapped children than it does any other group, according to Mrs. William MimMack, mother of March of Dimes national poster child, Marty MimMack of San Jose.

Marty and Mrs. MimMack were at a rally at Tamalpais High School Monday to help kickoff registration for the May 6 March of Dimes Bike-A-Thon. Theme for bicycle riding fund raising event will be "Miles for Marty," honoring the 10-year-old poster boy, who will be one of the entrants.

After Marty was born without arms and with one lel three inches shorter than the other, in May of 1961, the MimMacks became concerned about the education of other people to the needs of a handicapped child.

"We found that four other children in our neighborhood in San Jose had been born without limbs about the same time as Marty," said Gloria MimMack. "We started a parents group, called ourselves Parents of Congenital and Traumatic Amputees and had brochures printed. We felt that by sharing what our families had been through and what we had learned, we could be of help to other parents who had children born without limbs.

"OUR PAMPHLET is very simple," she explained. "It says that we are parents who have experienced the same thing you have. If you would like to talk with us we are available night or day and will try to match you with a child whose handicap is closest to that of your child's disability.

"When Marty was born," she continued, "we were told there was absolutely not another child around who was born like him. We were told there were no facilities for children like Marty and no educational facilities. This information turned out to be wrong, but we learned that the communication between doctors and organizations — at least in Santa Clara County — is practically nil.

"We've learned a lot we'd like to share with others — things like how to make a sandwich holder out of a clothespin and tongue depressors for a child who wears an artificial arm."

We'd like to meet parents of children with missing limbs who are older than ours. We can learn so much from those parents because they've solved problems we're just coming into, she said.

"We've taught Marty that there are many different ways in which people express sympathy. Even though he does not want nor need sympathy we've tried to teach him to consider the other person's feelings and accept their expressions graciously," Mrs. MimMack said.

In Marin, a child like Marty would probably be eligible for the Atypical Infant Development program in Kentfield, which provides continuing education and therapy for children whose development is delayed for any reason from birth until the age of 3 when they enter Marin County Schools programs.

NO SUCH program existed in Marty's home community of Santa Clara, so his parents took him to the University of California clinic in San Francisco, where his treatment and therapy were directed by Dr. Edwin Schottstaedt of Mill Valley. Under the guidance of Dr. Schottstaedt, Marty's physical abilities improved to the point where he was able to enter the Chandler-Tripp Nursery School for the Handicapped when he was 3 years old.

Now Marty attends the Fremont-Older School just two miles from his San Jose home. According to Gloria MimMack, the school is one of two in California with an orthopedic wing.

"Marty goes to regular school," she explained," gets out at 2:15 p.m. and goes to the orthopedic wing for therapy four times a week. In this school, orthopedically handicapped children don't have to go to school in one place and run to another for therapy. The special needs of handicapped children are integrated right into their regular studies."

In Marty's combined fourth grade class there are two children in wheelchairs, one on crutches — and Marty.

"The cooperation of the children is fantastic," according to Gloria MimMack. "One child is assigned to Marty to open the doors for him; others are assigned on a weekly basis as pushers to take the children in wheelchairs out to the playground and back. The normal children benefit as much as the handicapped do from this type of integration.

"This type of integrated school is wonderful for children like Marty, whose birth defect only affects his bone structure," she explained. "In other areas such children must attend a handicapped school — and their education suffers. This way the handicapped child learns to function in a normal world. What good does it for him to be isolated all through his school years and then suddenly be thrown into the work force and told to compete?"

GLORIA MIMMACK has been a Mothers' Marcher for the March of Dimes since polio days. When Marty was born the chairman of the Santa Clara County March of Dimes Chapter asked if they could take some pictures of Marty to help publicize the work of the voluntary health organization.

"I didn't realize then that it was very difficult for them to find children and families who were willing to allow their child to be photographed," she said. "Our first concern was the education of other people and we felt that by having Marty photographed we would immediately expose his handicap to the community which needed the education more than anyone."

Marty has been National March of Dimes poster child for two years. He says he enjoys being a celebrity and has had many adventures in his national role, including a visit to the White House and making a film with Arnold Palmer. He loves to fly and to eat in restaurants. Marty's father, William, an engineer at Lockheed, has been given time off to travel with his son on behalf of the March of Dimes. Marty refers to this time away from his five older brothers, as, "Just Dad, and me, and room service."

The MimMack family vacations are usually spent camping in Alaska, Canada or Mexico. They've also been active in the mission program of the Catholic Church through their parish of Queen of the Apostles.

When Marty was about 2 years old his father took a leave of absence and the family journeyed to a little pocket valley in New Mexico. In the little town of Aragon, they helped the Father build a school.

"The people of the valley were all Spanish of Castilian descent," she said, "and had never been exposed to a handicapped child before. I remember setting Marty on the little counter of a tiny grocery store. I picked up a few things and when I came back Marty's toes were full of quarters — the only way they knew how to express their sympathy."

Traditional White Uniform On Way Out

The traditional "woman in white" may show up on the job in pink, blue, aqua or lime uniforms. Uniform manufacturers report that while white is still the leading favorite for hospital, office and beauty salon personnel, the other shades are gaining favor.

Sidney Dessr, vice president of National Uniform Shops, told Women's Wear Daily, "Pediatricians especially encourage the wearing of colors, as many children are frightened by stark white."

RUTH CRIVELLO
To be bride

Some Facts On Common Cold

The full impact of the common cold on American business and society can't be calculated, but various authorities have provided these interesting guess-timates:

Colds account for 40 to 50 per cent of all industrial absenteeism; every worker loses nearly four days a year due to colds. Cost of this lost time could be as high as $5 billion annually.

Each American child stays home with the sniffles about six days a year. Nationally, this means 50 million days lost from school.

Novato Girl Is Engaged

The engagement of Ruth Helaine Crivello and Robert W. O'Connor is being announced by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. Crivello (Amada) Guerrero de Crivello) of Novato.

Ruth is the sister of Allan, Barry, Gary, Terry, Trudy and Yvonne Crivello of Novato. Her local grandmother is Mrs. Constance McCarthy of San Francisco. The bride-elect was graduated from Presentation High School in San Francisco and will be graduated from the University of California at Santa Barbara in June.

Robert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. O'Connor of Lake Oswego, Ore. He is the brother of Thomas W. O'Connor, a graduate student at the University of New Mexico. He was graduated from Lake Oswego High School and will also be graduated from the University of California at Santa Barbara in June.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Use Pull-Power On Mower Before Husband Gets Home

DEAR HELEN:

My husband loves fertilizing our lawn, hates mowing it. Therefore we have the greenest grass in town and the longest.

He won't let me mow it because he doesn't want the neighbors to think he is lazy, but truthfully, he IS — or at least he can always think of a dozen "more important" things to do.

I'm dying to get out there with our power mower, but I can't start the darn thing without his help, it being the rope-pull kind. Meanwhile, I call our back yard Sherwood Forest.

I know this isn't a world-shaking problem, but how do you convince a husband that his wife really enjoys mowing the lawn? — OVERGROWN HOUSEWIFE

DEAR OVER:

Why don't you practice up on pulling that rope (it isn't so difficult — even I can start our power mower — usually) and get the job done while your husband is away at work?

This would prove you truly enjoy mowing the lawn. Honest, now — do you? — H.

P.S. Might also inspire him to home repairs, etc. on the weekends, right?

DEAR HELEN:

Here's another inequity that women's lib should work on. My husband and I are employed by the same company, but in different parts of town (we can't be in the same office). If he were transferred to a new location, the company would move us, help sell our house, pay living expenses until we were settled in the new town, and generally make everything very easy.

But if I were up for a promotion elsewhere, they'd probably advise me to stay put. Definitely they wouldn't pay moving expenses, etc. for our family.

We're both at the executive level, but my husband is encouraged to move ahead. I'm a small embarrassment to them, each time I let them know I'm ambitious too.

Will this situation ever change? — WOMAN EXECUTIVE

DEAR W.E.:

Slowly — very slowly. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm 25, and a new bride. It seems that every married woman I've met (who has been married over two years) feels she is a prisoner. Evidently they can't wait for the blissful moment when they receive a new name and a ring on their finger, but how fast they change! "Glorious married life" becomes a trap.

At club meetings, etc. they run their husbands down, yearn for all they "gave up" — a hot-blooded lover, a romantic job, beautiful clothes, no runny-nosed kids underfoot. And they keep telling me I'll be just like them when I take off the rose-colored glasses.

The husbands I've met, too, seem pretty well bent on making conquests outside their own bedrooms. I've lost count of the propositions they've made.

Helen, if marriage is only boredom and longing for someone or something else, and regret, why is it so popular? Even couples I'm pretty sure care a lot for each other, still act as if they don't. It seems the thing to do — seeing how low you can bring each other down, or how dull you can make marriage seem.

I'll never be like that! Or will I? — IN LOVE THOUGH MARRIED

DEAR IN LOVE:

No, you'll never be like that — if you and your husband remember three rules: Take each other for better or for worse — but never for granted! Turn criticism to honest praise wherever possible. And say "I love you" at least three times a day.

Stay happy! — H.

New Boat Rules Effective Monday

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — New federal regulations governing the safe use of boats became effective Monday.

For the most part, they merely extend rules previously applying to motorboats to other types of private pleasure craft now under Coast Guard jurisdiction as a result of the Federal Boat Safety Act of 1971.

Like the previous rules, the new ones cover the use of boats on bodies of water crossing state borders or contained in federally owned property such as national parks. Most states have similar regulations governing boating within state borders.

The main purpose of the new regulations is to require the presence of lifesaving equipment on sailboats, canoes, rowboats and other craft not already subject to such regulations under Coast Guard jurisdiction.

IN GENERAL the new rules mean that there should be one officially approved life preserver for each person aboard. Other devices, such as buoyant vests and cushions, are permissible if they have Coast Guard approval for effectiveness.

Persons using a kayak or canoe with an enclosed deck are not required to have a preserver but must wear a buoyant vest conforming to Coast Guard regulations for either adult or child use.

Persons using racing shells or rowing sculls do not have to carry preservers or vests if such equipment is available aboard accompanying craft.

Such equipment must always be easily accessible and in good serviceable condition.

When purchasing safety items for boating use, look for the official Coast Guard label indicating that it meets federal standards. For a free list of equipment approved by the Coast Guard, write to Equipment list, U.S. Coast Guard (MMT/82), 400 7th Street, SW., Washington, D.C., 20590.

The new law also authorizes the Coast Guard to set minimumstandards in the construction and manufacture of pleasure boats. In cases where these standards are not followed, boats can be ordered returned to manufacturers.

IN THIS RESPECT, the law is stronger than the ones governing automobile safety. Under the motor vehicle laws, the government is not authorized to require that defective vehicles be called back, although manufacturers have usually done so when requested.

When a manufacturer notices a defect, he must notify both the dealer and the ultimate buyer by certified mail. He must also notify the Coast Guard.

The new law gives Coast Guard officers expanded powers to check on boats in operation. Boarding officers are authorized to require boaters to return to a safe mooring if there are not sufficient lifesaving devices aboard. Violators are also subject to arrest.

The new law drops the automatic maximum penalty clause, allowing a boarding officer to use his own discretion.

It also provides new protection for "good samaritans" who give aid in emergencies. The new law exempts them from civil damages providing that they act reasonably and the recipients do not object to receiving aid.

Specific questions relating to the new law should also be directed to the Coast Guard.

Microwave Cookery

Microwave cooking is not a new innovation. It has been around for nearly three decades but only recently recognized by the consumer as a fast and efficient method of food preparation.

Jade Much Tougher Than A Diamond

A diamond should be treated with some degree of caution, according to the American Gem Society. Although it is exceedingly hard and resistant to scratching it is not exceedingly tough or resistant to blows.

Jade is softer, but it is tougher. A jade ring would probably survive a hard knock against a brass doorknob with only a scratch. Given the same treatment a diamond would not scratch, but it could chip or fracture.

COMMEDIA TROUPE — Tangled together are six of the seven members of the Commedia della Vita troupe. An offspring of the Renaissance Faire, where the group still may be seen, the troupe also performs at schools in Marin County. Marinite Carl Arena With Acting Troupe

By JAY GOODWIN

It's a long way from O. Henry candy bar commercials to the Renaissance Pleasure Faire's Commedia della Vita troupe.

Carl Arena — a 25-year-old actor who spent years in Hollywood leaping over giant candy bars and puffing Newport cigarettes for television commercials — has made the journey.

Commedia della Vita, of which Arena and six other Marinites are members, is a troupe of seven actors and actresses that presents stage performances in the style of Italian Renaissance commedia.

The group was formed in 1971 by Judy Kory, an eight-year veteran with the Renaissance Faire, held each year in Marin. As she tells it, the idea hit her and she told the fair organizers that she wanted to direct commedia. They approved the idea and she went out to gather other performers from within the Renaissance Faire family.

Though they perform throughout the state, their primary exposure has been in Marin, where fair organizers hope to locate permanently.

Commedia theatre developed in the 16th Century — with its roots in Chinese Kabuki theater — and hit its peak during the Italian Renaissance. In those days, commedias were presented by traveling families whose oldest and most experienced member usually served as director.

The seven members of Commedia dela Vita are not members of the same family. "Actually, we tried living together for awhile," recalled Arena. "But it was a total disaster."

Nevertheless, said Arena, the troupe "works fantastically well together on-stage."

For 45 energetic minutes, the troupe glides through its loosely constructed scenario, employing techniques of mime, improvisation and dance.

They dart on and off stage wearing white-face makeup or masks and bizarre, fairy-tale costumes. Their characters are played with gusto and exaggeration.

The Villain, for example, does not make his entrance in a calm, relaxed manner. Rather, he swoops out from the wings, with his cape flying in a maniacal fashion.

All emotions are inflated as the troupe goes through its wild and entertaining caricatures.

"Commedia is tremendously demanding of your acting talents," said Arena. "It's vaudeville, it's outdoor theatre, it's energetic, it's life!"

Each of the seven performers becomes a standard character in the commedia family. That character — be it villain, heroine, or old miser —assumes a particular role in each production. While the roles and plots change from one production to another, the character is always played by the same actor.

Carl Arena, for example, is Capitano —the villain. In every production by Commedia della Vita, there is always a villain. That villain is always played by Capitano. And Capitano is always Carl Arena.

"I enjoy being Capitano — he's a great character. Between me and he Fool, we get most of the 'boos' and 'yeas.'"

The Fool, with whom Carl shares the 'boos' and 'yeas' is played by Billy Scudder, 32, an ex-nightclub crooner and rock and roll singer during the 1950s.

Other members of the troupe are Kim Zultz, 19 — The Old Miser — who came to Commedia della Vita with experience as a woodcarver, and a telephone operator; Suzanne Marceau, 21, — The Wench —who's the daughter-in-law of mimist Marcel Marceau and an ex-lab technician, and Julie Stambone, 25, —The Heroine —A Bank of America teller and veteran of The Wing improvisational theater.

Also Kenneth Millikan, 31, — The Lover —who's an ace carpenter and jeweler, and Judy Kory, 37, — The Narrator and special effects expert — who's been a dancer and Instant Theatre actress.

Except for Arena, who lives in Larkspur, they all live in San Rafael.

"We sit around over dinner and talk about what we want to do for our next show," explained Arena.

"From our readings and our knowledge of theater, we shoot into our "stew" all the things we'd like to do. Then we dip in and see what we've got."

The Commedia della Vita is financed by the Renaissance Center, which annually stages the fair in Marin. The troupe performs not only to entertain and educate their audiences, but also to expose them to a form of drama that will be available when the Renaissance Center finds a permanent home in the county.

Between Marin County school bookings, which Arena said are harder and harder to find, the group prepares for its next production at the Renaissance Faire in Los Angeles, later this year.

"We're fair people," said Arena, who was seen by thousands at the Dickens Christmas Fair in San Francisco in the guise of Sherlock Holmes. "We go from fair to fair and perform wherever we can."

"It's a needed type of theater and people love it, so we'll keep doing it."

Pussycats, Sourpusses Are Named

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pussycat and Sourpuss awards of the year were announced Tuesday by the Pussycat League of Happily Unliberated Women.

Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., and Elizabeth Taylor both won Pussycat awards.

Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and the sex research team of Masters and Johnson won sourpuss awards.

Ervin won for what the league called a valiant fight against the Equal Rights Amendment and Miss Taylor for maintaining "her zest for life despite the double burdens of incredibly good looks and heavy jewelry."

Mitchell got the Golden Receiver Ribbon for what the league called "using his wife to make headlines and then quitting his job to shut her up."

Masters and Johnson won the "Sexual Fallacy Sweepstakes" for "treating human bodies like late model cars in need of servicing and for giving motels a bad name."

Recount Delays Mill Valley Oaths

Changing of the guard ceremonies were halted in midmaneuver last night as the outgoing Mill Valley City Council resolved to remain in office until the question of a vote recount is settled.

Councilman Jerome C. Hauke, declared by the county elections department to be the loser to Gerald J. Hood by six votes in the April 11 election, yesterday requested a recount. Hood, Robert E. Burton and Robert E. Capron had been declared winners in the contest.

The council adopted a resolution which accepted the county's vote tally, but stopped short of declaring anyone elected and did not call for the oath of office to be administered.

City Atty. Leland H. Jordan said the council had the option of recounting the ballots itself, but recommended that it name a special recounting board to do the job under county authority.

The council ratified four persons already selected by the county elections department to comprise such a committee, and asked the county to move up the recounting date.

City mgr. William H. Cunningham said recounting had been planned to begin Monday at 8 a.m., but the council voted to adjourn its meeting only until tomorrow at 8 p.m. in hopes that the recheck could be completed by then.

Jordan said the council's course of action was "flying by the seat of the pants" because state law does not cover the situation, but he recommended its passage.

Selected to perform the recount were: George Parker of 106 Lovell Avenue, Edith Provines of 60 Corte Madera, Eunice Beck of 640 Throckmorton Avenue and Gladys Mae Bernard of 13 Alta Vista Avenue.

The council met briefly as the city's retirement board before taking up the recount issue, and voted to reaffirm city policy of providing the same retirement to city employees who retired before the city joined the State Retirement System as current employees will get.

It also approved two traffic ordinances, one extending the 25-mile-per-hour speed limit on Iamino Alto to the north city limits and the other creating a two-hour parking zone on a portion of Montford Avenue.

Ford Recalls 1972 Torinos And Montegoes

DETROIT (UPI)—Ford Motor Co. has recalled all the Ford Torinos and Mercury Montegoes built in 1972 to correct a bearing problem that could cause the rear wheels to fall off under stress.

A total of 396,000 vehicles—the entire 1972 model-year run of intermediate size cars built by the automaker — were involved in the recall "dating back to job one of the 1972 models" a spokesman said Monday.

Ford said that it has received reports of 16 cases in which the rear wheels and axle were separated from vehicles, but only one of these known cases involved personal injury.

Allen Will Continue As Ross Mayor

The Ross Town Council last night canvassed the votes; swore in the new members; named a mayor and mayor protem and named new committee members, all without any change of personnel.

There was no change in the unofficial count in the votes for council which were John H. Chase, 467; Alan P. Maginis, 446; Jewell I. Osterloh, 460, all incumbents and reelected; Peter B. Valentine, 302 and Tracy Van Vorhees, 282. Virginia Stott, 594, for town clerk and Else M. Innes, 592, for town treasurer, both unopposed.

Frederick S. Allen was reelected mayor for a fifth term and Roy Farrington Jones was selected mayor pro-tem.

The committees remained the same with John H. Chase and Jones on the community protection committee; Chase and Maginis on the finance committee, Maginis and Osterloh on the streets and Parks committee and Osterloh and Jones on the general government committee.

The council briefly reviewed the preliminary fire and street budgets which showed but little change, and nothing for salary increases.

The fire budget for fiscal 1972-73 was proposed at $47,745, down $20 from the current $47,765. The street budget was proposed at $31,503, down $305 from the current $31,808.

The council members agreed that these figures could change at budget time when cost-of-living salary increases will be considered.

The council adjourned to 8 p.m., May 11.

New Cotati Councilmen Score War

By BONNIE BARD

Two of Cotati's three youthful new councilmen took office last night and denounced the war in Vietnam as their first official act.

Stephen Laughlin, 24, was joined by Geoffrey Dunham, 29, in urging the immediate withdrawal of all troops from Southeast Asia only minutes after the oaths of office were administered.

Laughlin began by calling the intensified bombing of North Vietnam a "drastic and extreme situation". He shared a letter he had written to president Richard M. Nixon "urging the withdrawal of all troops immediately to avoid the risk of more wanton slaughter."

Laughlin's statement brought warm applause from Dunham and many friends in the audience, but drew only cold stares from the older council members, Frank P. Dolinsek and Herbert T. Winter.

Both Sonoma State College graduates mumbled nervously through the oath of office and seemed uneasy in their unaccustomed seats at the council table. Fellow election winner Annette Lombardi, 24, was in Italy.

The council agreed to delay the election of mayor until her return, which is expected in two weeks. "I think we should postpone the election until Annette is here since she should be the mayor," Laughlin suggested. Dolinsek and Winter agreed, saying the person winning the most votes is traditionally picked for the top job.

Both young men sat between Dolinsek and Winter on the council rostrum, enhancing the contrast in ages and in lifestyles. Laughlin, who in recent months has cut his shoulder length hair into a Prince Valiant style, wore faded blue jeans and a garnet sweater for the official installation.

Dunham, prematurely bald with only a fringe of dark hair and a drooping mustache, wore a gaily flowered shirt making the dark business suits worn by Dolinsek and Winter appear drab in comparison.

City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen called the election a "considerable surprise" and said it showed that young people can work within the established system "and accomplish goals without resorting to riots and burning."

Laughlin and Dunham stared at the city manager during his statement and appeared perturbed at his mention of riots and burning. "I'm looking forward to working with them for the next four years," Salfen said.

Dolinsek and Winter shook hands with the newcomers and offered congratulations along with Lester H. Petersen, Alfred Falletti and Ben Oretsky, who were ousted from their council seats last Tuesday.

Each of the losers carefully looked over the official election results with stoic expressions. When a friend jokingly asked why the men were sitting in the audience instead of at the council table, Petersen replied laughingly, "haven't you heard? We've been fired."

In the first official action, the council unanimously appointed Petersen to the committee working to renovate an old water well. Dunham said he believed Petersen should continue to serve since he owns a well drilling business and could lend expertise to the committee.

At an impromptu news conference after the meeting, Laughlin and Dunham said prime concerns will be repair of the city's water system, streets, the improvement of Plaza Park by rerouting vehicular traffic and forming a day care center.

They said they will also work to see that the rural atmosphere of Cotati is retained and that growth is strictly controlled.

The new councilmen will be faced with their first subdivision application at the council meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. when developer Harold Heers requests approval for two more units at the Holiday Park Subdivision. Tentative maps for the units have already been approved by the old council.

Plans For New Money Orders

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Postal Service said today it will scrap its present money order system and introduce a simplified new one by October.

It said the new system will improve service to the public by reducing issuance time, by offering a modern paper check-style money order and an improved customer receipt.

The receipt will contain all pertinent information on the money order, including serial number, date and office issue, face amount and payee and payor names and addresses.

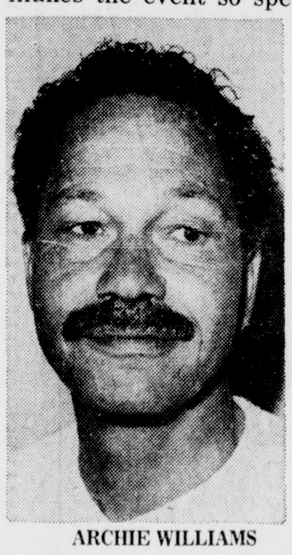
SPORT NOTES

A Special King Of Competition

By RALPH CHATOIAN

It's time again for the Special Olympics in San Rafael. The annual event is called "Special" not for the times and distances which are established. In fact, the times are slow and the distances short. The people involved is what makes the event so special.



ARCHIE WILLIAMS

They have a mental defect, you see. They are retarded. But they try, and they try hard. That's what makes this track-field and swimming competition so special.

The fourth annual Special Olympics will be held Saturday, opening ceremonies at 9 a.m., at San Rafael High School. There will be two Olympic Gold Medal winners at the ceremonies, two persons who really want to help. One is Archie Williams, winner of the 400-meter run at the 1936 Olympics in Berlin, who now teaches at Drake High School. The other is heavyweight boxer George Foren, winner at the Mexico City Olympics in 1968.

Foreman is Special Olympics National co-chairman along with Rafer Johnson, Olympic decathlon champion of 1960. Foreman is hoping to reach a goal of $30,000 in contributing to the national Special Olympics Fund.

There will be 200 retarded persons, mostly youngsters but a few adults who range all the way to age 61, running, jumping and swimming during the day's activities. There'll be 200 persons who haven't given up, who haven't been given up.

The volunteers who have worked so hard to put on this event deserve a good round of applause. The committee is made up of Virginia McKeever, Tom Smith, Carl (Red) Brown, Fred Clawson, Gary Hughes, Lois Goodall, La Dawn Kemp Joanne Karlsrud, Janet Kenworthy, Laura Levers, Linda Holmes and Williams.

Among the aims of the Specal Olympics, as outlined by the committee's guide book, is to "Give the retarded child a sense of pride, by giving him a chance to win an award ... by giving him a chance to know success.'

The volunteer workers, a bunch of good guys and gals, give them that chance.

MARIN COUNTY'S only active crew teams, from Redwood High School, have returned to action in a five-team league that includes four high schools in the East Bay — Berkeley, Salesian of Richmond, St. Joseph's of Alameda and Concordia of Oakland.

With approval of the California Interscholastic Federation (CIF), the board which governs high school sports, Redwood will be competing with the other four schools in both varsity and junior varsity four-oared shells. When not in actual prep season, the same boys are junior members of the Marin Rowing Club, the organization that is supplying the shells for competiton. Four-oared shells for crew cost about $2,000. Add about $65 per oar and you find out that this sport doesn't come cheap.

"We're hoping to get other high schools in Marin County involved in crew," said the Marin Rowing Club's Bob Cumming of Kentfield, adding that there are about 25 boys at Redwood competing on the varsity and junior varsity level.

So when you see those kids rowing up Corte Madera Creek between the Bon Air Bridge and Highway 101 overpass, don't think they're just paddling canoes.

McCovey Injury Tough Blow For Giants

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The crack heard in San Diego Tuesday night was the sound of the San Francisco Giants' pennant hopes crumbling.

The Giants, who won the National League West crown by a single game last year, were dealt a crushing blow when Willie McCovey suffered a broken right forearm in a collision at first base.

McCovey, who hit 18 homers last year despite an ailing knee that required surgery in the offseason, will be out from two to three months and his loss overshadowed the Giants' 5-1 victory over the Padres.

Game On Television

Tonight's Giants-Padres game will be televised by KTVU, Channel 2, beginning at 7:30.

"It's a blow to the club," Manager Charlie Fox said. "We'll just have to move around him and go with what we have. We still have a helluva club."

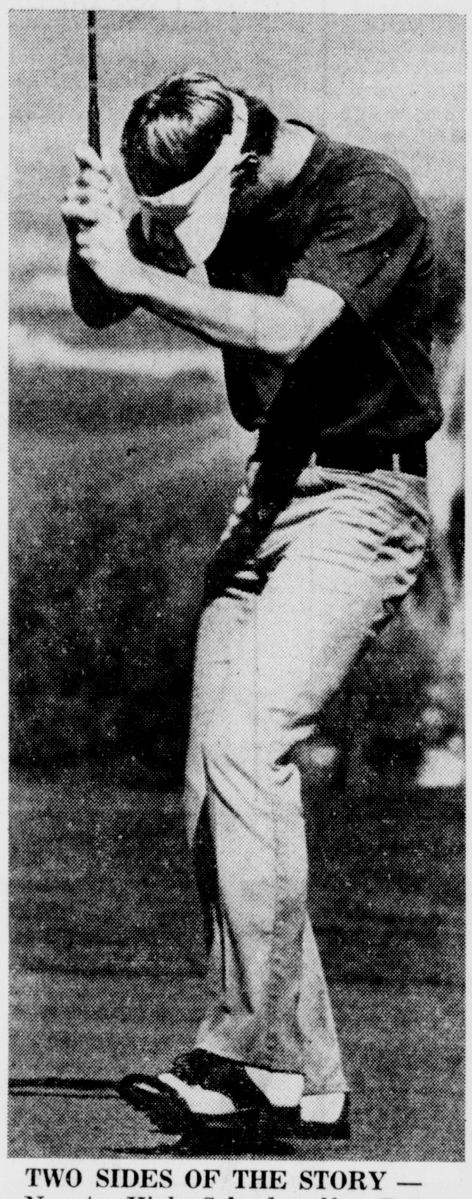
Dr. H. Paul Bower, the Padres' team physician, said McCovey suffered a fractured ulna just below the elbow in the right arm. Dr. Bower put a temporary cast on the arm and McCovey will have the fracture set at Sanford on Wednesday. Dr. Bower predicted McCovey will be out for two to three months.

The injury occurred when the Giants were trying to pull off a double play. John Jeter hit a grounder to shortstop Chris Speier, who threw to second baseman Tito Fuentes to force Derrel Thomas. Fuentes then fired to first in an attempt to nip Jeter but the throw was on the home plate side of first. McCovey dived to retrive the throw and collided with Jeter.

Besides the broken forearm, McCovey was also kicked in the head and had bruises over his right eye. Jeter had the wind knocked out of him and bruised ribs but he is expected to play today.

When Fox was asked if he had any plans to bring up a replacement from the minors, the manager said, "don't rush me, I've got until Wednesday night." But McCovey, who was the league's Most Valuable Player in 1969 and hit 30 or more homers for six straight years until he was hobbled last year, will be sorely missed by the Giants and it'll be a difficult task for them to win without him.

Homers by Bobby Bonds and Fran Healy carried the Giants to the victory but there wasn't any celebrating in the subdued Giant clubhouse.



TWO SIDES OF THE STORY — Novato High School golfer Pat Grogan (left) missed a putt yesterday, while Terra Linda's Greg Cudworth made one. Grogan shot a 37 and Cudworth a 42 as Terra Linda won the critical match at Indian Valley Golf Club, 203-206.

Redwood Stretches Prep Baseball Lead

By LEW CODDINGTON

If you're interested in baseball, then you might be interested in a new type of game the Marin County Athletic League is playing this year. It's called "Catch Redwood." Up to seven can play. It's possible that all seven could lose.

Redwood High School, attacking Novato pitcher Mike Lamb in a rare moment of weakness, scored its only three runs on its only three hits in the fourth inning yesterday to defeat the Hornets, 3-2.

The victory at Novato gave Redwood a 4-0 MCAL record and a lead of a game and one-half over its nearest challengers, Novato and Drake. Both are 3-2, and both have lost to the streaking Giants.

Redwood pitcher Gene Frey hurled an admirable game, scattering five hits and striking out seven. He gave up just one earned run (the first surrendered by the Giants this year), and even that run wasn't scored authoritatively.

Still, Novato led going into the fourth, 1-0. Lamb, pitching on just two days rest after beating Marin Catholic Saturday night, opened the inning with a strikeout, one of 13 he was to post.

Redwood's Dave Payne then broke up Lamb's no-hitter with a clean single. Mike Connor walked, but Lamb followed with another strikeout. Then Daryl Edralin lined a sharp double over first base, scoring Payne and putting runners on second and third.

Jamie Williams followed with a broken-bat single to center. Connor scored and Edralin rounded third as center fielder Stan Conte's throw came in to catcher Dennis Stanley.

Stanley took the throw behind home plate and a few feet down the third base line, and his lunging tag missed Edralin, who was called safe. Novato coach Tom Barrie bolted from the dugout to protest, brandishing (not menacingly) his omnipresent fungo bat.

"I say the umpire was in bad position to make the call," said Barrie. (The ump was behind Stanley.) "It's not my place to question the call itself."

Novato came back with a run in the fifth as Bob Lawrence singled, advanced on Bill Busher's single and scored as Redwood failed to convert a double play when the second-baseman's throw was errant.

The Hornets threatened in the sixth, when Tom Conklin reached third base with two out. Frey went to a 3-0 count on pinch-batter Greg Lash, but reached back for something extra, threw two strikes, then induced Lash to fly to center. Novato also put runners on first and second with two down in the seventh, but a fielder's choice ended the uprising.

Novato scored in the first after Stanley singled, moved to second on a fielder's choice and third on Jeff Pond's single. Both hits barely eluded the infielders. After an intentional walk to Conte, Lamb hit an infield topper back to Frey, but Stanley had too good a jump and scored. Frey, after first looking to home, threw high to first and Lamb was safe, but he then bore down and retired the next 10 men.

Lakers Trample Bucks, 115-90

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Feet were the big items in the National Basketball Association Tuesday.

One was in the mouth of Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello, who predicted Sunday that his club would win the NBA Western finals in six games and then watched Los Angeles take a 3-2 lead in games with a 115-90 rout of the Bucks.

And the other belonged to Boston guard Jo Jo White, who twisted an ankle during a workout Tuesday and may be hampered tonight when the Celtics try to get back into the Eastern playoffs against the New York Knicks.

Costello boldly predicted that his club, the defending NBA champions, would win in six games after routing Los Angeles on Sunday. But the Lakers came out inspired Tuesday night and blew open the game in the third period. Gail Goodrich scored 13 of his 22 points in the quarter as the Lakers outscored the Bucks 35-23.

Jim McMillian led the Laker attack with 25 points and made it clear that Costello's comments fired up Los Angeles. "We read in the papers where Costello said they would win it in six," said McMillian, who let the final score speak for the Lakers' reaction.

"We did a tremendous job on the boards and it opened up everything else to us," said Laker Coach Bill Sharman. "If we can beat the Bucks on the boards Saturday, then we can win in six games."

Wilt Chamberlain, overwhelmed by Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in the 26-point loss to the Bucks Sunday, was a different man Tuesday night. He held him to 13-of 33 from the floor (28 points) and outrebounded him 26-16.

"It was the best job Wilt's done on Jabbar all year," said Sharman. "He forced him out, kind of like (Nate) Thurmond plays him."

White, who runs the offense and is one of Boston's top outside shooters, is one of the keys if the Celtics are to bounce back from their 2-0 deficit in their best-of-seven series.

Trojan Golfers Triumph

Just when it looked like the 1972 season might be a grim one, Terra Linda High School's golf team pulled itself together yesterday and vaulted back into the race with a crucial 203-206 victory over favored Novato — and on Novato's course, no less.

The victory at Indian Valley golf course put Terra Linda in a second-place tie with Novato and San Rafael at 2-1, barely behind Redwood at 2-0. San Rafael trounced San Marin yesterday, 197-244, at Peacock Gap.

Terra Linda's Rich Purdle fired a one-over-par 37 to share medalist honors with Pat Grogan of Novato. Four other Trojans kept their scores to 42 or less, while two Hornets soared as high as 45.

Terra Linda is defending champion, but was upset last week by Redwood, and needed the victory to remain in contention:

The results:

Terra Linda Gymnists Win 3-Way Meet

Chris van Oeveren was first in floor exercise and in all-around, and Steve Flook won the high bar event to top Terra Linda High School individual performances in a triangular gymnastics meet victory yesterday in Terra Linda.

The Trojan squad defeated Monte Vista High School of Danville, and Oakland High with a score of 73.33 points. Monte Vista was second with 67.51 and Oakland third with 64.50.

In a dual meet last Friday, the Trojans were defeated by defending Northern California champion Encina High School of Sacramento, 116.07-75.32.

Marin Tar Baseballers Lose, 5-1

"We didn't even threaten the guy," College of Marin baseball coach Vic Petreshene sighed yesterday after his Tars dropped a 5-1 Camino Norte Conference baseball game to star hurler Cliff Holland and his Canada College teammates.

Holland, a member of the United States Pan American Games team, struck out 13 Marin players, and yieled only four hits.

Marin got its run in the eighth when Mike Dito plated Frank Pomilia with a solid base hit.

According to Petreshene, Holland was drafted and offered a "substantial bonus" by the Boston Red Sox, but turned it down to finish the year with his college squad.

McLain Is Back

OAKLAND (UPI) — You could say, guardedly, that Denny McLain is back.

You could say that only after watching the former 31-game winner pitch the Oakland A's, his new club, to a 3-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals Tuesday night.

McLain, who never has been a good spring pitcher, was a pretty good "winter" pitcher in the cold and windy Oakland coliseum as he went into the eighth inning without walking a man and then finally came out when the first two batters reached him for singles.

Manager Dick Williams said he had figured on McLain working five or six innings, or throwing 100 pitches at the most.

McLain threw 88 at the point Williams came out to get him in the eighth and it all turned out right for the A's and McLain as Darold Knowles and Rollie Fingers finished up without incident.

McLain pitched poorly in the three exhibition starts and there were reports about that he had a sore arm. He hadn't pitched in a game since four days before the players strike so no one really expected much of him.

"He was fabulous, that's all," said Williams. "Now you can go and write about his sore arm. "Really, though, he pitched better than I expected but I had to be shown."

McLain didn't walk a man in the seven plus innings he worked and he struck out two. The two runs he gave up were unearned, coming as a result of an error by the usually reliable Sal Bando. Naturally, he didn't want to come out but he said it's different "with this club."

"They've done a helluva job putting their pitching staff together," McLain said, still talking like he didn't belong. "This team is deeper than the 1968 Tigers." That was the year Denny won 31 games and the Tigers won the American League pennant and the World Series.

McLain's performance Tuesday was sparkling to say the least. He moved the ball well and his fastball was an effective pitch. In all he gave up eight hits.

"I've never been overpowering," he said. "My big thing is control. That's why I'm pleased with this performance. I got the ball in and out and up and down the way I like. It's usually into May before I have this kind of control."

McLain put to rest reports of a sore arm.

"I have a problem with my shoulder," he said, "but I've had that since 1965 and I guess you could say I've done some pitching in the years since."

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) —The mailman brought another entry today for the indianapolis "500" from builder-owner Rolla Vollstedt, Portland, Ore., bringing the field for this year's race to 81, four more than last year.

Vollstedt thus entered the first car for the million-dollar chase May 27 and the last.

His first entry, for Denny Zimmerman, the 1971 Speedway "rookie of the year," was the first received for this year's holiday weekend classic. His latest entry named no driver and listed no specifications for the car.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Some Advice On Safety

Many cities situated on the ocean or a large lake have some kind of boat safety program as part of their recreation department's activities. It's a great idea for instilling safety practices into young minds. More cities should do it.

One of the best programs is that operated in Miami, Fla., where kids from 9 to 14 get practical instruction with boats on the water.

If children can't swim they can enroll in the city's learn-to-swim program at municipal pools and enroll later in the boating safety course. Graduates of the course get a certificate and an emblem. The objective is to give children at an early age a proper appreciation of the handling of small craft and the proper attitudes necessary for good seamanship and safety.

Anyone interested might write to the Director, City of Miami Parks and Recreation Department, Miami, Fla., 33132.

There are many ways to achieve boating safety, as some of the questions we've been asked indicates.

Q. If you had to pick the "most dangerous type" of boatman, wouldn't it be the crazy young water cowboys in sailboats and outboards?

A. Far from it. The boatman most frequently involved in the boating fatalities across the nation is the angler —the mature, capable, well-to-do man, out for a quiet day's fishing. Major factors are inexperience in handling boats, overloading, standing up, excitement, panic, and ignorance of weather and waters. Speed and recklessness are seldom factors in these fatalities.

Q. Some small boats, particularly aluminum sailboats, are so slippery on the inside when wet, that they are dangerous. Is there a cure?

A. Non-skid material in strip form with adhesive backing is available. This may be stuck on. Non-skid paint can be bought, or made by sprinkling clean dry sand on paint before it's dry. Even rubber mats may be stuck to slippery surfaces.

Q. Are children of any age allowed to drive boats?

A. In most states —yes. But remember their parents are responsible for their actions. Some states are enacting legislation to change this. For instance, New York State requires children from 10 to 14 to take a boating course before they can drive a boat alone. Others are following suit.

Q. I notice that a lot of the clamor for licensing of pleasure boatmen, once a very popular editorial topic, has diminished. Why?

A. I like to think that it's because the number of boating accidents is staying relatively stable, while the number of boats is increasing astronomically every year. However, the Coast Guard has now come out in favor of licensing. So it appears that we are going to get licensing, long after the public clamor for it has died.

Q. I saw water skiers wearing short rubber divers' suits. Where can I get one?

A. They are sold by scuba or skin diving shops. The diver's "wet suit," or the abbreviated version called an exposure suit by water skiers, is great for sailing. Some of the northern yacht clubs are considering making such suits compulsory for younger sailors competing in late or early season "frostbite" regattas.

Rancho Cotate Golfers Triumph

Rancho Cotate High School beat Healdsburg in golf yesterday, 406-409; at the Rohnert Park golf course to stay undefeated in Sonoma County League play.

The Cougars, who meet league power Cardinal Newman in Santa Rosa tomorrow, are currently tied with the Cardinals for the SCL lead with a 3-0 record.

Steve Wlodarczyk was medalist for the match, carding an 18-hole total of 74.

Rancho '9' Defeats Healdsburg

Lou Goring drove in three runs yesterday to lead Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park to a 3-2 Sonoma County League Baseball victory over visiting Healdsburg, a win which gave the Cougars a two-game first place lead.

In other southern Sonoma County diamond action, Petaluma beat North Bay League host Vallejo, 3-2, and North Central League II rivals St. Vincent and Kelseyville cancelled their game because both teams stayed home.

Goring, a returning all-league catcher, started his batting heroics in the first inning with a double.

Two innings later, he belted a triple to deep left center to score Marshall Brant.

The Petaluma-Vallejo game was a pitchers' battle with the Trojans' Sam Solis out-dueling Kelly McWilliams. Solis, who has a glittering 1.00 earned run average in league, allowed only three singles.

Kevin Gillmore, who went two for three at the plate, drove in the winning run for Petaluma with a triple down the left field line in the fifth inning.

St. Vincent was scheduled to play in Petaluma's McNear Park, but Kelseyville thought it was to host the game and stayed in Kelseyville.

Sonoma State Tops USF Baseballers

Sonoma State College scored five unearned runs in the eighth inning yesterday to beat University of San Francisco, 8-5, in a non-league baseball game played at Doyle Park in Santa Rosa.

With two outs in the eighth, Tom Hughes singled, Jim Boesiger walked and Ron Petroni reached first safely on an error to load the bases. Then, Rick Jones walked to bring in one run, Gordon McLachlan drove in two more with a single and Mark Newsom cleared the bases with a triple that scored the final two runs.

Newsom, who went two for four at bat, pitched a nine-inning five-hitter at the Dons who had beaten Sonoma State twice earlier this year.

Petroni hit a triple and double, and Jones got two singles to lead the Cossacks' batting attack.

Rangers Thrash Black Hawks, 5-3

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Chicago Black Hawks are shaking their heads in disbelief.

The Black Hawks ran off with West Division honors this season and thrashed Pittsburgh in four games in the National Hockey League Stanley Cup quarterfinals. But suddenly the Hawks have gone flat.

The New York Rangers erupted for four goals in the final period Tuesday night to beat Chicago 5-3 and take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven semifinal series. Rod Gilbert collected two of the goals, including the tie-breaker at 12-36.

In the other semifinal game Tuesday night, the Boston Bruins crushed the St. Louis Blues 6-1.

The Black Hawks took the lead three times only to have New York tie the game each time. Dennis Hull, Stan Mikita and Pat Stapleton had goals for the Hawks but Vic Hadfield, Gilbert and Brad Park managed to match them.

Chicago took a 2-1 lead into the final period but Gilbert hit on a power play after only 54 seconds to tie the game. Stapleton's power play goal gave the Hawks the lead at 6:17 but Park then tied it less than two minutes later. Gilbert blazed a slap shot past goalie Tony Esposito at the 12:36 mark for the winning goal and Pete Stemkowski had an empty net score with 10 seconds left in the game.

Versatility Shows In 'Cats Win

Demonstrating the versatility that made them the pre-season Marin County Athletic League favorites, the Marin Catholic High School Wildcats scored with frequency and imagination to defeat host Tamalpais yesterday, 9-3.

The victory moved the 'Cats into the logjam in the middle of the standings at 2-3, while Tam dropped to 0-4.

Marin Catholic scored by such diverse ploys as a double steal, a squeeze play, and two sacrifice flies. The Wildcats got timely hitting from Pete Arbios, who went three for four, and Rich Lopez, the only nonsenior on the team, who drove in two runs.

Pitcher Vince Bormolini went the distance, scattering seven hits, and ripped two hits himself, knocking in two runs.

Tam's Clifford Hall continued his torrid recent hitting with a double and home run. He went three for four, scored twice, drove in a run and stole a base.

LEADERS BREEZE

Swimming Victory For San Rafael

San Rafael High School, with double winner Gary Walraven leading the way, clinched a hold on third place yesterday in the Marin County Athletic League swim race, with a 56-39 victory over Novato at the losers' pool.

In the other MCAL meets yesterday, championship contenders Redwood and Terra Linda each breezed by lesser rivals, Redwood with a 70-25 rout of San Marin, and Terra Linda with a 78-17 demolition of winless Tamalpais.

Walraven took firsts in the 200-yard freestyle and 100 butterfly, offsetting a double win by Novato's Roger Rechsteiner and a diving triumph by John Summerfield.

A top time in that meet was San Rafael's Mike Kamler's 23.3 in the 50 free.

The Giants took every individual event, dropping only the 400 free relay, where they were disqualified. There was no Redwood-San Marin Class B meet, since San Marin elevated its "B" swimmers to the varsity.

Rick DeMont bolstered two relay victories for the Trojans, and Rick Lund won the 200 and 400 free races to stand as the only individual double winner.

Dick Attwood of Tam took the Indians' only first, in the 100 back.

7th Inning 6-5 Victory For Drake

Doug Harnsberger singled to score Bob Mayer with two men out in the seventh inning yesterday to give Drake High School a 6-5 victory over San Rafael in a Marin County Athletic League baseball game at Drake.

Drake struck first, scoring in the opening inning as John Billings raced home from third when San Rafael's pitcher fumbled a routina throw back from the catcher. The tally ended a streak of 14 consecutive scoreless innings.

San Rafael charged ahead with five runs in the second, one scoring on a Rick Klarkowski single, two more on an error, and the final two on Dirk Gansloser's single.

Drake tied the game with four in the fourth.

Terra Linda Drubs San Marin, 8-2

Mark Mueller pitched a complete game and got supporting home runs from Rick Trono and John Loberg as Terra Linda High School swamped San Marin yesterday, 8-2, in a Marin County Athletic League baseball game at Albert Park.

The loss dropped San Marin into a fourth-place tie in the MCAL at 2-2, while Terra Linda pulled into a tie for sixth at 2-3.

Trono hit a two-run homer in the fifth inning and Loberg a solo shot in the sixth to fatten an early Terra Linda lead.

The Trojans scored in the first inning as Huey Williams walked, stole second and came home on Mike Allen's double. In the third, Williams walked and scored on two errors.

Terra Linda got two more runs in the fourth without a hit, benefitting from another San Marin error. The Trojans stole two bases that inning and six in the game, giving them 15 in the last two days.

The Children Mirror War

By GORDON N. CONVERSE
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Refugees are constantly on the move in Cambodia. As North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops penetrate deeper into the countryside, families now often flee as far south as Phnom Penh.

But the relatively secure capital has very few camps for refugees. Some live in tents, others in quickly erected bamboo and thatched huts. But most live with relatives and friends in already extremely overcrowded quarters.

Yet, with all the daily hardships, they, like most Asians, have a very special place in their hearts for their children — symbols of future hopes during troubled times.

Talley Industries Earnings Move Up

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My shares of Talley Industries (NYSE) bought two years ago at just below $20 have traded well below that level since. Do you forsee a turnaround? — G.A.

A. Talley's earnings moved up 30 per cent in the first nine months of fiscal 1971-72. Full year, ended March 31, should see earnings of $1.10 a share. Sales to the government dropped to only 15 per cent of the total in that period. In the previous year the mixture was nearer 75 per cent commercial/consumer and 25 per cent government. The larger proportion of higher margined commercial business plus a cost-cutting program were primarily responsible for the earnings recovery.

A pioneer in the technology of solid propellants and ballistic devices, Talley acquired with the General Time merger in 1970 the world's largest clockmaker. This division has recently introduced a precision quartz crystal clock line ranging in price from $50 to $5,000. Other company products include knitted sports apparel, small motors, toys and sports equipment. Talley has developed an explosive slurry used in oil and gas recovery as well as a propellant for airbag safety devices. Shares have excellent turnaround potential and should be held.

Q. I am at sea over the advisability of U.S. Treasury bonds acceptable on estate taxes. The interest is low even though some trade below par. I would appreciate your comments. — W.W.

A. If your estate after marital deductions exceeds the $60,000 exemption, these Treasuries are advisable. These bonds are acceptable at par in payment of estate taxed, even if bought in anticipation of death. However, you must actually own them at the time of death. Although these issues are accepted at par value to meet tax liability, they are also valued at par in figuring gross worth of your estate. A deep discount issue such as 4¼s of August, 1987-92, trades 22 per cent below par value and yields 5.4 percent currently. This bond will provide not only a fair return but also a potentially worhwhile capital gain.

Prices Down In Active Trading

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices closed lower in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange today.

Of the more than 1,767 issues crossing the tape, declines broadly outdistanced advances 938 to 492.

Analysts said the setback was caused primarily by North Vietnam's attack on U.S. warship in the Gulf of Tonkin.

Buyers moved in on Curtiss Wright after an announcement that Chrysler Corp. has been discussing possible license to make Wankel rotary engines. Curtiss Wright has the exclusive North American rights to the innovative engine. The firm's stock was ahead 1 3-4 with less than an hour left in the session.

Federal National Mortgage, another of the active issues, was ahead fractionally.

Japanese Import Hike Predicted

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — While U.S. consumers may be paying a little more for Toyota cars, Sony TV sets, and Seiko watches these days, it probably won't deter them from buying a record amount of Japanese goods.

Last December's 17 per cent revaluation of the yen notwithstanding, Japanese economist Chaiki Nishiyama predicts that U.S. imports from Japan will climb again this year.

It's too early to tell definitely what the trend will be later this year, the internationally known economist says. But figures for the first two months of 1972 suggest that Japanese exports will continue to rise, if somewhat less briskly than in the past.

EXPORT INCREASE

Official forecasts call for an 8.5 per cent increase in exports this fiscal year (just ending) — only about half of 1971's 18 per cent climb.

In the short run, Nishiyama said in an interview here, "it's difficult for importers to find alternative goods to those they are used to buying."

As February's sharp rise in the U.S. trade deficit shows, devaluation of the dollar hasn't done much to reduce the flow of imports. This is because the early effect of devaluation is to raise the cost of already ordered foreign goods. It takes more dollars to pay for them. Only in the longer run, experience of devaluation nations shows, does the physical volume of imports decline and the volume of experts increases.

NOTED FOR CANDOR

Nishiyama, a Tokyo professor, is visiting the United States under the aegis of the Japanese External Trade Organization, a government agency. In talks with U.S. executives and Washington officials, Nishiyama is explaining some of Japan's post-revaluation economic policies and problems. Though not an official government spokesman, Nishiyama has participated in many forums on U.S.-Japan economic relations and is noted for his candor.

Japan won't begin to feel the "real impact" of the yen appreciation until the late summer, says the University of Chicago-educated economist. But by that time, he fears, the U.S. business recovery may build up enough inflationary steam to provide a fillip to lower cost imports.

YEN'S VALUE UP

In theory, upward adjustment of the yen pushed the landed cost of Japanese products up by 17 per cent in the United States. That's because the yen's value was marked up from 360 to the U.S. dollar to about 330. It was done to trim Japan's huge trade surplus with the United States and Europe, slow the outflow of U.S. dollars, and put trade between the United States and Japan on a more equitable footing.

In practice, however, it won't happen quite that way, the Tokyo professor says. With the Japanese economy in "severe recession," many exporters are "absorbing some or all of the revaluation burden."

In other words, to stimulate overseas sales and bolster lagging output, exporters are not raising export prices as they otherwise might. They would rather lower profit margins than sell less and lay off workers — a practice that is frowned upon under Japan's paternalistic employment system.

In addition, the typical Japanese firm is heavily in debt to its bankers. During good times, loan repayment problems are few.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

32 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 19, 1972 EDITORIAL PAGE

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

There's Better Way Than Begging 'Uncle'

Increasingly, it seems, we hear pleas for federal, state and local governments to underwrite cultural activities. It is government's duty, some would have us believe, to subsidize the arts.

This is an extension of the increasing dependence on government that prevails in our society. For instance, no longer is it sufficient for the public schools to provide the basic education necessary for those reaching adulthood to make their way in society; they must take over child supervision and training, which seemingly no longer can be done in the home, at earlier and earlier ages.

We hear insistent pleas for government to underwrite more of our recreation, more of our health needs, more of our scientific research. Despite abundant evidence to the contrary, the belief persists that somehow government can do these things better and more economically than we can do them through private efforts.

ONE MARIN organization that has never sought more than token support from government is the Marin Music Chest, which since 1934 has been bringing us summer seasons of fine concert artists.

The Music Chest believes that Marinites who appreciate good music and dancing will themselves make it possible to bring such entertainment here. Annually, the Music Chest's thesis is proved right.

This year's Music Chest season will mark a departure from past summers. The concerts, starting with the appearance of Korean violinist Yong Uck Kim on June 18 and ending with that of Canadian vocalist Maureen Forrester on Aug. 20, will be presented in the new Veterans Memorial Auditorium.

The Music Chest has long hoped for an adequate auditorium for its presentations, and finally has it. Many will miss the atmosphere of the outdoor programs in Forest Meadows; but the superior acoustics and comfort of the auditorium will much more than compensate for this loss. We predict the new location will spur season ticket sales, which now are under way.

ANOTHER INSTANCE of refusing to depend on government subsidies, in a different field, will be brought home later this month when local chapters of the American Cancer Society in Marin and Sonoma begin their annual campaigns for funds.

Although the government underwrites some cancer research through the National Institutes of Health, the cancer society has never waited for a handout from "Uncle". It has pressed cancer research for many years, and has scored victories against this insidious killer — although its war is far from won.

There are many other examples of where doing it for ourselves has been more rewarding, at less cost, than leaving it to government. In fact, were we to wait on government to solve our problems, or to improve our lives, we might have an exceedingly long wait.

Embarrassment Of Riches For 'Hard-Pressed' State

By RUS WALTON

If you are in the same fix as most Californians, you're probably having trouble making ends meet.

Well, cheer up! Your good old state government is currently suffering from an embarrassment of riches. It has money it shouldn't have and it really doesn't know what to do: spend, or hoard, or punt!

Back in mid-December, 1971, in this column I questioned the necessity of the Reagan administration's so-called mini-tax bill. I reported there were those in high places who argued that the new tax was not necessary. The cash-flow crisis could have been solved by simply activating withholding — through administrative regulation, if not legislation.

That column was criticized but never refuted; time is proving it accurate.

STATE FINANCE Director Verne Orr recently announced that he might have been conservative in estimating state tax revenues for the coming year. Privately, he has acknowledged he was — indeed — conservative.

Experts in both the administration and the legislature are now arguing over the eventual size of the developing surplus and what to do with it: a surplus, that is, over and above the $7.7 billion budget for 1972-73, and $900 million larger than the $6.8 billion budget for 1971-72.

Almost all parties agree there will be a sizeable increase in state revenues this year. They believe the $47 million surplus Orr predicted for June 30, 1972 — and the $157 million surplus he saw for fiscal year 1973 — are off target.

Assemblyman Willie Brown, D-San Francisco, chairman of Ways and Means, saw it all coming. And Willie wants to spend it. His version of the 1972-73 budget would require the state controller (not the finance calculators!) to determine the surplus and to add those funds to money allocated for the public schools.

LATE IN DECEMBER, 1971, the state finance whiz kids were crying the blues, sobbing about an anticipated $330 million deficit and forecasting a gloomy economic future. Out of that came the tear-stained $501 million mini-tax.

Then in March the Governor's Economic Report, prepared by the same department of finance, painted a rosy hue for '72.

Personal income up 8 per cent, corporate profits up 10.6 per cent, personal taxes up 11.5 per cent and disposable income up 7.5 per cent (which means more sales tax revenue).

All of that, plus an expected increase in employment, means increased revenues for state government. The report indicated state tax collections would rise from the $5.59 billion of 1971 to $6.50 billion for 1972 and go on up to $7.04 billion for 1973. I'm just a country boy but that adds up to a $1.45 billion increase in state taxes in just three years.

Controller Houston Flournoy recently reported that the state's general cash fund cash receipts for the first eight months of this fiscal year were 14.41 per cent ahead of the same period a year ago.

Expenditures for this fiscal year over last year are up about 4.5 per cent, which means that so far the state has had a 10 per cent net revenue gain over 1970-71.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Influence Suspected In Board Appointment

Why did not any consideration be given to any of the many parents representing those of us north of the hill, at the time the city council appointed a new member to the board of education? Surely the councilmen knew Terra Linda High is the largest high school and Santa Venetia soon will be the largest middle school with the incoming students from Glenwood and San Pedro schools. Does not this warrant a replacement for Paul Jones from the same community he represented?

Could it be this appointment was strictly a political appointment? Could it be ITT has taught PT&T, well how to make such political appointments and thereby bring big business into dominating our school policies?

Correct me if I am wrong, but was not the new school board member recently appointed, the campaign manager for one of the newer city councilmen at the last election? Is not our new board member an employee of the PT&T as is one of the veteran councilmen and thereby because of company politics he was able to sway the three votes necessary to gain the appointment?

Perhaps the students should make the appointments to the board of education, I am sure they would be honest in stating the measuring stick they used. An overdose of honesty is long needed in our city government as well as in school administration.

Accolade To Losing Council Incumbent

By the slim margin of only six votes, Mill Valley residents yesterday failed to reelect a man who has dedicated nine years of his life to community service. Jerry Hauke gave unceasingly of his time and talents and Mill Valley is the richer for it today.

We were with him in 1968 when he swept into office as the youngest-ever elected chairman and we were with him last night. Jerry voiced no regrets or excuses, maligned no other candidate and indulged in no self-pity. He accepted defeat as graciously as he had welcomed victory four years ago.

Let's hope Jerry's successor on the council has what it takes to fill his shoes.

'Bagley Busing Bill' Bogey Alarming

How did the Bagley Busing Bill get passed without anybody knowing anything about it? To bus 20,000 students between Marin and San Francisco will cost almost $10,000 daily! How much smog will it produce? How much additional congestion during commute hours? How many more hazards? And how many wasted man hours per day?

Do the voters, taxpayers and parents wish to pay for the privilege of having their children bused daily across the Golden Gate Bridge, in the commute traffic, to the inner city and vice versa?

If we ignore it, it will not go away. It has happened in Detroit. It has happened in San Diego, and it can happen here. "The price of liberty is eternal vigilance!"

MARGARET W. MITCHELL
Santa Venetia

(The so-called "Bagley Busing Bill" was not passed without anyone knowing about it; on the contrary, it was the subject of much debate before passage which was reported in this and other newspapers. Further, the bill has nothing to do with busing children "daily across the Golden Gate Bridge." It requires racial balance in schools WITHIN a school district, and has no effect whatever for or against busing children from one district to another. — Editor)

Kudos For Writer; None For Road Builder

I would like to complement Jeff Greer for his excellent article on "Inverness looks Ahead to Its Future." I would like to make the following remarks with respect to Mr. Adams' comments: Mr. Adams refers to the fact that he has only heard of two accidents on his "adequately designed" roads, and that I was involved in one of the two accidents. Mr. Adams must be hard of hearing, for besides myself, the following persons represent a few of those who have been involved in accidents: Van der Ryn, Arturi, Telford, Burroughs, Torbert, Foote, etc. These are just a few of the names of those involved in accidents, and a survey of those persons located at crucial steep and blind curves will reveal many more such accidents. In addition, one of the worst slides in the history of Inverness took place on Drakes View Drive two years ago, due to inadequate drainage and poor water tank placement. As far as visual esthetics goes, the gash on Dover Road can be seen clearly across the canyon by the homeowners at the top of Balboa. If Mr. Adams' roads are adequately designed, then why is it that the cost of bringing them up to safe, minimum standards, may range from $50,000 on up (county estimates)?

As far as water goes, county records will verify that in the past years there have been several water shortages, and that twice last year our water supply was condemned by the Department of Environmental Health.

There is a crucial difference between haphazard development and careful planning.

Runoffs Advocated In City Elections

If the philosophy of run-off elections is to insure that the winning candidate gets a majority of the votes cast in an election campaign, why isn't that philosophy applied to city council races? If the winning candidates in a multi-candidate race for city council gather together only 35 per cent of the votes cast as in San Anselmo recently, or 41 per cent as in Fairfax, or 44 per cent as in Corte Madera, or 45 per cent as in Novato, do they really represent the voters? The majority of the votes were given to the losers.

I can not comprehend electing a county supervisor without having a run-off election if no candidate gained a majority of the votes cast. The city councils are even closer to the people and, for that reason if for no other, they should conduct their elections the same way. Why not a run-off among the top candidates involving twice as many participants as positions available? In other words, four candidates if two seats are up for election, six if three are up for election, etc.

I understand that to do this it is necessary to change state laws as every city in the county except San Rafael does not control its election rules. I direct this, then, to Sen. Peter Behr and Assemblyman William Bagley, the councilmen of San Rafael and the citizens of Marin County.

This change seems absolutely necessary in any attempt to make sure the voters have the right to decide who governs them.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

'I'm Being Persecuted' Wails Disproved By Records Of Trials

WASHINGTON — For many months people with loud voices, here and abroad, have been screaming that black revolutionaries and antiwar militants couldn't possibly get a fair trial anywhere in the United States.

It isn't true. It wasn't true. Now it is proved unture.

The evidence is conclusive. Half a dozen such trials have been completed and in every instance the accused were either given light sentences or exonerated.

It is understandable that American Communists and others who want to tear everything down should try to discredit the courts. The others should know better. But it is hard to explain why the president of Yale University, Kingman Brewster Jr., assumed that the judiciary is guilty until proved innocent. Perhaps he was only momentarily courting favor with violent disrupters on the Yale campus when he asserted that the Black Panthers would undoubtedly be unfairly dealt with in the courts.

They weren't unfairly dealt with. Their rights were respected and protected. But even now when this unfair charge of judicial unfairness has been disproved, one searches in vain for any good-faith retraction, any apology of any kind from Dr. Brewster.

THE EXPERIENCE of the Black Panthers, the Chicago Seven, the Soledad Brothers, Huey Newton, Bobby Seale and Dr. Benjamin Spock and Rev. Philip Berrigan all show that the American system of trial by jury dispenses justice. It is justice visibly rooted to the premise that guilt must be proved beyond all reasonable doubt or the accused must go free.

Nearly all have gone free — set free by a judicial process which the president of Yale for some reason said was so tainted by a climate of emotionalism and repression that it couldn't be trusted.

Not so. It hasn't worked out that way at all. Possibly those who kept proclaiming that the U.S. courts could do no right failed to understand the strength of the American judicial system or misread the climate of the nation.

Unfortunately, this attempted deriding and denigrating of the courts is providing a tempting facade behind which those indicted for serious crimes cry "political persecution" and thus try to influence the judicial process by public exhortation.

THIS IS WHAT Angela Davis and the Free Angela Davis Committee in the U.S. and Communist groups abroad are seeking to do.

Miss Davis is accused of providing the weapons which were used when Judge Harold Haley was killed during a gun battle with police following an attempted escape by three convicts from a California courthouse.

Miss Davis is now being tried by a jury after being indicted by a jury whose verdict was that there was sufficient evidence of guilt to proceed. She is on trial for a pretty heinous crime. Wouldn't it be well to let the facts come out before claiming "persecution"?

AND NOW A MEMBER of Congress, Rep. Cornelius E. Gallagher, D-N.J., is resorting to the "persecution" ploy after being indicted on charges of perjury, conspiracy and tax evasion.

The indictment couldn't possibly be true, he argued, because he was just "a target of our secret police society."

This whole "I'm being persecuted" syndrome can't stand up against the record of the courts which have been consistently dispensing careful and fair-minded justice.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

All Is Not Sweet And Light Among The Dropout Society

WASHINGTON — President Nixon and I are glad to report that the youth cult, or at least its frightening influence on the rest of us, is fading. The only weeping heard here comes from mod shops overstocked with wide ties and fuchsia bell-bottoms. But youth itself is still out there somewhere, marching in lock step toward the hallowed goal of doing its own thing.

Those of us with direct pipelines to youth keep up with it through debates about passing and flunking and hitchhiking to Florida. Since the President's daughters are grown up and married now, he probably has to stay in touch by reading excerpts from the Quicksilver Times in his daily press summary.

Some of what he finds out in his notes from the underground press would be tolerable, even amusing, to anyone but a prude. And, of course, he is no prude. Some of it is not amusing at all, and only tends to confirm his recent judgement that heroin is the nation's No. 1 domestic problem — worse even that the economy, racial antagonism and the pollution of everything. Start with the tolerable part, gleaned from the classified ads:

"TO THE GIRL who had rings on every finger, long brown hair and fingernails painted green. You were wearing a red body-shirt and a fur coat at the Humble Pie concert on 3/26/72. You were with a guy and another couple. Had no time to talk. PLEASE tell me in an ad where I can contact you. Remeber me? — The cat with blond hair ic the green sweater."

There follow any number of ads seeking rides to places like Seattle and Orlando, appeals for pen-pals from prisoners at Jessups Penitentiary, notices of gay receptions and seminars, ads for abortion services and, healthiest note of all in this hairy spring, an ad for a pyrinate liquid solution which says: "Lice? No stain — no smell. One shampoo kills lice and nits. At drugstores without prescription."

All of which indicates hearteningly that commerce continues on various levels, sand; of course, every little transaction helps the GNP. Another item of concern is the notice that "the Committee for the Advancement of Scientific Kowledge and the Investigation of Unexplainable Phenomena needs unexplainable phenomena to investigate. So if anything has happened lately that strikes you as being weird or extraordinary, e.g., ghosts, local legends, psychic phenomena, flying saucers, etc., drop us a line . . ."

MR. NIXON could conclude from this that his antidrug campaign is succeeding, at least against the hallucinogens. But along about here is where we make the switch from congenial interpersonal commerce to matters that strain the sense of humor.

"Beware of two pigs (at a hangout in Georgetown)," a public service ad begins. "Description: male, black, shaved head, usually wears dark glasses . . . second pig, black male, stocky build, usually wears a blue work cap. Warning: Pigs are armed and should be considered dangerous . . ."

Legitimate exercise of the free press, yes. Still a reminder that while the more visible and laughable aspects of the youth cult have receded from the rest of society, its most tragic aspect is persistent, remains "our own thing," the vehicle of a fun game of cowboys and Indians.

On the same day this Quicksilver Times was available to the President's readers, they also might have noted in the Baltimore papers an account of how a narcotics agent in disguise had enrolled as a student at a suburban high school and fingered two persons for using and selling marijuana — one of them a nonstudent. There was a controversy, with predictable complaints about use of undercover police in a school. But the county school board voted unanimously to continue the practice whenever it seems needed.

IT IS A TICKLISH area, this matter of undercover police. Mr. Nixon, on his past record, would have no compunction at all in commending the agent, perhaps promoting him and inviting the school board en masse to ceremonies at the White House. I and a lot of other Americans would be more hesitant about it.

If it is acceptable to detect drugs in schools, how far beyond that does the line of acceptability run? And yet, on balance, when you consider it against what drugs can do to children — and when you draw the line here, not one step further — such police work has to be acceptable.

Let the cat in the green sweater yearn for the girl in the red body-shirt — I hope he finds her. Let the gay seminars convene and the unexplainable phenomena be investigated. But let you and me and the narcotics agent and the school board and the President, even — let all of us do our damndest to contain the drug phenomenon. It is all too cruelly explainable.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By THERON NEWELL

Vancouver Disaster Raises Question On Marin Preparedness

For many years, my wife and I lived in Vancouver, Wash., which until recently was best known for often being confused with Vancouver, British Columbia.

The Alioto trial and recent disastrous windstorm changed that. The city of 40,000 on the north bank of the Columbia River became known to many who had never heard of it before.

Being former residents, we had more than a passing fancy to find out the extent of damage from the storm.

The storm was quick, violent and deadly. It started on the Portland side of the river, uprooting trees and wrecking boats at the marinas on the river.

When it hit Vancouver, it blew off the roof and smashed the brick walls of an elementary school, wrecked a shopping center, bowling alley, lumber yard and other businesses, as well as about 100 houses in a half-mile-wide swath 10 miles long.

IN THE TIME estimated at a minute and a half to two minutes, it left six dead, 304 wounded and hundreds homeless.

One of the best descriptions of the damage was made by a reporter in a helicopter who described the ring of flashing red lights as highway patrolmen, police, sheriff's deputies, fire engines and ambulances from four counties converged on the scene but could not get into it because of the blocked streets.

It took seven hours to get the last of the wounded treated at the city's two hospitals. In the meantime, portable kitchens were set up and food dispensed.

Housicg was prepared for the homeless, but apparently they had friends as it was not needed.

IT LEFT US wondering: What if a similar disaster hit Marin County?

The county is updating its plan for civic defense which is scheduled for completion on May 1.

But Marin County is more vulnerable than the area to the north. Highway 101 is the main artery of the county. Most of the population live along it. If it were cut by an earthquake knocking down overpasses, or if a series of accidents jammed it, the emergency vehicles would be forced to use long, winding, slow back roads.

The Civic Center has been designated as the prime headquarters in event of a disaster. If it should be knocked out by an earthquake, the second choice now is Marion School in Novato. Surely there are better second choice than that old school for a headquarters. Of course, that is a carryover from the 1960 plan.

We hope that it never happens, but Marin County engineers have been lax in providing the public the safety of alternate routes in the county. These may not be needed normally, but in case of an emergency or disaster, they might make the difference between life or death for people.

Medicare Pay Areas Criticized

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Medicare regulations which encourage elderly persons to seek hospitalization should be eliminated, according to a report prepared for the Senate Committee on Aging.

The report criticized Medicare provisions under which a patient must be institutionalized for at least three days before the government insurance program will pay the costs of home health care. It was also critical of regulations that require the patient to pay part of his own doctor bill if treated at home but often none of it if he is treated at a hospital or skilled nursing home.

The report said such "barriers" should be ended in an effort to build up home health services and reduce government costs.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Proposed Law Legalizes Unionshop In Schools

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Assembly Bill 545, sponsored by the California Teachers Association, would legalize both strikes and union shops in the public schools, according to the legislative counsel.

CTA, in promoting this collective bargaining bill, has repeatedly emphasized that it does not contain the specific provisions for teacher strikes and forced union assessments that were in the organization's AB 2833 last year.

However, in the belief of the legislative counsel — whose job it is to advise the legislature on legal implications of bills — AB 545 legalizes both of these by implication.

IN AN OPINION prepared for Assemblyman John L. E. Collier, R-South Pasadena, the legislative counsel said that a section of the bill "could, we think, be interpreted as permitting a teachers' organization to undertake concerted activities, such as striking, picketing or boycotting a school district, as a means of obtaining from the district an agreement to employ or to continue in employment only those teachers who join and remain members of the teachers' organization or who agree to pay dues to such organization."

The section in question says: "Employees shall have the right . . . to engage in other activities, individually or in concert, for the purpose of establishing, maintaining, protecting or improving terms and conditions of service and other matters affecting their work environment."

Similar language appears in the Los Angeles Metropolitan Transit Act of 1957, noted Martin L. Anderson, deputy legislative counsel, in the opinion prepared for Assemblyman Collier. And on the basis of that language, the California Supreme Court ruled in 1960 that the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen had a legal right to strike against the Los Angeles Metropolitan Transit Authority, despite the general provision of California law that public employees do not have such a right.

"FURTHERMORE," the legislative counsel noted, "AB 545 would repeal both section 13082 of the Education Code, which specifically gives school employees the right to refuse to join or participate in the activities of an employee organization, and Section 13088, which provides that the enactment of the Winton Act is not to be construed as making the provisions of Section 923 of the Labor Code applicable to public school employees." Section 923 is the section which legalizes the closed shop in California.

CTA's AB 545, introduced for it by Assemblyman Jim Keysor, D-San Fernando, is not the only bill designed to bring union exclusive bargaining rights into the schools. Assemblyman Ken Meade, D-Oakland, has introduced AB 559, which would do the same thing.

Meade put in AB 559 at request of the California Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO. Interestingly, its wording is almost identical to that of CTA's AB 545. The section cited by the legislative counsel appears in both bills.

Professional Educators Group of California commented in a bulletin sent to its members, urging opposition to both measures: "Almost-identical twins want you — or your dues. Two bills — almost identical — prove again that California Teachers Association and California Federation of Teachers are philosophically aligned. They also reveal that CTA and CFT are out to legalize agency shops (pay dues or be fired) and/or union shops (join or be fired)."

Also in the legislature is AB 1553 by Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento, which would not apply to teachers but would give classified (non-credentialed) school employees the right to exclusive union representation.

PROFESSIONAL EDUCATORS Group, on the other hand, has a bill to restrict the scope of the Winton Act, which now governs teacher-school board negotiations. This measure is AB 2181 by Assemblyman Robert C. Cline, R-Woodland Hills, and is a rewrite of last year's AB 2473 which he introduced for Professional Educators of Los Angeles.

Hearings on the bills by an Assembly education subcommittee chaired by Assemblyman James W. Dent, R-Concord, are scheduled to begin April 25.

Santa Clara Man Has Court Date

Preliminary hearings on two separate cases against Leroy Raymond Willey, 40, of Santa Clara have been set for April 26 and 27 in Marin Municipal Court.

Willey, who has pleaded innocent, is charged with stealing a car from Annex Motors in San Rafael March 19 and with passing four bad checks in Mill Valley between Dec. 13 and Dec. 20.

Willey, who once lived in Petaluma, was arrested on warrants by San Rafael police Thursday.

Alcohol, Drug Abuse Discussion Set

The new council is being formed to advise the county in its expenditure of federal funds for alcoholism control. The planning group will discuss the effect that a new advisory group will have on its functions in Marin County.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Basic Principal Of Finesse: Follows Opponents High Card

The basic principle of the finesse is that you must be able to make a key play after an opponent with a high card has played. You can do this only if you lead through the opponent with the high card. It follows from this that you must take care to lead as often as necessary from the correct hand. In general, you lead from weakness toward strength.

FINESSE IN SPADES

West leads a club, and you win in dummy with the ace, noting that you must finesse in spades and diamonds. The problem is to lead from dummy as often as necessary.

You start with the trumps. Lead the eight of spades from dummy and let it ride for a finesse.

West plays a low spade on this trick without appearing to give the matter any thought. He hopes to confuse you.

ACE WIN FATAL

You must next lead a small trump from dummy. It would be fatal to lead the 10. East discards a club, and you finesse with the queen from your hand. It would be fatal to win with the ace.

West wins the second spade trick with his king and leads another club. You ruff with an honor and lead the nine of spades to dummy's ten. This entry to dummy would not exist if you had made any of the fatal errors already mentioned.

START THE DIAMONDS

It is now time to start the diamonds. Lead a diamond from dummy and finesse with the queen. Fortunately, the finesse succeeds.

Get back to dummy by leading the jack of hearts to dummy's queen. (This doesn't give you an additional heart trick, but it puts the lead where you want it.) Lead another low diamond from dummy and finesse with the jack.

Finally, you cash the ace of diamonds and ruff your last diamond with dummy's last trump. The slam is now home.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two spades (forcing to game) and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 5
♥ - 9 7 4 2
♦ - K 9 8 4
♣ - K Q 7 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three no trump.

You have eight points in high cards, made up of 1½ Quick Tricks. This is worth a positive response. A response of two no-trump would show weakness, and a response in a new suit would be misleading.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Assembly Panel Votes To Reduce Pot Penalty

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An Assembly commitee has voted to reduce the penalty for possession of marijuana from a felony to a misdemeanor, but killed legislation to repeal all pot penalties entirely.

The Assembly Criminal Justice Committee acted to relax marijuana penalties Tuesday as a group seeking to eliminate them completely announced it has collected more than half the necessary signatures to place the issue on the November ballot.

Witnesses testifying in favor of reduced marijuana penalties ranged from the judge in the Sirhan Sirhan murder trial and a lobbyist for the state Bar to a former Eagle Scout and youthful "Jesus freaks."

Major opponents are the District Attorneys and Peace officers Association and the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department.

With no votes to spare, the committee sent to the Aseembly floor a bill by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Beverly Hills, to make marijuana possession a misdemeanor.

Presently in California, a judge has discretion to regard marijuana possession as either a felony or a misdemeanor if it is the defendant's first offense. A felony conviction carries a prison sentence of from 1 to 10 years, while the maximum penalty for a misdemeanor is 6 months in county jail or a $500 fine.

"The penalties for marijuana do not fit the crime," contended Sieroty.

His bill needed five votes for approval and got just that many, 5-3.

The committee, however, rejected, 3-5, a bill by Assemblyman Henry A. Waxman, D-Los Angeles, to remove all penalties against possession of marijuana. Commercial sales of marijuana still would be illegal.

Waxman called the present law "wholly unrealistic and anachronistic."

A proposal similar to Waxman's is being pushed by a group seeking to qualify an initiative measure on the November ballot. The organization needs to collect signatures of 326,000 registered voters by June 19 and announced at the hearing it has obtained 180,000.

"We should give the same privilege and choice to a person who smokes a joint as a person who drinks a highball," said Robert Ashford, a San Francisco attorney who is coordinating the initiative drive. "We should stop making millions of otherwise law abiding Californians criminals in the eyes of the law."

Ashford supported Waxman's bill and oppposed Sieroty's as "only a lip service solution."

Dr. Thomas Gitchoff, director of criminal justice administrration at San Diego State College and a former Eagle Scout, said he came from a generation which believed "marijuana was the weed of madness." Later, Gitchoff told the committee, he saw middle class youngsters trying marijuana "about as fast as it takes to let a crew cut grow into a Prince Valiant haircut."

He added, "I've never seen anybody violent on marijuana. In fact, maybe the world would be a happier place if we all took grass."

The comment brought loud applause from the approximately 100 youths who packed the committee room.

Also supporting the Sieroty bill was Dr. J. Thomas Ungerleider, a member of the President's commission on drug abuse which recommended removal of marijuana penalties for private use.

But Carl W. Anderson, lobbyist for the district attorneys and peace officers, said "we believe the present sentencing procedure, where the first offense can be prosecuted as a misdemeanor, gives the courts sufficient flexibility."

PUC POLICY

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Senate has approved without a ripple of dissent controversial legislation urging the state Public Utilities Commission to comply more strictly with a law requiring its staff attorneys to participate in all proceedings.

The measure by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, calls on the commission, whose members were appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan, to report back within 15 days on steps taken to achieve full compliance.

The proposal sailed out of the Senate on a voice vote Tuesday without an audible dissenting vote.

As the Senate prepared to adjourn, Alquist stood at his desk and explained that the resolution merely "clarifies legislative intent" of a provision of the Public Utilities Code.

He asked for an "aye" vote and sat down. The motion carried routinely and Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, the presiding officer, declared it adopted.

The resolution accuses the commission of "on occasion, by individual order" prohibiting its staff of civil service lawyers from carrying out a provision of the law which declares that the staff attorneys must appear and represent the public as well as the commission at all commission proceedings.

MURDER BILL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Senate Judiciary Committee has overwhelmingly approved a bill supported by Gov. Ronald Reagan making the killing of an on-duty peace officer automatic first degree murder.

But in a related action, the committee defeated by one vote legislation stripping the power of the governor to commute the term of a convict serving a life sentence without possibility of parole.

Sen. H.L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, author of both proposals, received permission Tuesday to return in two weeks to seek to have the committee reconsider its defeat of the commutation legislation.

The committee on a 9-2 vote sent the measure making the slaying of a policeman automatic first degree murder to the full Senate. Reagan had called for such legislation in his "state of the state" message last January.

Under current law, the slaying of a policeman can be either first or second degree murder.

HITS COUNCIL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An Assembly committee has approved a bill that would abolish the California Council on Criminal Justice and replace it with a five-man board of fulltime professionals.

The Criminal Justice Committee sent the measure by Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda, to Ways and Means Tuesday on a 5-1 vote, with Assemblyman Robert Beverly, R-Manhattan Beach, dissenting.

VD PROPOSAL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation permitting schools to contract with private agencies to provide instruction on venereal disease prevention has been approved by an Assembly committee.

The Education Committee sent the measure by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, to the ways and means Committee Tuesday on a 10-5 vote.

Approval came after the legislation was amended to require the state superintendent of public instruction to approve all VD instruction courses.

WIRETAP

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill law enforcement agencies said would "strengthen the hand of local governments by permitting electronic eavesdropping in some criminal investigations has been rejected by an Assembly committee.

The Criminal Justice Committee turned down the measure by Assemblyman W. Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, Tuesday after Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda, declared a wiretap was "nondiscriminatory" and a "sponge."

With the wiretap, Crown said, "You hear all sorts of things."

Arlo Smith of the state attorney general's office argued, "We ought to strengthen the hand of local government ... at getting at organized crime, the big criminal."

TUITION

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Assembly Education Committee has rejected a study-now, pay-later higher education plan described by its author as a "poor man's bill."

After opponents charged it would place a financial burden on students, the so-called "learn, earn and reimburse" measure by Assemblyman John L. E. Collier, R-Los Angeles, failed Tuesday on a 6-10 vote.

The bill would have required University of California and state college students to pay tuition. If a student could not pay, he could sign a note promising to repay the state for part of the cost of his education after graduation.

TUTOR FUNDS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly Education Committee has approved a bill appropriating $866,000 to expand the pilot program in which college students are used as tutors for elementary school pupils with reading problems.

The panel sent the measure by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, to the Ways and Means Committee Tuesday on a quick 15-0 vote. The hearing room was packed with the tutors.

The program, called SHARE, was initiated in Santa Clara County in 1970. The measure requests the superintendent of public instruction to include SHARE projects in the annual budget of the state Department of Education.

OPPOSE PLAN

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Women labor leaders have vowed to fight legislation that would add California to states ratifying the proposed equal rights amendment when it comes before the Assembly. An aide to Assemblyman Walter Karabian, D-Monterey Park, the author of the measure, said the resolution would come before the Assembly as early as Thursday and no later than Monday.

Karabian's office prepared Tuesday to win swift approval for the measure. The aide said if labor does not campaign vigorously against the amendment it should pass the Assembly without difficulty.

But women labor leaders said they would fight the proposal to ratify the 27th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution after the all-male Assembly Judiciary Committee approved the measure Monday night in a 4 1-2 hour hearing.

"Equal rights should not mean loss of rights for women but an extension of them to all workers," Ann Draper, representative of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, told the committee.

Far-Fetched Idea On Curbing Vandalism To Nation's Schools

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Concrete walls four feet thick, no doors, no windows, no lights, no plumbing fixtures and surrounded by a 10-foot high electrified fence.

A top-security prison? No, James F. Fisher of Oakland, told the National School Boards Association annual convention yesterday.

That's how he sees the probable complete answer to vandals on school property.

Fisher, director of Oakland school construction, admits the extreme is "ridiculous," but said new methods have to be found to outwit and thwart vandals

To test stronger and better building materials and alarm systems, he suggests that authorities indulge in a little make-believe vandalism themselves.

To find out just how good those materials are, he said, "test, try, kick, hammer—will lipstick or ballpoint pen really come off the surface? And not leave a mark?"

Robert E. Grimditch, an insurance executive from San Francisco, went further in proposed remedies for "uncomfortably" high costs to schools as a result of vandalism.

In addition to human watchdogs, he detailed a host of electronic devices which could be used to keep every inch of school grounds under surveillance 24 hours a day.

Electronic fences can be installed to trigger an alarm if any person approaches within three feet of an electromagnetic field.

On his list, too, is a portable radar unit which transmits a 25-foot radius of high intensity radio frequency waves. Any disturbance of the pattern triggers an alarm.

Monday, famed psychiatrist Dr. W. Walter Menninger told the convention that opposition to busing stems from subtle prejudices.

U.S., Mexico River Boundary Pact Set

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States and Mexico have formally put into force a treaty resolving boundary disputes—some dating back to 1907—caused by course changes in the Rio Grande and Colorado Rivers.

The Senate approved the treaty last November. It was formally implemented Tuesday when Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Mexican Ambassador Jose De Olloqui exchanged documents at a State Department ceremony.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Without Milk Sickness Lincoln May Not Have Been President

We never hear of the milk sick disease, but 150 years ago, it was a serious problem in the Midwest. Many fatalities occurred among the pioneers and their horses and cattle. And because entire communities were affected, the plants or soil were held responsible. As a result, settlers frequently pulled up stakes and migrated westward. This happened to the family of Abraham Lincoln when Nancy, his mother, died of the disease. Perhaps he would never have been President had it not been for milk sickness and the family's move from Indiana to Illinois.

THE CONDITION is called milk sickness because many people develop the symptoms of poisoning after drinking milk or eating butter from a sick cow. The animal is ill because it eats the white snakeroot and may develop the "trembles." Some of the poison (trematol) gets into the milk, and anyone who drinks it is likely to become ill or die.

Nowadays the sickness is seldom encountered because most milk comes from large dairies. During the processing, any milk that might be contaminated is so diluted that it is safe. Years ago, farmers peddled their own milk and left a trail of sickness along the route.

THE INITIAL symptoms of milk sickness are lassitude, drowsiness, and weakness. Obstinate constipation develops and there is no appetite. This is followed by abdominal pain, nausea, and vomiting. Dehydration and acidosis ensue unless the condition is recognized and intravenous fluids are started.

Snakeroot, an annual, grows in most parts of the United States and has been a problem for decades. It is a slim weed with leaves two to five inches long and has 10 to 30 small white flowers on the top. The plant is easily eradicated by cutting early or pulling before it blooms or the seeds fall to the ground.

Learn to recognize the plant and destroy it immediately. It is still found in pastures, backyards, playgrounds, and public parks. Children will eat anything in sight and weed poisoning must be considered if a baffling illness develops suddenly.

LAZY THYROID

D. D. writes: If an underactive thyroid is neglected, how will the body be affected?

REPLY

The skin becomes cold and dry, the hair tends to fall out and become dry, and the mind becomes dulled. Weight gain occurs in some along with puffiness of the tissues, especially the face. The victim feels cold because his metabolism is low. In time the heart becomes lazy and enlarges.

GRATING KNEES

R. W. writes: Will taking a spoonful of cod liver oil and a mouthful of orange juice before going to bed help grating in the knee?

REPLY

No, but this odd combination won't aggravate the condition either. This type of arthritis is better at times and worse at others.

Reagan Declares Crop Emergency

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — In the wake of severe frost and hail damage to crops, Gov. Ronald Reagan has declared a state of emergency in 13 Northern and Central counties.

The governor also asked President Nixon to designate the counties as a disaster area.

Reagan's action opens the door to business and property tax relief for the growers.

The affected counties are Fresno, Kings, Tulare, Stanislaus, Tehama, Placer, Nevada, San Benito, Kern, San Joaquin, El Dorado, Merced and Madera.

Stolen Property Felony Case Dismissed By Judge

A superior court judge yesterday dismissed a felony charge of receiving stolen property against Donald H.L. DeSurville in the midst of a jury trial on the charge.

Judge Thomas F. Keating ruled the prosecution had insufficient evidence after a conference with the attorneys involved while the defense was presenting its case.

The prosecution had called only one witness who testified for six minutes against the owner of Town and Country Billiards in Kentfield.

DeSurville was arrested Nov. 12 on a charge that he had purchased a valuable coin collection stolen by teen-agers from a Larkspur home in October.

DeSurville was suspected of buying $250 worth or coins from the $3,400 in coins taken from the home of Norbert G. Hartman.

Plea Made To Robbery Of Motorist

Richard Dean Guendner, 21, of Larkspur, has pleaded innocent to the armed robbery of a motorist Saturday.

A preliminary hearing in Marin Municipal Court was set for Tuesday.

Guendner was arrested by Larkspur police after Thomas S. Robertson of Tiburon was roughed up and robbed of $75 by hitchhikers.

Police are seeking Steven John Pappas, 21, of San Francisco, for his alleged part in the incident.

Pappas allegedly grabbed the driver by the neck and threatened him with a knife while Guendner took the money, according to police.

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday and Monday in saying Guendner both threatened and robbed Robertson.

Police said the hitchhikers forced the motorist to drive from in front of the police station to the end of Baltimore Canyon where they robbed him.

A third hitchhiker who was in the car has not been identified, according to police.

Shares In Road Users Taxes Set

Sonoma County received $197,259.22, of which Petaluma received $20,458.77; Cotati, $1,505.66, and Rohnert Park, $5,219.59.

TIBURON-BELVEDERE TURNOFF AT HWY. 101, MILL VALLEY

Village Offers A 'Cruise'

Vistors to Strawberry's Town and Country Village can enjoy an imaginary cruise on the T.S. Hamburg during the Sea Fair holidays.

As crew members, assignments to the engine room wheelhouse, and the deck force are published at 0700. Passengers can enjoy the latest nautical fashions for spring and summer for every kind of casual and formal occasion.

The day begins with a hearty breakfast of buttermilk pancakes, sausage, barbecued ham at the Hick'ry Pit.

Following reakfast yoga classes will be held on the fantail by Capricorn Books. At 0900 all launches are lowered and our ladies descend for a fashion shopping tour of the Village.

Here, one experiences elegance at James Sears, chic ensembles at Gigi's, leisure wear at the Little Daisy, romantic attire at Littlechix, and casual wear from Alvin Duskin. Some of the ladies will have cruise dresses made to order at Eleanor Green's Dresscotheque. For garden and pool parties a brief visit to the Polynesian House will be a special side trip. For shipboard, nautical fashions unfold at Motherhood Maternity.

Our ship's whistle signals lunch time aboard the decks of the Ancient Mariner where delectable steak sandwiches and salads are served in the classic nautical tradition.

Once again our launches sail forth past the bumboats to the docks of International Imports. Here, in keeping with the ancient market place, is the hum and excitement of the bazaar — bargains and treasures from the four corners of the globe.

Spanish doubloons are exchanged at the Golden Gate Coin and Stamp shop. Fine coffees are quaffed by eager tourists at the continental style Caravansary.

Some of the guests will enjoy special excursions to the nifty gourmet boutiques. At Walther's Bakery tasty cakes and pastries are born. Packages to send home include cheeses and fine foods from Hickory Farms and vintage wines from the Village Liquors. Visitors to the Village will find shopping adventures await in the Golden Cherub, Fiesta Candle, Boutique Mimi, RoJean's, and Telford's Pipe Shop.

Tennis lessons and tennis fashions are available in the afternoon at Marina Tennis.

A brief splash in the pool is in order and then an exciting retracing in the footsteps of Marco Polo as he dined with Kublai Khan begins 'neath chandeliers at Kublai Khan. Gourmet delights are featured at dinner time. Here is no place for counting calories. Kublai Khan offers gastronomic joy. Patrons enjoy the delicate lift of aromatic herbs, a delicacy of taste, piquant combinations and mouthwatering ingredients in a superlative menu.

A stroll down the passageways discovers the music of the great bands, a complementary invitation from the Marin Music Center to enjoy the joy of quadraphonic sound.

And thus it goes on our voyage during the Sea Fair at Town and Country Village.

Exciting Nautical Fashions Available

An exciting program has been undertaken by Town and Country Village aboard the German-Atlantic Line's T.S. Hamburg. The programs started on April 9 and will continue June 9, ship's sailing dates.

Fashion layouts have been photographed by San Francisco cameraman Terry Ward. KGO-TV, Channel 7, will film portions of this showing for newscasts. Fashion magazines and travel magazines will also feature excerpts from this series.

The nautical fashions at the many boutiques of Town and Country Villages in Mill Valley, Palo Alto, Sunnyvale, and San Jose have been modeled for Ward's lenses, from the binnacle to the galley and from the engine rooms to the funnel.

The models chosen include Elaine Macy, Tiburon; Samantha Swann, Larkspur; Randi Blair, Carina Corman and Betty Haymen, San Rafael; Candy Lauer, San Anselmo; Sheila Barnett and Debbie Whitworth, Sunnyvale; Marcia Sulk, Sausalito; and Lois Langston, Tiburon.

The T.S. Hamburg, the Space Ship, commences its sea-air fall cruise to the Mediterranean and the Black Sea on Sept. 14. This dream cruise includes 12 perfect ports and returns to the U.S. by KLM Airlines.

Bert Talbot of Talbot of Tiburon's Travel Agency is handling the travel arrangements for the Hamburg in Marin County.

As one passenger expressed it, 'They even got the kitchen sink!'

New Store To Open In Town & Country

"It is going to be a great opening," promises Hal Wolfson, owner of James Sears of Marin. Special Class Aided By Fashion Show

The Omicron Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi of Marin County held its annual fashion show at the Boathouse in Sausalito Friday. Themed "Tonics and Tunics" the show featured fashions from Littlechix, the petite sizes, fashion store in Town and Country Village.

All proceeds were for the special class for autistic children at the Henry C. Hall School in Larkspur. Judy Cefalu of Kentfield was the fashion coordinator. The commentator was Littlechix owner, Charles LaBue. The fashions included hot pants, bathing suits, long dresses and casual wear.

Littlechix Buyer Trip Completed

Charles LaBue has just compelted his annual New York buying trip, and the exciting new items are arriving daily. During the trip, LaBue made it a point to visit the out-of-the-way manufacturers who are so popular at present.

Just a short time back, Littlechix was an idea of Wayne Klugman and Charles LaBue. They had discovered that sophisticated clothes were virtually impossible to find in small sizes. Their success was immediate, and they opened their third store in February in Palo Alto's Town & Country Village.

The Great Gildersleeve's Voice Back On Radio For Gibraltar

It's been about 20 years since you heard the unforgettable chuckle of the Great Gildersleeve in the "Golden Days" of radio.

But that engaging voice is yours to enjoy again whenever you hear the friendly commercials of Gibraltar Savings and Loan Association.

You have to say the man who created Gildersleeve, Hal Peary, wears well. One of his secrets was to start early.

Born in San Leandro, and raised in Napa, Hal was 13 when he first planted his sturdy frame in front of a microphone. Would you believe as a singer? The station was KLX, Oakland, and Hal was known as the Boy Caruso. "I had an extremely high voice. When it changed, it had to be for the better."

Hal's first job as an actor was at NBC in San Francisco. Without pay. But he did so well that the network decided to pay him $35 a week. Hal claims the pay was primarily for his versatility. "I was known as their triple-threat man. Sang, acted and wielded a broom."

News of his San Franciso work had preceded him. Marion and Jim Jordan, already known as Fibber McGee and Molly, offered him a job on their show.

The Jordans encouraged Hal to create the character of Throckmorton P. Gildersleeve for their show in 1937. It was an immediate success. Two years later they all went to Hollywood to broadcast the program and make movies at RKO.

One of the questions most often asked of Hal is how he developed his famous chuckle. "We were doing a McGee show and ran out of script and about five minutes before the program was to end. The producer was frantically giving us the "stretch it" sign so Fibber and I started ad libbing. At one point McGee said something funny and I reacted with that "nasty" Gildersleeve laugh. Well, the audience howled. From that point on, the laugh was included in every show and it became my "trademark"."

Just before the summer hiatus for Fibber and Molly, Hal was asked to build a radio show of his own to replace them for thirteen weeks.

With Leonard L. Levinson, one of their writers, Hal wrote about a bachelor who left "Wistful Vista" to go to "Summerfield" to raise a niece and nephew. Thus were born Marjorie (Laureen Tuttle) and Lee-Roy (Walter Tetley) and the "Great Gildersleeve". At this point, what appeared to be misfortune turned into a lucky break. The sponsor chose another program for McGee's replacement, and just when Peary thought his show would never get off the ground or on the air, another picked it up. It started in the fall of 1941 and continued for 16 years.

Today Hal Peary is quite content — and busy — as Gibraltar's radio spokesman, appearing as guest speaker and entertainer at numerous club dates, radio and television talk shows, as character actor in many TV series (his recent, the Doris Day Show) and as "Open House Host" at the many Gibraltar offices throughout the state.

He is also the honorary mayor of Manhattan Beach, where he and his wife, Juanita, reside. She holds a degree in electrical engineering and formerly headed that department at Douglas Aircraft.

Dean Describes Modern Lawyer

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)— Dean Theodore J. St. Antoine of the University of Michigan Law School believes the modern lawyer must be a "mix of scholar and practical man" and that law schools should plan their curricula accordingly.

On the practical side, St. Antoine foresees greater emphasis on clinical law programs, such as student workstudy projects in legal aid clinics.

MARINWOOD MODELS — Ian Hay and his son, Steve, are featured in a billboard series for Chiffon. Hay owns Ideal Sationers in Strawberry's Town and Country Village. Steve, 13, is a pupil in Miller Creek School. The modeling assignment was the first for both of them.

Ian Hay And Son Are Models

Movies have been made about the predicaments and misadventures that occur when personalities are selected for billboards. Jack Lemmon as "Good Neighbor" Sam spent evenings in San Francisco painting out his face as he was shown embracing a neighbor's wife.

Judy Holiday's character became famous overnight in a sequence where an obscure girl spends her entire savings on a billboard presentation of herself to achieve fame.

In Boccacio 70, Marcello Mastroianni spends sleepless hours haunted by the visage of Anita Ekberg peering through his window from a billboard.

Over in Marinwood last October an advertising agency was shooting a commercial at Hap Edde Standard Station on Miller Creek Road. In the background three boys were sitting on a fence watching.

Agency photographers on reviewing their proofs were delighted with the picture of Steve Hay and on checking with the gas station learned his address and arranged for Steve and his father, Ian, to pose in a scene of a boy having his hair cut by his father. This scene was for Crown Zellerbach's new campaign illustrating the versatility of Chiffon paper towels. Tom Tjerandsen, account executive for D'Arcy-MacManns-Intermarco Inc., San Francisco, planned the campaign in conjunction with Zellerbach ad man, Bob Haile.

The series of ads appeared in San Rafael's Idependent-Journal, California Living, Parade, Ladies Home Journal, Good Housekeeping, TV Guide, Sunset Magazine, House Beautiful, and on 300 billboards in the Western U.S.

Hay, formerly of London, is the owner of Ideal Stationers in Town and Country Village. Ian and his wife, sons, Dave and Seve, live in San Rafael.

Steve, age 13, attends the eighth grade at Miller Creek School. His hobbies include golf,, fishing, and baseball.

This modeling experience is a first for both Steve and Ian.

Producer Of Program For Village Is A Busy Person

Between news casts, executive sales contracts, and writing commercials, Clint Weyrauch is a busy man.

Producer of Shopping in The Village radio program on KTIM daily, Monday through Friday, at 11:35 a.m. 'til noon, Clint still finds time to skydive and fly.

He recently developed a rock format for listeners during the evening hours. He has added an element of versatility to the station's format. The "Village" program is a balance between music and interviews.

Weyrauch's latest effort will be a Sunday concert series featuring local rock music artists.

Departing from the traditions of a family of physicians, Clint attended Union College with the goal of radio foremost in his mind.

Hugh Turner, station manager, of KTIM gave him a chance to prove himself and he has. Originally from San Francisco, Clint lives in San Rafael.

SHIFT TO UNIFORM OF DAY

Fashion's latest excitement on the sports' deck by Hawaiian Togs. They are hot pants with long tunic worn by Elaine Macy, Tiburon, in purple, blue and green. They are from the Polynesian House.

(Terry Ward photo)

Little Daisy Observes An Ancient Tradition

In early times man observed spring with awe and excitement. The egg and budding flowers symbolized new life. It was customary to exchange these symbols of new life with friends, family, and community to wish one another the blessings of fertility and abundant living.

Every year the Little Daisy brings an end to winter and salutes the first day of spring by offering free, living daisies to everyone visiting their stores. It is a symbol of their best wishes and connotes the excitement of color and change of mood to spring.

This year it is nautical at the Little Daisy. There is bold enthusiasm for the red, white and blue according to Patti Marsh, assistant manager. Active clothes for sailing, hiking, and outdoor play are now in-clothes. Swimwear with matching cover-ups, smocks with coordinate pants are also popular.

The Little Daisy is an Oakland-based firm headed by Wallace Bradshaw under whose leadership the store has grown to five stores in just a few years.

The Daisy's success story, according to Bradshaw, has been due to the skill of Daisy buyers in adapting a wide range of merchandise demands of both varied communities and ever changing life styles.

Bradshaw, his wife, Joyce, and three children live in LaFayette. Swimming and sailing are their pastimes.

The local Little Daisy manager at Town and Country Village is Marilyn Meadows.

New Nautical Look In Men's Fashions

There was little uniformity about the dress of seamen until the beginning of the 19th Century. The typical sailor wore loose fitting short trousers with wide bottoms, a shirt or vest, and a high waistcoat.

Caps included stocking caps, handerchiefs, and round felt hats. Many seamen wore hats made of canvas and waterproofed with tar or paint.

Early officers wore blue coats with red lapels, red waistcoats, blue breeches, white stockings and tri-cornered hats.

Men's naval uniforms have long been a symbol of distinctiveness, discipline, and tradition. Now designers have done everything for the girls that live on water.

The new nautical look includes everything from sweaters decorated with signal flags to foul weather gear, bell bottoms, stocking caps, jumpers, pinnafores, and pretty petty coats are back as in the days of sailing ships.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Larson formerly of Helena now reside in Mill Valley. Larson is employed by Levi Straus in San Francisco.

Nordhoff is a direct descendent of Charles Nordhoff the author of "Mutiny on the Bounty".

Job Deaths Stable

CHICAGO (UPI)—The death toll from occupational accidents last year was 14,200—a figure unchanged over the past two years. The number of disabling injuries, 2.2 million, was comparable to 1970's figure, the National Safety Council reports.

Trio Opens Store With Paris Flare

Travelling aboard ocean liners Ile de France and SS Washington, three girls from Paris, Betty Corman, Betty Haymen, and Gigi Meunier, arrived in San Francisco with the desire of having a special store for young ladies.

In October 1971, their dream became a reality with the opening of Gigi, Inc. in Strawberry's Town and Country Village.

According to Gigi, "Our aim is to provide young ladies with moderately priced clothes with chic distinction. We want our young lady patrons to enjoy individuality in fashion in well groomed, organized ensembles. As expressed in the familiar song, "Gigi", this is particularly important as a young girl blossoms into womanhood."

She also said "Our collections sustain distinctiveness and femininity in style."

Presently, Betty has Gigi's windows reflecting the fun and excitement of sea fashions in red, white and blue.

At Gigi's are all the colors of spring in print dresses, long pleated skirts, multi colored hats, and swimsuits with matching cover-ups. There is a magnetic air of excitement, sophistication and fun at Gigi's. One finds a nostalgic reminder of a Parisian afternoon.

Polynesian House Was Family Dream

Two imaginative apparel factory sales representatives realized the need for bright and colorful clothes for casual living in Marin.

In 1965 Dick and Molly Marcus opened the Polynesian House in Town and Country Village.

In 1972, the Polynesian style has blossomed into the latest thing dominating the spring and summer fashion season from coast to coast.

South Sea island attire is now popular in styles for men, tiny tots and grandmothers.

The Marcuses now operate five stores; their newest store opening shortly in Carmichael. The Marcus family resides in Bel Marin Keys. They have just returned from a buying trip to Hawaii with the latest styles and colors.

"At Polynesian House you'll find long muu muus, hostess dresses, short muus, slacks, print tops, bikinis, beach coverups, shoes, rattan furniture collections, and all the accessories for a Polynesian experience in Marin," says Mrs. Eunice Lavin, manager of the Village store.

Motherhood Maternity Under A New Manager

From across the seas to Town and Country Village hailsMrs. Merete Bendtsen, a new manager for Motherhood Maternity. Her appointment was made official by vice-president Harold Rosenburg on April 17 in Santa Monica.

"Motherhood Maternity offers a complete selection of apparel for expectant mothers but of most importance Motherhood's styles are leading the fashion world in the nautical look," proclaims Mrs. Bendtsen.

Originally from Slagelse, Denmark, she now resides with her husband, Christian, in San Rafael.

She says, "There is no place like Marin County. The weather is nice, people are friendly and life is easy."

GROWING CONCERN — Alvin Duskin's owner, Harry Shain, has led his retail stores to a total of ten locations serving northern California in two years. His Marin store is in Strawberry.

At Alvin Duskin Girls Find Fun Wear In Classic Styles

Fun wear is the experience junior size girls enjoy at Alvin Duskin retail in Town and Country Village. "The classic styles that make Duskin unique include every kind of casual apparel," exclaims manager Aileen Reis.

Alvin Duskin retail stores are actually independent organizations, entirely separate from the manufacturing entity. Paul Maris operates the factory while Mr. Harold Shain owns and operates the retail company.

Through the leadership of Shain as president, vice president Sylvia Williamson, supervisors Shari Costio and Claire Tafralis, the Alvin Duskin stores have grown to 10, all in northern California in slightly less than two years.

Harold Shain, a personal friend of Duskin, brought to the boutique shop clothes that are fashionable, wearable, and priced for everyone.

In the beginning, only Duskin manufactured clothes were carried, but now the Duskin stores have expanded their stylized lines to include Hubba-Hubba, Utopia, Wrangler, Joshua Tree, Strawberry Plant, Gunne Sax, Aplomb and other fun lines.

Shain, his wife, Miriam, and three daughters live in San Francisco.

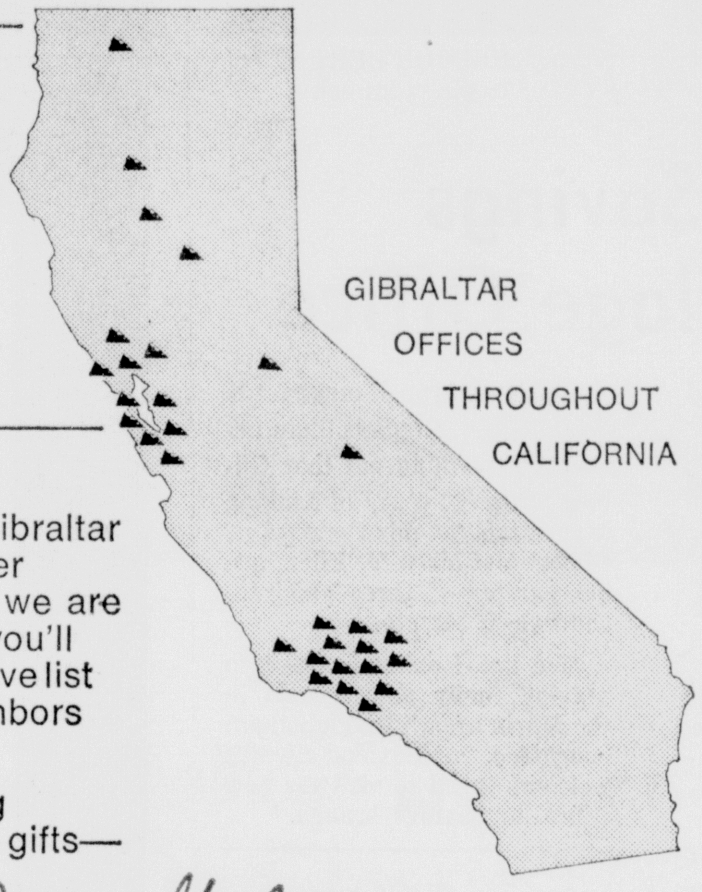
Grand Opening in Strawberry Town & Country Village



. . . the newest office to join our statewide Gibraltar Savings family. While plans are already under way for our spacious, permanent building, we are now opening this intermediate office—and you'll find us ready and eager to provide our extensive list of savings and loan services for our new neighbors in Marin County.

You're invited to share in our Grand Opening festivities. We'll have refreshments—useful gifts—and a warm welcome for you.
